		guarantee or SBLC for the import of rough diamonds from certain mining companies and for aircraft, helicopter, or other aviation-related purchases up to US$50 million. ADs may allow unlimited advance remittances against imports of services, though importers must provide a bank guarantee if the amount exceeds US$500,000. Government and public sector companies require a specific waiver of the bank guarantee from the MOF for advance payments above US$100,000 for imports of both goods and services. In case of merchanting trade transactions, merchanting traders may make advance payment for the import leg if required by the overseas seller. However, for making advance beyond US$500,000, a bank guarantee/SBLC from a reputable international bank is required.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.	These may be required by the terms of an LC.
Preshipment inspection	No.	These may be required by the terms of an LC.
Letters of credit	Yes.	These may be required where applicable.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	Yes.	As per FTP.
Other	Yes.	AD Category-I banks need to obtain information from importers and verify the bona fide of the transactions before remittance documentary evidence is required to be submitted for all the imports. If the amount of the transaction is less than US$1 million, ADs may accept either (1) the exchange control copy of the bill of entry for home consumption or (2) a certificate from the chief executive officer or an auditor (in lieu of Exchange Control Copy of Bill of Entry for home consumption) of the importing company stating that the goods for which payment was made were imported into India, if the importing company is listed on a stock exchange in India and had a net worth of at least Rs 1 billion on the date of the most recent audited balance sheet or is an entity of the GOI or a public sector company or entity whose accounts are audited by the comptroller and auditor general of India. A credit report on the overseas supplier (when import documents are received directly) is not necessary if the invoice value does not exceed US$300,000, provided the ADs are satisfied as to the bona fide nature of the transaction and track record of the importer.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	These are decided by the GOI from time to time.
Positive list	No.	Under FTP, 2015–2020, there is no term as Positive list.
Negative list	Yes.	Under FTP, 2015–2020, there is no term as Negative list. However, goods whose import policy is “Restricted” require an authorization/license from DGFT for import. Goods whose import policy is “Prohibited” are not permitted to be imported.
Open general licenses	No.	As per Indian Trade Clarification based on Harmonized System of Coding classification, there is no terminology called OGL. There are some items which are “free” for import/export, but subject to conditions stipulated in other Acts or in law for the time being in force.
Licenses with quotas	No.	The license/authorization are issued to an importer indicating the quantity of the item with unit of measurement (UOM) which may

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Import policy of certain items is canalized through the state trading enterprises. DGFT may, however, grant an authorization to any other person to import or export any of the goods notified for exclusive trading through state trading enterprises.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	The period of realization and repatriation of export proceeds is nine months from the date of export, and it includes all exporters, including units in SEZs, status holder exporters, Export Oriented Units (EOUs), units in electronic hardware technology parks (EHTPs), software technology parks (STPs), and biotechnology parks (BTPs). Exporters must obtain permission from an AD if the export proceeds are not collected within the prescribed period. ADs may extend the period of realization of export proceeds beyond the stipulated period of realization from the date of export up to six months at a time, regardless of the invoice value of the export, subject to conditions. In case of goods exported to Indian-owned warehouses established outside India, the proceeds must be realized within 15 months from the date of shipment of goods. The RBI also administers a program referred to as “Project Exports” under which engineering goods may be exported under deferred payment terms. Project Export also includes execution of turnkey projects and civil construction contracts aboard. Indian exporters are required to obtain the approval of AD Category-I banks/EXIM Bank at post-award stage before undertaking execution of such contracts.
Surrender requirements	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters may credit 100% of their foreign exchange earnings to an EEFC account; total accruals in the account during a calendar month must be converted to rupees on or before the last day of the subsequent calendar month after adjusting for approved purposes and forward commitments. Status holder exporters may write off outstanding export proceeds up to 10% (5% for other than status holder exporters) of their total export proceeds realized during the previous calendar year. ADs may allow reduction in the export invoice value in case of normal exporters, provided the reduction does not exceed 25% of the invoice value, subject to regulatory conditions. In case of exporters who have been in the export business or more than three years, reduction in invoice value may be allowed, without any percentage ceiling, subject to regulatory conditions.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	Yes.	These may be required where applicable.
Guarantees	Yes.	These may be required where applicable.
Domiciliation	No.	This may be required by the terms of LC.
Preshipment inspection	No.	This may be required by the terms of LC.
Other	Yes.	Under the Export Data Processing and Monitoring System, exports of goods and services must be declared, irrespective of the invoice value. To facilitate e-commerce, guidelines for facilitating export receivables and import payables are made through online payment gateway service providers. For third-party payments, with a view to further liberalizing the procedure relating to payments for exports/imports and taking into account evolving international trade practices, according to A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 8, 2013, AD banks may allow payments for export of goods/software to be received from a third party (a party other than the buyer) subject to the following conditions: (1) The firm irrevocable order must be backed by a tripartite agreement. (2) Third-party payment must be through the banking channel after taking into consideration the FATF statement of the country. (3) The exporter must declare the third-party remittance on the export declaration form. (4) It is the responsibility of the exporter to realize and repatriate the export proceeds from the third party named in the export declaration form. (5) Reported outstanding amounts, if any, in the export outstanding statement must continue to be shown in the name of the exporter. However, instead of the name of the overseas buyer, the name of the declared third party must appear in the export outstanding statement. (6) Payments for shipments to a country in Group II of restricted cover countries (for example, Somalia, Sudan) may be received from an open cover country. AD Category-I banks may allow exporters with at least a three-year satisfactory track record to receive long-term export advances up to a tenor of 10 years for execution of long-term supply contracts for exports of goods, subject to certain conditions mentioned therein. Further, the condition that exporters and importers must have a “firm irrevocable order backed by a tripartite agreement” is not applicable if there is documentary evidence of third-party payments/name of the third party mentioned in the irrevocable order/invoice. The following conditions apply: (1) The AD bank must be satisfied with the bona

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Residents may obtain foreign exchange for bona fide permissible CAT.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	(1) Receipt for exports from third party (party other than buyer) is allowed subject to RBI guidelines, which were introduced vide A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 8, 2013. (2) Receipt for export may also be made in form of bank draft, check, pay order, foreign currency notes/traveler's check from buyer during visit to India, provided the foreign currency is surrendered within the specified period to AD bank. Receipt for exports may be made by debit to FCNR/NRE/SNRR account, maintained by overseas buyer in India in rupees from credit card servicing bank in India subject to regulatory conditions, from a rupee account held in the name of exchange house subject to regulatory condition, in accordance with RBI directions in case of arrangement between the Central Government and foreign government/credit arrangement by EXIM Bank with financial institution in foreign state, in the form of precious metals in certain cases subject to regulatory conditions. Any receipt for other than exports may be received by means of postal order issued by a post office outside India or by a postal money order issued by such post office. These guidelines are specified under Notification No. FEMA 14(R)/2016-RB of May 2, 2016. (3) A payment in foreign exchange by an AD, whether by way of remittance from India or by way of reimbursement to his branch or correspondent outside India against payment for import into India, or against any other payment, must be in the following manner: (a) For ACU countries (other than Nepal, Bhutan, and Iran), payment for import of goods and services by credit to ACU dollar account and/or ACU euro account and/or ACU yen account in India of a bank of the member country in which the other party to the transaction is resident or by debit to the ACU dollar account and/or ACU euro account and/or ACU yen account of the AD maintained with the correspondent bank in that member country; payment in any freely convertible currency in all other cases; payment may be in freely convertible currency or through ACU mechanism for imports from Myanmar; in case of Nepal and Bhutan, payment may be in rupees. In case of Iran, payment for import in any freely convertible currency and/or in accordance with RBI directions; in all other cases as per RBI directions. However, all eligible CAT including trade transactions in euro are permitted to be settled outside the ACU mechanism from July 1, 2016, until further notice. Further, effective July 11, 2022, an additional arrangement has been put in place for international trade transactions for invoicing, payment, and settlement in INR. Before putting in place this mechanism, AD banks must require prior approval from the Foreign Exchange Department of RBI, Central Office at Mumbai. Mechanisms are (i) invoicing: all exports and imports under this arrangement may be denominated and invoiced in rupee (INR); (ii) exchange rate: exchange rate between the currencies of the two trading partner countries may be market determined; and (iii) settlement: the settlement of trade transactions under this arrangement must take place in INR. (b) For all other countries (other than ACU countries), payment in rupees from account of a bank situated in any country other than a member country of the ACU or payment in any freely convertible currency. In addition to the above, effective July 8, 2022, in the case of Sri Lanka, all eligible CAT including trade transactions have been allowed to be settled in any permitted currency outside the ACU mechanism until further notice. (c) Payment for import to be made to third party is permitted as per RBI guidelines as per A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 70 of November 8, 2013. (d) Payment for import may be made through international card in rupees from international credit card (ICC)/debit card through the credit/debit card servicing bank in India against the charge slip signed by the importer as prescribed by Reserve Bank from time to time subject to regulatory conditions. Payment for import may also be made by credit to SNRR account maintained by the overseas seller in India. These guidelines are specified under Notification No. FEMA 14(R)/2016-RB of May 2, 2016. (4) Settlement of export and import transactions where the invoicing is in a freely convertible currency and the settlement takes place in the currency of the beneficiary, which though convertible does not have a direct exchange rate, is permitted subject to regulatory requirements. These guidelines are specified in A.P. (DIR Series) Circular No. 42 of February 4, 2016.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The FEM (NDI) Rules, 2019 (NDI Rules), of October 17, 2019, as amended from time to time, issued by the Central Government, regulate investments in India by person resident outside India. FEM (Mode of Payment and Reporting of NDI) Regulations, 2019, of October 17, 2019, issued by the RBI regulates mode of payment and reporting requirements for investment in India by a person resident outside India. The FEM (Debt Instruments) Regulations, 2019, regulate investments in India by a person resident outside India, with respect to debt instruments. On October 17, 2019, the FEM (transfer or issue of security by a person resident outside India) Regulations, 2017, has been superseded by the FEM (NDI) Rules, 2019, and FEM (Debt Instruments) Regulations, 2019. Resident individuals may remit abroad within the limit equivalent of US$250,000 a financial year for all permissible capital transactions under the LRS.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Investments made under the NDI Rules by persons resident outside India are in general repatriable, except those made by NRIs/OCIs under Schedule IV. ECB proceeds meant for rupee expenditure should be repatriated immediately for credit to their rupee accounts with AD Category-I banks in India. Proceeds meant only for foreign currency expenditures may be retained abroad until used.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	A person resident outside India may purchase equity instruments (equity shares; including partly paid-up equity shares; fully and mandatorily convertible debentures (CCDs) which are fully paid; fully and mandatorily convertible preference shares; which are fully paid; and share warrants;) issued by an Indian company in permitted sectors subject to entry route, sectoral cap/regulatory limits, and other attendant conditionalities. (The term “capital instruments” have been replaced with “equity instruments” in NDI Rules, 2019.) Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPIs) must register with the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) before they invest in the Indian capital market. (All categories of foreign institutional investors (FIIs) and subaccounts are merged into a single investor type, FPI.) Registered FPIs may invest in permissible equity and/or debt securities issued by an Indian company whose equity and/or debt is listed on recognized stock exchanges in India. Details of securities in which FPIs can invest are also provided in the SEBI (Foreign Portfolio Regulations), 2019. (NDI Rules and Debt Instruments Regulations are issued separately.)

The holdings of a single FPI or FPI group in an Indian company must be less than 10% of total paid-up capital on fully diluted basis. The aggregate limit for foreign investment by FPIs is the sectoral cap applicable to the investee company as laid out in paragraph 3(a)(iii) of Schedule I of the Non-debt Rules. However, the aggregate limit could be decreased by the Indian company to a lower threshold limit of 24% or 49% or 74% as deemed fit, with the approval of its Board of Directors and its General Body through a resolution and a special resolution, respectively, before March 31, 2020. The Indian company which has decreased its aggregate limit to 24% or 49% or 74% may increase such aggregate limit to 49% or 74% or the sectoral cap or statutory ceiling, respectively, as deemed fit, with the approval of its Board of Directors or its General Body through a resolution and a special resolution, respectively.

NRIs and OCIs may invest in equity instruments. Individual NRIs and OCIs may purchase equity instruments of Indian companies listed on the stock exchange, up to 5% of the paid-up capital on fully diluted basis of the Indian company. The aggregate limit for investment by all NRIs and OCIs may not exceed 10% of the paid-up capital on fully convertible basis of the Indian company. This limit may be raised to 24% through a special resolution passed by the Board of Directors followed by an extraordinary general meeting. Provided also that the aggregate limit with respect to an Indian company in a sector where FDI is prohibited must be 24%.
Nonresidents, including NRIs and OCIs, may invest in equity instruments of a listed Indian company on the stock exchange through a registered broker under the FDI scheme, provided they have already acquired and continue to hold control in accordance with SEBI (Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeover) regulations. Pricing norms for transfer of equity instruments between residents and nonresidents for listed companies must comply with SEBI's guidelines and for unlisted companies internationally accepted pricing methodology for valuation of shares done on arm's length basis.
A person resident outside India (other than a citizen of Pakistan or Bangladesh) or an entity incorporated outside India (other than an entity in Pakistan or Bangladesh), not being a FPI or Foreign Venture Capital Investor (FVCI) registered in accordance with SEBI guidelines, may contribute foreign capital either by way of capital contribution or by way of acquisition/transfer of profit shares in the capital structure of a Limited Liability Partnership, subject to the terms and conditions as specified in Schedule VI of the FEM (NDI) Rules, 2019.

Equity instruments of Indian companies held by nonresidents under an FDI arrangement may be sold on the stock exchange. Transfers to residents under private arrangements (off market) do not require RBI permission and may be handled by authorized banks in accordance with the requirements in the regulations, including pricing and reporting requirements. Transfers of sale proceeds are permitted, subject to payment of applicable tax, provided no controls were imposed on the repatriation of sale proceeds at the time of the original investment. Transfers between two nonresidents generally do not require any approval, except for the sector where the investment is under Government route. A FVCI may make investments in the manner and subject to the terms and conditions specified in Schedule VII of FEM (NDI) Rules, 2019 and SEBI (FVCI) Regulations, 2000.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	NDI Rules permit disinvestment by persons resident outside India subject to pricing guidelines and reporting requirements. However, there is no provision for issue of stocks by nonresidents under the said Rules.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident individuals may remit abroad up to the equivalent of US$250,000 a financial year for any permissible capital transaction under LRS. General permission has been granted by the RBI to residents to hold, own, transfer, or invest in foreign currency or foreign securities outside India, if the currency or security was acquired or held by the person while residing outside India or received through inheritance from a person residing outside India. SEBI-registered venture capital funds and AIFs may invest in equity and equity-linked instruments of foreign venture capital undertaking, subject to an overall limit of US$1,500 million and SEBI regulations. Individual venture capital fund/AIF limits are set by the SEBI, subject to its terms and conditions. Residents may invest in companies listed or otherwise abroad on recognized stock exchanges up to an overall limit of US$250,000 in a financial year under the LRS. A listed Indian company may invest in (1) shares of an overseas company listed on a recognized stock exchange and (2) rated bonds/fixed-income securities issued by companies in up to 50% of its net worth on the date of its latest audited balance sheet. ADs may allow remittances by resident employees of foreign companies and their JVs or wholly owned subsidiaries in which the foreign company holds equity, either directly or indirectly, for acquisition of shares of the foreign company under an employee stock option plan, subject to certain conditions. ADs may also allow remittances from resident individuals for acquisition of qualified shares for the position of director in the overseas company according to the laws of the host country. The limit of these remittances is within the overall ceiling prescribed for resident individuals under the LRS in effect at the time of acquisition. Resident individuals may acquire shares of a foreign entity in part/full consideration of professional services rendered to the foreign company or in lieu of director's remuneration within the overall ceiling under the LRS in effect at the time of acquisition.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	The RBI allows ADs to grant rupee loans to residents against guarantees from nonresidents under the general permission. Borrowing and lending between two residents are not affected by any provisions of the FEMA, 1999. If a rupee loan is granted against a guarantee by a nonresident, there is no transaction involving foreign exchange until the guarantee is invoked and the nonresident guarantor is required to meet the liability under the guarantee. Nonresident guarantees under the general permission are allowed for non-fund-based facilities (such as LCs and guarantees) between two residents. Credit enhancement by eligible nonresident entities has been extended to domestic debt raised through issues of capital market instruments, such as debentures and bonds, by Indian companies in all sectors.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	ODI means investment by way of acquisition of unlisted equity capital of a foreign entity, or subscription as a part of the memorandum of association of a foreign entity, or investment in 10%, or more of the paid-up equity capital of a listed foreign entity or investment with control where investment is less than 10% of the paid-up equity capital of a listed foreign entity. For the purposes of this clause, where an investment by a person resident in India in the equity capital of a foreign entity is classified as ODI, such investment must continue to be treated as ODI even if the investment falls to a level below 10% of the paid-up equity capital or such person loses control in the foreign entity. An Indian Entity (a company defined under the Companies Act, 2013 (18 of 2013); a body corporate incorporated by any law for the time being in force; a Limited Liability Partnership duly formed and incorporated under the Limited Liability Partnership Act, 2008 (6 of 2009); and a partnership firm registered under the Indian Partnership Act, 1932 (9 of 1932) may make ODI by undertaking financial commitment in the form of equity.

Financial commitment by Indian entity by modes other than equity capital:

The Indian Entity may lend or invest in any debt instrument issued by a foreign entity or extend non-fund-based commitment to or on behalf of a foreign entity including overseas step-down subsidiaries of such Indian entity within prescribed financial commitment limit.

A person resident in India making Overseas Investment may make payment by remittance made through banking channels; from funds held in an account maintained in accordance with the provisions of the Act; by swap of securities; and by using the proceeds of ADRs or GDRs or stock-swap of such receipts or ECBs raised in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the rules and regulations made thereunder for making ODI or financial commitment by way of debt by an Indian entity.

Where a person resident in India acquires equity capital by way of subscription to an issue or by way of purchase from a person resident outside India or where a person resident outside India acquires equity capital by way of purchase from a person resident in India, and where such equity capital is reckoned as ODI, the payment of amount of consideration for the equity capital acquired may be deferred for such definite period from the date of the agreement.

Any person resident in India who has an account appearing as a non-performing asset; or is classified as a willful defaulter by any bank; or is under investigation by a financial service regulator or by investigative agencies in India, namely, the Central Bureau of Investigation or Directorate of Enforcement or Serious Frauds Investigation Office, must, before making any financial commitment or undertaking disinvestment, obtain a No Objection Certificate from the lender bank or regulatory body or investigative agency by making an application in writing to such bank or regulatory body or investigative agency concerned.

A person resident in India holding equity capital may transfer such investment to a person resident inside/outside India. The transferor, in case of full disinvestment other than by way of liquidation, may not have any dues outstanding for receipt, which such transferor is entitled to receive from the foreign entity as an investor in equity capital and debt and the transferor, in case of any disinvestment must have stayed invested for at least one year from the date of making ODI.

In case the transfer of investment is on account of merger, amalgamation or demerger or on account of buyback of foreign securities, such transfer or liquidation in case of liquidation of the foreign entity, must have the approval of the competent authority as per the applicable laws in India or the laws of the host country or host jurisdiction.

A person resident in India who has made ODI in a foreign entity may permit restructuring of the balance sheet by such foreign entity, which has been incurring losses for the previous two years as evidenced by its last audited balance sheets, subject to ensuring compliance with reporting, documentation requirements and subject to the diminution in the total value of the outstanding dues toward such person resident in India on account of investment in equity and debt, after such restructuring not exceeding the proportionate amount of the accumulated losses.

No person resident in India must make ODI in a foreign entity engaged in real estate activity; gambling in any form; and dealing with financial products linked to the Indian rupee without specific approval of the Reserve Bank.

An Indian entity may make ODI by way of investment in equity capital for the purpose of undertaking bona fide business activity in the manner and subject to the limits and conditions provided. The ODI may be made or held by way of subscription as part of memorandum of association or purchase of equity capital, listed or unlisted; acquisition through bidding or tender procedure; acquisition of equity capital by way of rights issue or allotment of bonus shares; capitalization, within the time period, if any, specified for realization under the Act, of any amount due toward the Indian entity from the foreign entity, the remittance of which is permitted under the Act or does not require prior permission of the Central Government or the Reserve Bank under the Act or any rules or regulations made or directions issued thereunder; the swap of securities; and merger, demerger, amalgamation or any scheme of arrangement as per the applicable laws in India or laws of the host country or the host jurisdiction.

An Indian entity engaged in financial services activity in India may make ODI in a foreign entity, which is directly or indirectly engaged in financial services activity, subject to prescribed conditions.

An Indian entity not engaged in financial services activity in India may make ODI in a foreign entity, which is directly or indirectly engaged in financial services activity, except banking or insurance, subject to prescribed conditions.

The total financial commitment made by an Indian entity in all the foreign entities taken together at the time of undertaking such commitment may not exceed 400% of its net worth as on the date of the last audited balance sheet or as directed by the Reserve Bank, in consultation with Central Government from time to time.

Any resident individual may make ODI by way of investment in equity capital subject to the overall ceiling under the LRS of the Reserve Bank and in the manner prescribed under the ODI Rules.

A resident individual may make or hold Overseas Investment by way of ODI in an operating foreign entity not engaged in financial services activity and which does not have subsidiary or step-down subsidiary where the resident individual has control in the foreign entity. ODI by a resident individual may be by way of capitalization, within the time period, if any, specified for realization under the Act, of any amount due from the foreign entity the remittance of which is permitted under the Act or does not require prior permission of the Central Government or the Reserve Bank; swap of securities on account of a merger, demerger, amalgamation or liquidation; acquisition of equity capital through rights issue or allotment of bonus shares; gift as per the conditions prescribed; inheritance; acquisition of sweat equity shares; acquisition of minimum qualification shares issued for holding a management post in a foreign entity; acquisition of shares or interest under Employee Stock Ownership Plan or Employee Benefits Scheme. Any person being a registered Trust or a registered Society engaged in the educational sector or which has set up hospitals in India may make ODI in a foreign entity with the prior approval of the Reserve Bank, subject to the prescribed conditions. A MF or venture capital fund or AIF may acquire or transfer foreign securities as stipulated by SEBI from time to time in accordance with the provisions of the ODI rules. Any person, being a SEBI-approved clearing corporation of a stock exchange and its clearing members, may acquire, hold and transfer foreign securities, offered as collateral by FPIs and, subject to the guidelines issued by the SEBI from time to time. A domestic depository may acquire, hold and transfer foreign securities of a foreign entity, being the underlying security to issue Indian Depository Receipts as may be authorized by such foreign entity or its overseas custodian bank and the person investing in Indian Depository Receipts may either sell or continue to hold foreign securities in accordance with the prescribed conditions. An AD bank including its overseas branch may acquire or transfer foreign securities in accordance with the terms of the host country or host jurisdiction, as the case may be, in the normal course of its banking business. A person resident in India may make Overseas Investment in an IFSC in India within the limits provided and conditions prescribed. A person resident in India who does not submit the evidence of investment within the time specified or does not make any filing within the time specified may make such submission or filing, as the case may be, along with Late Submission Fee within such period, provided such facility can be availed within a maximum period of three years from the due date of such submission or filing. A person resident in India who has made a financial commitment in a foreign entity in accordance with the Act or rules or regulations made thereunder, may not make any further financial commitment, whether fund-based or non-fund-based, directly or indirectly, toward such foreign entity or transfer such investment till any delay in reporting is regularized.

MFs for hedging. However, MF schemes may invest in unlisted non-convertible debentures up to a maximum of 10% of the debt portfolio of the scheme subject to certain conditions.

All investments by a MF scheme in equity shares and equity-related instruments must only be made, provided such securities are listed or to be listed.

Investment in unrated debt and money market instruments, other than G-Secs, treasury bills, and derivative products such as interest rate swaps and IRF by MF schemes is capped at 5%.

Restrictions have been specified on Investment in debt instruments having Structured Obligations/Credit Enhancements.
Restrictions have been specified on Investment in debt instruments with special features like subordination to equity (loss absorption before equity) and/or convertible to equity on trigger of a pre-specified event for loss absorption. MF under all its schemes should not own more than 10% of such instruments issued by a single issuer and having special features as mentioned above, and an individual MF scheme may not invest more than 10% of its NAV in such instruments with special features as mentioned above and more than 5% of its NAV in such instruments issued by a single issuer.

A MF scheme may not invest more than 10% of its NAV in debt instruments comprising money market instruments and non-money market instruments issued by a single issuer which are rated not below investment grade by a credit rating agency authorized to carry out such activity. The limit may be raised to 12%, subject to prior approval by the Board of Trustees and the Board of Directors of the asset management company (AMC).

A MF under all its schemes should not own more than 10% of units issued by a single issuer of Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT) and Infrastructure Investment Trust (InvIT), and an individual MF scheme may not invest more than 10% of its NAV in the units of REIT and InvIT, and more than 5% of its NAV in the units of REIT and InvIT issued by a single issuer.

MF schemes are also subject to a limit on exposures to a single sector in debt-oriented MF schemes (excluding investments in bank CDs, collateralized borrowing and lending obligation (CBLO), G-Secs, T-Bills, and AAA-rated securities issued by Public Financial Institutions, Public Sector Banks, and short-term deposits of scheduled commercial banks) set at 20% of NAV. A further exposure to the financial services sector (over the 20% limit), but not exceeding 10% of the scheme's NAV, is allowed only via an increase in exposure to Housing Finance Companies (HFCs), provided the HFCs are rated at AA or above and are registered under Section 29A of the National Housing Bank, 1987. Further, an additional exposure of 5% of the net assets of the scheme has been allowed for investments in securitized debt instruments based on retail housing loan portfolio and/or affordable housing loan portfolio, and the aggregate investment exposure to HFCs cannot exceed 20%. The additional exposure limits provided for HFCs in financial services sector have been capped at 10%.

A MF scheme should not park more than 10% of NAV in short-term deposits at a single scheduled commercial bank including its subsidiaries. No MF scheme must park more than 15% of their net assets in short-term deposits of all scheduled commercial banks put together. This limit, however, may be raised to 20% with prior approval of the Trustees. No MF under all its schemes should own more than 10% of any company's paid-up capital carrying voting rights. No MF scheme must make any investment in: (1) any unlisted security of an associate or group company of the sponsor or (2) any security issued by way of private placement by an associate or group company of the sponsor or (3) the listed securities of group companies of the sponsor which is in excess of 25% of the net assets. No MF scheme must invest more than 10% of its NAV in the equity shares or equity-related instruments of any company. MFs/AMCs must ensure that total exposure of debt schemes of MFs in a group (excluding investments in securities issued by Public Sector Units, Public Financial Institutions, and Public Sector Banks) do not exceed 20% of the net assets of the scheme. Such investment limit may be extended to 25% of the net assets of the scheme with the prior approval of the Board of Trustees. However, the investments by debt MF schemes in debt and money market instruments of group companies of both the sponsor and the AMC may not exceed 10% of the net assets of the scheme. Such investment limit may be extended to 15% of the net assets of the scheme with the prior approval of the Board of Trustees. A MF scheme's exposure to repo transactions in corporate debt securities is capped at 10% of the scheme's NAV. The cumulative exposure through repo transactions in corporate debt securities, equity, debt, and derivatives should not exceed 100% of the scheme's NAV. MF schemes may participate in exchange-traded currency derivatives (ETCDs) of a particular goods (single), not exceeding 10% of NAV of the scheme. However, the limit of 10% is not applicable for investments through gold ETFs in ETCDs having gold as underlying. In case of multi-assets allocation schemes, the exposure to ETCDs may not be more than 30% of the NAV of the scheme. In case of other hybrid schemes excluding multi-assets allocation scheme, the participation in ETCDs may not exceed 10% of NAV of the scheme.

however, may intervene—as part of a policy mix—whenever necessary to achieve the inflation target and to maintain macroeconomic stability.

The global economy continued facing challenges in 2022. Geopolitical tensions exacerbated economic fragmentation and undermined the economic outlook, while elevating global financial market uncertainty. In general, the global economy in 2022 faced five serious challenges that could potentially downgrade the world economic outlook, including the emerging risk of recession and high inflation (reflation) if the fragmentation remains unchecked. The five challenges were as follows: (1) moderating world economic growth (slow growth); (2) soaring inflation because of global food and energy prices (high inflation); (3) higher for longer monetary policy rates; (4) strong US dollar with broad-based pressures on world currencies; and (5) rebalancing of global investor funds towards liquid assets (cash is king). Such challenges demanded close monitoring and an optimal response because of the ongoing risk of stagflation and reflation. In addition, the global economic challenges also demanded strong international cooperation regionally and multilaterally.

In 2022, Indonesia's Balance of Payments (BOP) recorded a surplus, bolstered by stronger export performance that reinforced external sector resilience. The current account surplus in 2022 increased significantly to US$13.2 billion (1.0% of GDP) from US$3.5 billion (0.3% of GDP) in 2021. This was primarily attributable to an uptick of exports in line with persistently high international commodity prices and strong demand for Indonesian commodities, despite higher imports to fuel the domestic economic recovery. Meanwhile, the capital and financial account in 2022 recorded an US$8.9 billion deficit given elevated global financial market uncertainty. Consequently, the overall BOP in 2022 booked a US$4.0 billion surplus, after recording a US$13.5 billion surplus in the previous year. Correspondingly, the position of reserve assets at the end of December 2022 stood at US$137.2 billion, equivalent to 6.0 months of imports or 5.9 months of imports and servicing short-term government external debt.

The BOP until the second quarter of 2023 remains maintained despite global uncertainty. The current account recorded a narrow deficit against a backdrop of lower international commodity prices and global economic moderation, coupled with increasing domestic demand. Meanwhile, the capital and financial account posted a deficit in line with elevated global financial market uncertainty. Consequently, Indonesia's BOP in the second quarter of 2023 recorded a US$7.4 billion deficit and the position of reserve assets at the end of June 2023 stood at US$137.5 billion, equivalent to 6.0 months of imports and servicing government external debt, which is well above the international adequacy standard of around 3 months of imports. Looking ahead, BOP performance in 2023 is forecast to remain sound, supported by a manageable current account maintained in the range of a 0.4% surplus to a 0.4% deficit of GDP.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The BI does not disclose data on its interventions.

Free floating

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Rates are as follows: The official foreign exchange reference rate is the Jakarta interbank spot dollar rate (JISDOR) for US dollars. The

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		JISDOR represents the weighted average of US dollar–rupiah spot transactions in the interbank market within a specific window, captured in real time through the BI monitoring system. The JISDOR has been published since May 20, 2013, and is intended to be a market reference for US dollar–rupiah spot transactions in the domestic market. The JISDOR is published on every Indonesian business day. The official foreign exchange reference rate for non–US dollar currencies is the midrate of other BI foreign exchange transaction rates. The JISDOR and other foreign exchange midrates are used for BI accounting purposes. The BI foreign exchange transaction rates represent the bid-ask prices of foreign exchange rates against rupiah used for BI transactions with the government and other parties. The BI announces these rates every Indonesian business day. Since May 20, 2013, the calculation of BI foreign exchange transaction rates has been based on the JISDOR. The BI does not publish banknote rates because banknote transactions with third parties are no longer provided.

Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	The BI's monetary policy framework continues to adhere to an inflation target as the overriding objective (inflation-targeting framework (ITF)). The ITF is implemented by applying policy interest rates as the monetary policy stance and money market benchmark rate (IndONIA) rates as operational targets. The experience of the 2008–2009 global financial crisis made the CB require sufficient flexibility to respond to the complexities of economic development and the strengthening role of the financial sector in influencing macroeconomic stability. Considering the lesson learned from the global financial crisis, the BI strengthened the ITF framework to the Flexible ITF, which continued to be based on important ITF elements such as public announcement of the inflation target and forward-looking monetary policy. The essence of the Flexible ITF is the flexibility to integrate monetary and financial system stability frameworks through a policy mix including monetary and macroprudential instruments, exchange rates, capital flows, and institutional strengthening, as well as optimal policy coordination and communication. This enhanced version is known as Central Bank Policy Mix, or Integrated Policy Framework. The annual inflation target for 2021 is 3.0% ± 1%. As stipulated in Regulation of the Minister of Finance No. 101/PMK.010/2021 of July 28, 2021, on the Inflation Target of Year 2022, Year 2023, and Year 2024, the government, in coordination with the BI, set the annual inflation target for 2022–2023 at 3.0% ± 1% and for 2024 at 2.5% ± 1%. The inflation target is year-over-year headline CPI inflation at the end of the year. The BI announces inflation target accomplishment through the BI Annual Report, which is publicly accessible. Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The inflation target is set by the government (MOF) in coordination with the BI. The inflation target is preceded by a discussion at the high-level meeting, attended by the BI governor and the government, represented by the MOF, the coordinating minister for economic affairs, and other relevant ministries and institutions. The target is based on consensus at the high-level meeting forum discussing current inflation conditions, the risk of inflation pressure in future, and the long-term inflation target. Furthermore, the BI addressed an official letter to the MOF for the issuance of regulations for setting the inflation target. If the inflation target is not achieved during any given year, the BI must issue an explanation to the government as material for open explanations presented jointly by the government and the BI to the Indonesian Parliament and the public. There is no operational freedom to decide the target, but under extraordinary conditions that render the inflation target unrealistic, the government may change it after coordinating with the BI.
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The annual inflation target for 2021 is 3.0% ± 1%. As stipulated in Regulation of the Minister of Finance No. 101/PMK.010/2021 of July 28, 2021, on the Inflation Target of Year 2022, Year 2023, and Year 2024, the government, in coordination with the BI, set the annual inflation target for 2022–2023 at 3.0% ± 1% and for 2024 at 2.5% ± 1%.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	Inflation is measured in the CPI and expressed in terms of year-over-year inflation at the end of the year. The CPI is officially released monthly by the Indonesia Statistics Agency (Statistics Indonesia, Badan Pusat Statistik). It is calculated based on the Cost of Living Survey conducted in 90 major cities across Indonesia.
Core inflation
Target horizon	No.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.	To achieve the overriding monetary policy objective, the BI has implemented an interest-based monetary policy framework. The monetary policy stance is reflected by setting the policy interest rate (BI seven-day reverse repo rate (BI7DRR)). At the operational level, BI7DRR is reflected in short-term money market interest rates, which are the operational targets of monetary policy. As of June 9,

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		2008, the BI uses the overnight interbank money market (PUAB O/N) interest rate as the operational target of monetary policy.
Policy rate	Yes.	The policy rate is the BI7DRR.
Target corridor band	No.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.	The BI communicates its monetary policy through various channels and publications, including press releases and press conferences after board meetings; the Monetary Policy Review/Report presenting the background for decisions made; Economic Report on Indonesia; and explanations provided directly to the public, the media, economic actors, market analysts, and academics.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The BI submits the Policy Accountability Report on a quarterly basis to the House of Representatives (DPR) as a form of accountability for carrying out the duties and authorities set out in the law. Accountability for monetary policy is carried out through written submissions and verbal explanations of the implementation of monetary policy each quarter and of specific aspects of monetary policy as may be deemed necessary. The Policy Accountability Report was also submitted to the government and made available to the public for the purposes of transparency and coordination. Moreover, the BI also conducts a hearing with the Parliament regarding the BI's annual budget.
Other	Yes.	The BI announces accountability for inflation target accomplishment through the BI Annual Report, Monetary Policy Review/Report, Indonesian Economic Report, Quarterly Report to the Indonesian Parliament, and press releases, which can be accessed publicly.
Transparency	Yes.	BI policy communications use several channels of communication; that is, press releases of decisions of the board meeting; a press conference after the board meeting; publication of policy reports—that is, the Monetary Policy Review/Report, Financial Stability Report, Economic Report on Indonesia, and so forth; a quarterly report to the Parliament as part of accountability based on the Central Bank Act; and policy dialogue with the Parliament. Monetary policy communications provide information about recent economic developments, policy decisions pursued by the BI, and the outlook for the economy. Such information is provided to the public, parliament, the media, business actors, market analysts, and academics.
Publication of votes	No.	Votes are not published. After board meetings, monetary policy decisions appear in the first paragraph of the press release. The paragraph outlines decisions made at the board meeting and reveals the policy direction that will be taken by the BI. There is no information published regarding voting of board members, whether on individual votes or on votes in favor or against a decision.
Publication of minutes	No.	Minutes are not published. The BI does not publish minutes for board meetings. All information regarding the meeting is published in a press release. Comprehensive information regarding economic development and prospects, as well as policy decisions, including background based on board meeting materials, is provided in monetary policy reviews and reports.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Inflation forecasts are published in the Monetary Policy Report every quarter, or four times a year. Inflation forecasts are also published in the Economic Report on Indonesia (annual publication) presenting

Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	Effective August 29, 2022, BI and Bank of Thailand (BOT) have implemented cross-border QR payment linkage. Effective May 8, 2023, BI and Bank Negara Malaysia (BNM) have implemented cross-border QR payment linkage. As of August 17, 2023, BI have initiated testing phase of cross-border QR payment linkage with Monetary Authority of Singapore following the success of cross-border QR payments linkages implementation with Thailand and Malaysia. The initiative is scheduled to be launched in November 2023. BI has established the framework of LCS based on appointed cross-currency dealers (ACCD) to promote the use of local currency for the settlement of current account transactions and direct investment between Indonesia and other counterpart countries. The framework is designed to enable businesses to settle their transactions with their partner in overseas using local currencies. Currently, BI has implemented maintains bilateral cooperation of LCS ACCD with BOT (2018), BNM (2018), Japan MOF (2020), and People's Bank of China (2021). In the LCS framework, BI and monetary authorities of partner countries will appoint some banks in each country, as ACCD banks, to facilitate direct trading of local currencies and obtain foreign exchange administration (FEA) flexibilities. Furthermore, the implementation of LCS using local currency to settle such transactions is not obligatory, mandatory but remains as an option.

		Network (APN) members including Thailand, Philippines, South Korea, and Vietnam for cross-border automated teller machine (ATM) cash withdrawals and inquiry service. BI, BNM, Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP), Monetary Authority of Singapore, and BOT have agreed to strengthen and enhance cooperation on payment connectivity to support faster, cheaper, more transparent, and more inclusive cross-border payments. A MoU on Cooperation in Regional Payment Connectivity was signed on November 14, 2022. On August 25, 2023, State Bank of Vietnam (SBV) has officially joined the Regional Payment Connectivity initiative.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	There are barter arrangements as part of bids for government-sponsored construction and procurement projects whose import components are valued at more than Rp 500 million.
Administration of control	Yes.	Under Act No. 24 of 1999 on the Foreign Exchange Activities and Exchange Rate System, residents must submit information and data on foreign exchange activities, directly or through another party stipulated by the BI. The implementation of the provision is prescribed in BI regulations: BI Regulation No. 21/15/PBI/2019 concerning the Monitoring of Foreign Exchange Flow of Banks and Customers stipulates that banks must submit complete, accurate, and timely information and data on foreign exchange flows to the BI. The regulation also states that bank customers must submit supporting documents to the bank for outgoing foreign currency transfers exceeding US$100,000 or its equivalent. BI Regulation No. 21/15/PBI/2019 replaces BI Regulation No. 18/10/PBI/2016 to encourage transparency and improve the availability of information on foreign exchange activities through rearrangement of provisions concerning data submission and information, including information related to foreign exchange expenditures for import payments. BI Regulation No. 16/22/PBI/2014 requires banks and nonbank corporate entities (reporters) to provide complete, accurate, and timely reports to the BI. This regulation updated BI Regulation No. 14/21/PBI/2012, which was adopted as the legal basis for integration of the reporting system for activity in foreign exchange flows with the reporting system for external debt to improve effectiveness and efficiency in monitoring activity in foreign exchange flows by residents. The regulation requires reporters (including state-owned and private enterprises) to report all offshore commercial borrowing, and individuals must report commercial offshore borrowing equivalent to US$200,000 or more. The regulation also requires nonbank corporations that have external debt in foreign currency to implement prudential principles in addition to their reports on foreign exchange flows. BI Regulation No. 21/2/PBI/2019 concerning the Reporting of Foreign Exchange Activities revokes and replaces BI Regulation No. 16/22/PBI/2014, specifically regarding reporting of foreign exchange activities. The new regulation also aims to strengthen the implementation of offshore loans and banks' other foreign exchange obligations. Pursuant to Article 31 of BI Regulation concerning Non-Bank Foreign Exchange Business Activities, a money changer must submit Financing requirements for imports	No.	Requirements generally are set by commercial banks on the basis of their assessment.

Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.	Domiciliation is not required. Instead, BI regulations stipulate that release of foreign exchange is subject to underlying documentation of import transactions.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.	Import payments may be made on either an LC or a non-LC basis depending on the agreement between exporters and importers.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Cement and asbestos sheets, dry batteries, steel slabs, low-voltage electric cords, and electric light bulbs are subject to quality control. BI regulations stipulate that release of foreign exchange is subject to underlying documentation of import transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports from countries against which the UN has imposed a trade embargo are prohibited, as are imports from all sources of most secondhand goods and of certain other products. However, secondhand engines, their parts, and other capital goods may be imported by industrial firms for their own use or for reconditioning, in accordance with the guidelines of the Ministry of Trade (MOT). Certain categories of agricultural imports, including foodstuffs, beverages, and fruits, may be imported only by registered importers designated by the MOT. The procurement policies of companies approved for the importation of fruit, alcoholic beverages, and chicken are evaluated annually by the government, although explicit quantitative restrictions are not placed on these products. There is an import ban on rice. The MOT defines the requirements for importers. Companies that meet the requirements must apply and are designated registered importers. These requirements aim to make import administration more orderly. Only the government-owned Bulog (Indonesian Bureau of Logistics, Badan Urusan Logistik/Bulog) may import medium-grade rice. Premium rice may be imported by licensed importers.
Open general licenses	Yes.	There is a registry of authorized importers that includes only Indonesian nationals, although foreign investors are permitted to import the items required for their own projects. Although imports are subject to licensing requirements, most of them are classified under the general importer license.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In April 2022, Indonesia has implemented harmonized system 2022 based on World Customs Organization (WCO) amendment, so that all Minister of Finance Regulations related to tariffs are re-stipulated by Minister of Finance Regulation based on harmonized system

		2022, including MFN and preferential import duty rates. Generally, MFN import duties range from 0% to 5% except for some sensitive products such as automotive or alcohol. Certain products are given preferential duty within the framework of (1) free trade areas (FTA) such as AFTA (ASEAN Trade in Goods Agreement), ASEAN–Australia–New Zealand Free Trade Area, ASEAN–China Free Trade Area, ASEAN–India Free Trade Area, and ASEAN–Hong Kong, China Free Trade Agreement; (2) Economic Partnership Agreement (CEP) such as ASEAN–Japan Comprehensive Economic Partnership, Indonesia–Japan Economic Partnership Agreement, Indonesia–Australia Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement, and Indonesia–European Free Trade Association Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (IEFTA-CEPA); (3) Preferential Trade Agreement (PTA) such as Indonesia–Pakistan Preferential Trade Agreement, Developing-8 Preferential Trade Agreement, and Indonesia-Mozambique Preferential Trade Agreement; and (4) MoU such as MoU Indonesia–Palestine. The government has lowered the limit on the value of imported goods subject to import duties from US$75 a shipment to US$3 a shipment according to Minister of Finance Regulation No. 199 of 2020.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Import taxes are collected through designated foreign exchange banks authorized by the MOF.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Imports of certain goods remain restricted to approved importers. The government enterprise Pertamina imports lubricating oil and lubricating grease, and the Indonesian state-owned company Dahana imports ammunition and gel explosives. Licensed importers are permitted to import lubricating grease (as stated in the joint agreement between the Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources, MOF, and MOT Republic of Indonesia Nos. 1905 K/34/MEM/2001, 426/KMK.01/2001, and 233/MPP/Kep/7/2001). Imports of ammunition and gel explosives are not limited to Dahana. Other companies have been appointed to import ammunition and gel explosives in the interest of national security.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	All export proceeds must be received through the Indonesian banking system. Export proceeds derived from natural resource exports must be received in a special account (Reksus DHE SDA -Export Proceeds from Natural Resources Export Goods). Effective August 1, 2023, with the Government Regulation No.36 of 2023, mandates that for natural resource exports proceeds valued more than US$250,000 or the equivalent (fob), 30 percent (net of the exporter's foreign exchange obligations) be repatriated and retained within the Indonesian financial system for at least three months. There is still no obligation to convert the foreign exchange to domestic currency.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.

Exports are prohibited to countries against which the UN has imposed a trade embargo, as are exports to all countries of certain categories of unprocessed or low-quality rubber, brass, and copper scrap (except from the island of Irian Jaya), iron scrap, steel scrap, and antiques of cultural value. Exporters are required to obtain trade permits issued by the MOT.
Without quotas	Yes.	To meet domestic demand and encourage domestic processing of certain raw materials, exports of certain domestically produced commodities must have MOT authorization. Items affected by such controls include clove seeds, logs, fertilizer, cement, iron for construction reinforcement, automobile tires, paper, asphalt, stearin, cattle, salt, wheat flour, maize, soybeans, rice, copra, olein, raw rattan, meat, and all goods produced from subsidized raw materials. Concern about domestic price stability sometimes leads to the suspension of exports of various items in this category.
With quotas	Yes.	Manioc may be exported only by approved exporters. Textiles and textile products subject to import quotas in the consumer countries may be exported only by approved textile exporters, who may transfer their allocated quotas to other approved exporters through the Indonesian Commodity Exchange Board (ICEB, Bursa Komoditi Indonesia).
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Taxes are collected through designated banks authorized by the MOF.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes are imposed on skins (bovine/buffalo, goat/sheep), timber, cocoa, mineral concentrates, palm and crude palm oil and its derivatives, and used cooking oil.

Capital Transactions

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	As of July 4, 2022, according to BI Regulation No. 24/7/PBI/2022, banks are prohibited from (1) overdraft/lending/credit for foreign exchange transaction against rupiah, (2) overdraft/lending/credit in rupiah or foreign exchange to nonresident, except for noncash loans or guarantees with certain requirements, syndicated loans led by offshore banks with certain criteria, credit cards, local currency transaction scheme, and personal loans used domestically, (3) buying securities in rupiah issued by nonresident, except for related trade activities with Indonesia and domestic trade activities, overseas bank draft for the benefit of Indonesian migrant workers, and the rupiah funds received in Indonesia by residents, (4) investment in rupiah to nonresident, and (5) rupiah transfer outside Indonesia jurisdiction (overseas).
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	BI Regulation No. 16/10/PBI/2014, concerning Receipt of Export Proceeds and Withdrawal of Foreign Exchange from External Debt, has been replaced by BI Regulation No. 17/23/PBI/2015. BI Circular Letter No. 16/9/DSta of May 26, 2014, as provisions of BI Regulation No. 16/10/PBI/2014, remains the guideline for technical processes—for example, requirements for receipt of export proceeds, supporting documents and information submission, and sanction procedures. The purpose of the regulation is to ensure receipt of export proceeds through the Indonesian banking system. These funds need not be kept in a domestic bank, and there is no restriction on subsequent transfers abroad. There is also no obligation to convert the foreign exchange to domestic currency.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Pension funds may not invest in securities abroad, and collective investment scheme (CIS) mutual funds may invest abroad only up to 15% of their NAV. Protected mutual funds and guaranteed mutual funds may invest up to 30% of their NAV abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	No controls apply as long as the shares are not listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange. Securities listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange must comply with the Capital Market Law and with the requirement concerning the maximum percentage of foreign ownership of shares. OJK Regulation No. 8/POJK.04/2020 concerning the Issuance of FDRs requires issuers or public companies wishing to issue FDRs to submit to OJK disclosure of information relating to the FDRs' issuance plan. The information must include the involvement of the issuers or public companies in the FDRs' issuance and the requirements issuers or public companies must fulfill for FDR issuance. Examples of FDRs are American depositary receipts (ADRs), Singapore depositary receipts (SDRs), and dan global depositary receipts (GDRs). Obligation to disclose material information is also regulated in OJK Regulation No. 31/POJK.04/2015 concerning Disclosure of Information or Material Facts by Issuers or Public Companies. If the FDR issuance meets the criteria of public offering as stipulated in the Capital Market Law, the issuers must follow the provisions of the public offering as set forth in, among others, Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement, Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities and/or Sukuk, and OJK Regulation No. 8/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus and Brief Prospectus for Public Offering of Equity Securities.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	In general, government bonds are issued in the primary market only through predetermined primary dealers. Nonresidents may purchase government bonds issued in the primary market through local primary dealers without limitation. In the secondary market, both resident and nonresident investors may purchase government bonds freely. However, government bonds issued specifically for individual and retail investors, called Indonesian retail bonds (in Indonesian, Obligasi Negara Ritel) and retail sukuk (in Indonedian, Sukuk Ritel), may be purchased in the primary market only by Indonesian investors through a predetermined selling agent. Since 2018, those retail instruments may only be purchased by resident investors, both individual and institutional, in the secondary market. No regulation explicitly limits the purchase of corporate bonds locally by nonresidents. Investment in other domestic bond markets and debt securities (that is, corporate bonds, commercial paper (CP), and CDs) is not clearly regulated in the context of nonresident transactions—thus, such transactions are carried out in practice and are considered free of capital controls. • Regarding CP, the regulation lies with BI, while CDs are regulated by the OJK Banking Sector Supervision Division.

		OJK has issued regulations regarding Medium Term Notes, namely Debt Securities issued without a Public Offering, namely OJK Regulation No. 30/POJK.04/2019 concerning the Issuance of Debt Securities and/or Sukuk (EBUS) Conducted Without a Public Offering. Article 7 states that EBUS without a public offering is prohibited from being sold to other than professional investors. Article 8 (1) Parties who wish to purchase EBUS without a Public Offering are required to declare that they have fulfilled the criteria as a Professional Investor to: (a) Issuer; or b. Issuer Management for Issuer who use Issuer Management. (2) The Professional Investor Statement as intended in paragraph (1) is an inseparable part of the EBUS order form without a Public Offering. (3) The Issuer or Issuance Manager is obliged to use information from statements made by Professional Financiers to ensure that parties purchasing EBUS Without a Public Offering meet the Professional Financiers' criteria for the purpose of purchasing Securities, unless it is known and supported by sufficient evidence that the statement is not Correct. From the provisions above, nonresidents who meet the category of global professional investors can purchase bonds/sukuk offered in accordance with OJK Regulation No. 30/POJK.04/2019 offered in Indonesia.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are no regulations concerning the sale of bonds and other debt securities locally by nonresidents, and thus this type of activity is considered to be free of capital controls. The regulations on the issuance of bonds do not differentiate between residents and nonresidents and, therefore, this type of activity is also considered to be free of capital controls. Clarification of Article 1 Paragraph 15 of Law No. 8 of 1995 concerning the Capital Market states that “An ‘offering’ within the territory of the Republic of Indonesia includes both domestic and foreign issuers, as well as offerings to both domestic and foreign investors, in compliance with the disclosure principle.” According to this condition, the public offering must be handled by professionals registered in the capital market as regulated in Article 64 of the Capital Market Law and other provisions in the capital market regulations, among others: Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement. Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities and/or Sukuk, and OJK Regulation No. 9/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus and Brief Prospectus for Public Offering of Debt Securities. An alternative to direct public offering is publication of IDRs as stipulated in Rule No. IX.A.10 of Public Offerings of IDRs.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Purchases of bonds and other debt securities abroad are regulated only for pension funds, which may not invest in securities abroad, and domestic mutual fund companies as follows: CIS mutual funds may invest abroad up to 15% of their NAV, and protected mutual funds and guaranteed mutual funds may invest up to 30% of their NAV abroad, for prudential purposes. No regulations explicitly limit purchases abroad by other resident investors.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The sale of bonds or other debt securities abroad by residents is not clearly regulated and is considered free of capital controls. The issuance of bonds or other debt securities abroad is subject to the same regulations that apply to resident investors who issue these securities locally, and in this respect, this activity is considered to be free of capital controls, with the exception of issuance of securities with maturities of more than one year, which is subject to BI approval. However, the issuer under the supervision of Indonesia's FSA must fulfill the principles of disclosure, which are regulated by the FSA, among others, giving notice of a public offering abroad as stipulated in OJK Regulation No. 31/POJK.04/2015 concerning Disclosure of Information or Material Facts by Issuer or Public Company. Furthermore, if the issuance of securities is in the form of a public offering, the issuer must follow the provisions of the public offering as set forth in, among others, Rule No. IX.A.1 concerning General Provisions of Registration Statement, Rule No. IX.A.2 concerning Registration Procedures for Public Offering, OJK Regulation No. 7/POJK.04/2017 concerning Registration Statement Documents for Public Offering of Equity and Debt Securities and/or Sukuk, and OJK Regulation No. 9/POJK.04/2017 concerning Form and Content of a Prospectus and Brief Prospectus for Public Offering of Debt Securities. The government is able to issue the global bonds in any currency and/or repurchase the global bonds. Global bond issuance and/or repurchase is based on international market standards. The government is able to sell the global bonds to individuals who are Indonesian citizens (residents) as well as foreign nationals (nonresidents) wherever they are domiciled, companies, joint ventures, associations, or organized groups, either Indonesian or foreigners, wherever they are located.

Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	No.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Under Presidential Regulation No. 10 of 2021 on Investment Business Activities Junto Presidential Regulation No. 49 of 2021, permitted and restricted sectors have been simplified, and instead of navigating a long list of businesses that foreign investors cannot invest in, they can now target the desired business and comply with the necessary conditions. All business sectors on the investment business activities list are open to foreign investment unless expressly prohibited; can be carried out only by the central government; or are allocated to, or require partnership with, cooperatives and micro-, small-, and medium-sized enterprises (MSMEs). As on the previous Daftar Negatif Investasi (DNI), the list of business sectors in investment business activities refers to the classification of sectors set out in the Indonesian business sector classifications. Presidential Regulation No. 10 of 2021 Junto Presidential Regulation No. 49 of 2021 includes three appendixes. Appendix I, List of Priority Business Activities, lists business activities that satisfy the following criteria: (1) nationally strategic project/program; (2) capital-intensive; (3) labor-intensive; (4) advanced technology; (5) pioneer industry; (6) export oriented; and/or (7) oriented toward research, development, and innovation activities. This list includes groups of business activities in important sectors (transportation, energy, distribution, construction services, media, telecommunications) eligible for fiscal incentives of tax allowance, tax holiday, or investment allowance. Appendix I is not an exhaustive list: there are still available fiscal incentives in accordance with the provisions of laws and regulations—among them, super tax deduction for vocational expenses, super tax deduction for research and development expenses, import duty exemption for the importation of capital goods for the power plant industry, import duty exemption for the importation of machinery and raw and auxiliary materials for manufacturing and selected service industries, import duty exemption/reduction and/or VAT exemption for the importation of goods for contract of work/coal contract of work, as well as more generous tax allowance and tax holiday programs in special economic zones. Appendix II, List of Group of Business Activities Allocated to, or Requiring Partnership with, Cooperatives and MSMEs, lists business activities allocated to cooperatives and MSMEs, namely, those (1) not using technology or using simple technology; (2) with specific processes that are labor-intensive in nature and that have special and cultural significance; and (3) requiring capital not exceeding Rp 10 billion, excluding the value of land and buildings. Business activities requiring partnership with cooperatives and MSMEs are those undertaken mostly by cooperatives and MSMEs and/or encouraged to enter the large-scale enterprise supply chain. Ministry of Investment/Indonesia Investment Coordinating Board (BKPM), the Minister of Cooperatives and Small and Medium Micro Enterprises, and the Coordinating Minister for Economic Affairs strive to make the law fair for large enterprises and MSMEs. Large enterprises are expected to collaborate with local MSMEs where their projects are located to promote equitable economic growth across regions in Indonesia. In addition, partnership is a requirement of application for fiscal incentives. Appendix III, List of Business Activities with Certain Requirements, includes business activities reserved for domestic investors, with foreign ownership maximums or special license requirements, as well as three strictly limited business activities supervised under specific regulations. Less restriction of business activities through Presidential Regulation No. 10 of 2021 on Investment Business Activities Junto Presidential Regulation No. 49 of 2021 is expected to promote Indonesia as a preferred location for businesses engaged in labor-intensive manufacturing, export-oriented manufacturing, the pharmaceutical and medical devices industry, renewable energy, infrastructure, and mining industry with added value. These industries will receive strong support and beneficial incentives from the government. There will be more opportunities to enter into new business and to restructure or expand current investment business activities. Foreign enterprises were eligible for the following: (1) Facility for exemption from import duty on imports of machines, goods, and materials: Enterprises were eligible to receive preferential customs duty treatment for imports of required raw materials and machines subject to certain conditions as prescribed in various government regulations. The procedures and mechanism for exemption from import duty on imports of machines, goods, and materials were stipulated in BKPM Regulation No. 46 of 2021 on Guidelines and Procedures for Investment Licensing and Facilities. (2) Tax allowance: Enterprises were also eligible to receive an income tax facility, stipulated in the regulations. (3) Tax holiday: Income tax waivers could be granted to newly established corporations pursuant to the requirements set within government regulations. BKPM Regulation No. 1 of 2019 contains details of business fields and pioneer industry products that can be granted corporate income tax reduction and procedures for granting the reduction. According to Minister of Finance Regulation (Peraturan Menteri Keuangan - PMK 35, reduction of corporate income tax (tax holiday) may be granted to newly established corporations for no less than 5 years and for up to 20 years, depending on its investment value. (4) Foreign workers: Hiring of foreign workers must comply with Presidential Regulation No. 34 of 2021 on the Utilization of Foreign Workers, which stipulates the procedure for use of foreign workers. Moreover, it also stipulates certain positions that foreign workers may not fill, as stipulated by the minister of manpower. (5) Divestment provisions: Some shares must be sold to Indonesian citizens and/or entities through direct placement within the time stipulated by prevailing laws and regulations depending on the sector.

Members of the Board of Governors Regulation No. 24/8/PADG/2022, in effect starting from July 1, 2022:
The minimum reserve requirement in rupiah for BUK, which stood at 6.0%, has increased to 7.5% effective July 1, 2022. Effective September 1, 2022, this increased to 9.0%.
The minimum reserve requirement in rupiah for BUS and UUS, which stood at 4.5%, has increased to 6.0% effective July 1, 2022. Effective September 1, 2022, this increased to and 7.5%.
Provision of remuneration of 1.5% for meeting the Reserves obligation after taking into account incentives for banks in lending/financing to priority sectors and MSMEs and/or meeting the target of the macroprudential inclusive financing ratio (RPIM).
This PADG GWM also consolidates all changes to PADG No. 20/10/PADG/2018 concerning Statutory Reserves in Rupiah and Foreign Exchange for BUK, BUS, and UUS, without changing the substance of the arrangement other than changes in the amount of Reserves and the portion calculated for remuneration. Furthermore, when PADG GWM No. 24/8/PADG/2022 came into force July 1, 2022, PADG No. 20/10/PADG/2018 and its amendments are revoked and declared invalid.

Incentive from macroprudential policy by deducting reserve requirement obligation for banks with certain activities.
BI Regulation No. 24/4/PBI/2022 concerning the Third Amendment of BI Regulation No. 20/3/PBI/2018, starting from March 1, 2022, with the following changes: (1) Amend the provisions of Article 3A and Article 12A which stipulate that relaxation of the obligation to fulfill the Reserves in rupiah may be granted to BUK, BUS, and UUS for meeting the Reserves in rupiah on a daily basis and/or on an average basis based on macroprudential policy considerations of BI. (2) The regulation regarding the easing of the obligation to fulfill the Reserves in rupiah for macroprudential policies is implemented in accordance with a separate BI Regulation concerning incentives for banks that provide funds for certain and inclusive economic activities.
The detailed regulation regarding these incentives is regulated in a separate PBI regarding incentives for banks that provide funds for certain and inclusive economic activities. In February 2022, BI issued regulation concerning banking incentive policies to encourage banks' role in financing to priority sectors and inclusive starting at March 2023. There are two amendments regarding the incentive with the last one on February 2023 that came into effect April 2023 by reclassifying the 46 priority sectors and increasing the maximum amount of overall incentives from 2% to 2.8%. However, this policy no longer in effect after the BI Regulation No.11 of 2023 and Board of Governors Regulation No.11 of 2023 regarding Macroprudential Liquidity Incentive Policy (KLM) came into force October 1, 2023. In this regard, BI Regulation No.24/5/PBI/2022, Board of Governors Regulation No.24/4/PADG/2022 and its amendments are revoked. Board of Governors Regulation No.11 of 2023 and BI Regulation No.11 of 2023 concerning Macroprudential Liquidity Incentive Policy, in effect starting from October 1, 2023: Macroprudential Liquidity Incentive l Policy is provided for Banks in the form of GWM relaxation by up to 400 basis points. Banks are entitled to a reduction in GWM if they meet the minimum threshold for credit disbursement in certain predetermined sectors such as downstream mineral and coal mining sectors and downstream non-mineral and coal mining sectors (including agriculture, livestock and fishing), housing (including affordable housing), tourism, inclusive sectors (including MSMEs, People's Business Loans (KUR) and ultra-micro enterprises) as well as the green economy and finance. Member of the Board of Governors Regulation No. 2/PADG/2023 concerning the Amendment to Regulation of Members of the Board of Governors No. 24/8/PADG/2022: Total GWM incentive which may be received by banks changes from previously 200 bps at the maximum to 280 bps at the maximum. Adjustment of GWM provisions related to certain amounts of the provision of GWM obligations in rupiah which are given remuneration/grants ('athaya), from the original 7% for BUK and 5.5% for BUS and UUS to a maximum of 7% for BUK (6,2%-7%) and 5.5% for BUS and UUS (4,7%-5,5%), in accordance with the amount of GWM obligations after considering incentives within the framework of macroprudential policy. Member of the Board of Governors Regulation No. 12/PADG/2023 concerning the Second Amendment to Regulation of Members of the Board of Governors No. 24/8/PADG/2022: KLM is achieved through a total incentive amount of a maximum of 4%, an increase from the previous maximum of 2.8%. KLM implementation is carried out by reducing bank demand deposits at BI to provide GWM in Rupiah which must be fulfilled on an average basis. The increase in the total amount of incentives received by the bank affects the size of a certain portion of the provision of GWM obligations in rupiah which is given remuneration or GWM incentives in the form of grants ('athaya) to the bank from previously 6.2%–7% for BUK and 4.7%–5.5% for BUS and UUS becomes 5%–7% for BUK and 3.5%–5.5% for BUS and UUS.

Liquid asset requirements	No.	There is no difference in treatment of deposit accounts in foreign currency and deposit accounts in local currency as stipulated in (1) POJK No. 42/POJK.03/2015 regarding Obligation of LCR fulfillment for Commercial Banks (POJK—Regulation on the FSA) and (2) POJK No. 50/POJK.03/2017 regarding Obligation of Net Stable Funding Ratio fulfillment for Commercial Banks. POJK No. 42/POJK.03/2015 also stipulates that the maximum value of bonds issued by the Indonesian government and the BI, as well as by foreign governments and foreign CBs, in a foreign currency with a risk weight of more than 0% that can be considered a level 1 high-quality liquid asset is equal to the bank’s net cash outflow needs in such foreign currency.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Capital limitations on foreign equity participation were eased as long as a bank is assessed by the OJK as capable of carrying out such activities. This POJK was effectively implemented three months after its issuance on October 31, 2021. Pursuant to OJK Regulation No. 22 of 2022, effective November 1, 2022, banks can only conduct equity participation in the financial institution and must have approval from the authority (OJK) each time conducting capital participation, in either domestic or overseas financial institutions. The total amount of bank equity participation may not exceed 35% of bank's capital. Meanwhile, temporary equity participation can only be conducted by banks to overcome credit failure of debtors, with a maximum period of 5 years or the debtors has earned profit. Previously, according to POJK No. 6/POJK.03/2016, only banks under the BUKU (Commercial Bank for Business Activities) 3 (Tier 1 capital between Rp 5 trillion and Rp 30 trillion) and BUKU 4 categories (Tier 1 capital of Rp 30 trillion or more) were permitted equity participation in foreign financial institutions. BUKU 3 banks were allowed to conduct equity participation only with financial institutions in Asia; BUKU 4 banks were not subject to any geographical limitation on equity participation and could inject a higher amount of equity than BUKU 3 banks. The changes are an update of the regulation, mostly because of changes of bank’s classification (there’s no more BUKU 1,2,3,4). BI Regulation No. 24/7/PBI/2022 prohibits banks from performing transactions with foreign parties, including (1) lending or financing in rupiah and/or foreign currencies, except (a) noncash credit or financing or guarantees related to investment activities in Indonesia with a counter guarantee from a bank or a security deposit of 100% of the value of guarantees given; (b) credit or financing in the form of syndication; (c) credit cards; (d) domestic consumer credit or financing; (e) intraday overdrafts in rupiah and foreign currencies supported by authenticated documents confirming inflow of funds to the relevant account on the same day; (f) overdrafts in rupiah and foreign currencies for administrative costs; (g) certain local currency transaction scheme; and (h) assumption of bills from a government-appointed body designated to manage the concerned bank’s assets in the context of restructuring Indonesia’s banking by foreign parties whose payments are guaranteed by prime banks; (2) overdraft or lending for foreign exchange/IDR transactions; (3) buying securities in rupiah issued by nonresident, except for related trade activities with Indonesia and domestic trade activities, overseas bank draft for the benefit of Indonesian migrant workers and the rupiah funds are received in Indonesia by residents; (4)overdraft for nonresidents; and (5) investments for nonresidents.

		may reach 99%. Foreign bank branches are not allowed to conduct temporary equity participation. In addition, foreign and domestic shareholders are subject to a cap on their ownership shares in an Indonesian bank based on their category (banks, nonbank financial institutions, nonfinancial institutions, individuals). All prospective controlling shareholders must pass the fit and proper requirement. To support this requirement, foreign legal entities must obtain a recommendation from the monetary authorities and/or bank supervisor of their country of origin. The recommendation must state at a minimum that the foreign legal entity has a good reputation and sound financial ability and has never committed an unethical act in the banking business. In addition, foreign shareholders must commit to necessary measures if the bank faces capital or liquidity difficulties.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Banks must maintain a maximum overall (on- and off-balance-sheet) NOP of 20% of capital at the end of the working day. The capital charge to incorporate foreign exchange risk (under the market risk capital requirement) is based on 8% of the overall NOP. The NOP regulation is applied only for domestic banks.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There is a limit on the NOP of 20% of capital, based on BI Regulation No. 17/5/PBI/2015 concerning the fourth amendment to BI Regulation No. 5/13/PBI/2003 on NOP for Commercial Banks. Per Article 2, banks should manage and maintain the overall NOP at the end of the working day with a provisions maximum of 20% of capital.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Banks should manage and maintain the overall NOP at the end of the working day with a provisions maximum of 20% of capital, which applies to assets and liabilities whether from residents or nonresidents. In accordance with BI Regulation No. 7/37/PBI/2005 Article 2 Paragraphs (4) and (5), calculation of the NOP includes the difference between net assets and liabilities, taking into account the assets and liabilities of residents and nonresidents, so the restriction on the NOP also applies to the assets and liabilities of nonresidents. Article 2 (4): Assets in foreign currencies as referred to in Paragraph (2) Letter (a) and Paragraph (3) consist of cash, gold, demand deposits (including current accounts in the BI), deposits on call, time deposits, CDs, margin deposits, securities, loans, net value of negotiated export drafts, interoffice accounts of assets and other receivables, and foreign currency both of residents and of nonresidents. Article 2 (5): Liabilities in foreign currencies as referred to in Paragraph (2) Letter (a) and Paragraph (3) consist of demand deposits, deposits on call, time deposits, CDs, margin deposits, loans, import guarantees, interoffice account liabilities, income from other comprehensive securities of foreign currencies other than shares, and other liabilities in foreign currency to both residents and nonresidents.

		Indonesia is a member or shareholder, mutual funds, and/or private placements/direct investments (not listed on the stock exchange). For solvency measures, the prudential limits on investments held abroad are as follows: (1) For shares listed on the stock exchange, investments in a single issuer may not exceed 10% of total investments, and the sum of investments in all issuers may not exceed 40% of total investments. (2) For corporate bonds listed on the stock exchange and securities (issued by multinational organizations of which Indonesia is a member or shareholder), investments in a single issuer may not exceed 20% of total investments, and the sum of investments in all issuers may not exceed 50% of total investments. (3) For securities issued by countries other than Indonesia, investments in a single issuer may not exceed 10% of total investments. (4) For general mutual funds, investments with a single investment manager may not exceed 10% of total investments, and in all issuers may not exceed 20% of total investments; the sum of investments with all investment managers may not exceed 50% of total investments. For mutual funds in the form of a collective investment contract in a limited participation or private equity fund, investments with a single investment manager may not exceed 10% of total investments, and the sum of investments with all investment managers may not exceed 20% of total investments. (5) For private placements/direct investments (not listed on the stock exchange) the sum of all investments may not exceed 10% of total investments. (6) The sum of investments allocated overseas may not exceed 20% of total investments.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Although not explicit in the regulations, because the total of investments allocated overseas is limited to 20%, the investment portfolio held locally must be at least 80%.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	For solvency measures, insurance and re-insurance companies must provide additional funds to cover currency mismatches. The amounts required to cover foreign currency mismatch risk for a single foreign currency are (1) 30% of the sum of foreign currency liabilities minus admitted assets if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is less than or equal to 0; (2) 0 if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is between 0% and 20% of total liabilities; and (3) 10% of the sum of admitted assets minus 120% of foreign currency liabilities if the sum of admitted assets minus foreign currency liabilities is more than 20% of total liabilities (OJK Circular Letter No. 24/SEOJK.05/2017, July 1, 2017).
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pension funds in Indonesia are not allowed to invest in securities issued by nonresidents (OJK Regulation No. 3/POJK.05/2015) and its revision OJK Regulation No. 29/POJK.05/2018).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Based on OJK Regulation No. 29/POJK.05/2018, OJK no longer allows pension funds in Indonesia to invest abroad for private placement investments.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	OJK Regulation No. 29/POJK.05/2018 not only prohibits pension funds from private placements abroad, but also places percentage limitations on private placement investments, limited investment mutual funds, medium-term notes, and repurchase agreements.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Islamic Republic of Iran states that, as of March 7, 2018, Iran maintained MCPs and an exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3: (1) An MCP and an exchange restriction arise from the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in some exchange transactions, which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by foreign exchange bureaus. (2) An MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange commitments were made through LCs opened prior to March 21, 2002, under the previous multiple exchange rate system. (3) An MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange payment commitments were made through LCs or bank drafts prior to July 24, 2012. (Country Report No. 18/93)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Credit and financial institutions and banks have been instructed by the Bank Markazi Jomhouri Islami Iran (Central Bank of Iran—CBI) to freeze suspected accounts, based on an official list. These measures were taken in accordance with UNSC resolutions.

Other managed arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement has been a managed floating arrangement against a basket of currencies since 2002. All foreign exchange transactions are to be conducted via banks and money exchanges (bureaus) using CBI's electronic trading system. Transactions occurring at rates other than the unified rate will be subject to penalties under the Anti-Smuggling Law. CBI's Forex Management Integrated System (NIMA) platform operates to regulate foreign exchange transactions by enabling exporters to sell foreign currencies to exchange houses who must then on-sell the currency to importers of goods and services with a valid import/services registration order in place. The price of each transaction is agreed between importer and exporter as well as banks and bureaus. As of May 12, 2022, the daily exchange rate announcement is based on the transactions done in the NIMA market and the foreign exchange market and is published to the public. The CBI also quotes market exchange rate on daily basis for the transactions on the secondary market (NIMA) for trade and projects finance other than priority goods and services. Previously, the official exchange rate was used in transactions on priority goods operated by the banking system. It was also used to buy the revenue from oil and gas exports from the government and for imports of priority goods and services. The importing oil proceeds and priority goods and services, including medical goods were financed at a fixed rate of 42,000 IRR. The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to other managed from stabilized, effective May 12, 2022.

vis the US dollar. Under Iran's Five-Year Development Plan, Article 81, the CBI bases the exchange rate on relevant economic variables directly connected to the implementation of monetary policy—that is, the difference between internal and international inflation, the internal demand for and supply of foreign exchange, and the exchange value of major foreign currencies against each other, particularly in the SDR portfolio. However, 4 years after the 6th National Development Plan started, many policy directives are not yet implemented. Policy orientations may vary from the National Development Plan. In addition to the exchange rate anchor, the CBI objective is to maintain inflation in single digits by trying to control base money growth. Legally, the CBI does not have an inflation objective or target (see Article 10 of the CBI law).

issuance of the export permission pursuant to the CBI terms and Instructions. Exporters should take measures to return the currency to the economic cycle and eliminate the foreign exchange obligation based on the value of the exports made through these methods: Import vs. export, transfer to others, sale of currency in SANA and NIMA systems, debt repayment and sale to banks and exchanges. Exporter who repatriates export revenues may qualify for incentives, such as tax exemptions.

Effective December 6, 2022, a hundred percent of petrochemical and steel products' export revenues should be supplied on the NIMA platform in the context of export requirement at about 80 days, oil products and non-ferrous export revenues should be a hundred percent exchanged on the NIMA platform within 4 months from the date of issuing customs cottage. Other commodities exporters should also exchange and submit export revenues at 90% within four months through bellowed vehicles:

- Selling export revenue on the NIMA platform to the CB, credit institutions, or bureau de change;
- Import vs. export by exporters;
- Barter trade;
- Selling export revenues in the context of notes to the CB, credit institutions or bureau de change;
- Reimbursement of the foreign debt;
-Settlement of credit institutions' foreign debt in the context of import documentary credits, L/C, and foreign guarantees.
- Handing over the export resources for import.

Previously, the repatriation rules were as follows: (1) Exporters repatriating less than €1 million (or equivalent in other currencies) could convert by cash or money order to exchange agents or use the proceeds for imports for the same amount. (2) Exporters repatriating between €1 and €3 million (or equivalent in other currencies) could sell up to €1.5 million by cash or money order to exchange agents if the converted amount accounts for more than 30% of the foreign transaction, and up to €1 million if the converted amount accounts for less than 30% of the foreign transaction. They could convert 40% on NIMA if the converted amount accounts for more than 60% of the foreign transaction, and 45% on NIMA if the converted amount accounts for between 30% and 60% of the foreign transaction. The rest of the transaction amount could be settled in imports of an equivalent amount. (3) Exporters repatriating between €3 and €10 million (or equivalent in other currencies) could sell by cash or money order to exchange agents up to €2 million if the converted amount accounts for more than 60% of the foreign transaction, up to €1.5 million if the converted amount accounts for between 30% and 60% of the foreign transaction, and up to €1 million if the converted amount accounts for less than 30% of the foreign transaction. They could convert 40% on NIMA if the converted amount accounts for more than 60% of the foreign transaction, 55% on NIMA if the converted amount accounts for between 30% and 60% of the foreign transaction, and 70% on NIMA if the converted amount accounts for less than 30% of the transaction. The rest of the transaction amount could be settled in imports of an equivalent amount. (4) Exporters repatriating more than €10 million (or equivalent in other currencies) could sell by cash or money order to exchange agents up to €4 million if the converted amount accounts for more than 60% of the foreign transaction, up to €2 million if the converted amount accounts for between 30% and 60% of the foreign transaction, and

Exchange Arrangement

Classification

Other managed arrangement	05/12/2022	The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to other managed from stabilized.
Official exchange rate	05/12/2022	The daily rate announcement is based on the transactions done in the Forex Management Integrated System (NIMA) market and the foreign exchange market and is published to the public. The Bank Markazi Jomhouri Islami Iran (Central Bank of Iran) also quotes market exchange rate on daily basis for the transactions on the secondary market (NIMA) for trade and projects finance other than priority goods and services. Previously, the official exchange rate was used in transactions on priority goods operated by the banking system. It was also used to buy the revenue from oil and gas exports from the government and for imports of priority goods and services. The importing oil proceeds and priority goods and services, including medical goods were financed at a fixed rate of 42,000 IRR.

Payments for travel

Quantitative limits	01/08/2022	The maximum amount of travelers' foreign exchange which is paid to air passengers traveling to visa-needed countries is €500 at Electronic Currency Transaction System rate and €300 at the same rate to air travelers who make their trips to other countries. Previously, the maximum amount of foreign exchange travelers (Iranian nationals) could buy from the banking system for trips to the neighboring countries was €500 or the equivalent a person a year except when traveling to Iraq in which case the amount was 250,000 Iraqi dinars. Travelers to other countries could buy €1000 or the equivalent a person a year.

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership	December 27, 1945.
Article VIII
Article XIV	Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Iraq states that, as of January 22, 2021, Iraq continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2 but no longer maintains any exchange restrictions or MCPs subject to Article XIV, Section 2, and currently maintains one MCP subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3. The MCP arises from the lack of a mechanism to ensure that the exchange rate at the Central Bank of Iraq (CBI) foreign exchange window and the market rates (retail exchange rates of commercial banks and exchange bureaus for the sale of foreign currency from sources other than the CBI foreign exchange window) do not deviate from each other by more than 2%. (Country Report No. 21/38)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	The number of banks that participate on average in the currency window is 40, foreign exchange companies Type A–76, Type B–50, and Type C–350.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	Currency selling window is held daily; eligible bidders may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official exchange rate including a commission determined by the CBI (cash and transfer exchange rates). Banks may buy foreign exchange on their behalf and on behalf of their clients but have to ensure that foreign exchange purchase requests they intermediate are for legitimate purposes (to finance legally permitted transactions in foreign currency) by checking clients' documents. Banks are subject to an advance deposit requirement which requires depositing the local currency unit (LCU) equivalent of their cash and noncash purchase requests, effective February 19, 2023, 2 days (previously 7 days) before the auction. There are no limits on the bids. In case of default, the auction participant may not participate in future auctions and fines are imposed. The CBI monitors these transactions for AML purposes and sells foreign currency for transactions that are not considered suspect. Because the CBI has been pursuing a policy of fulfilling every bid at a single settlement price, bids are submitted without indication of price. Volume is not preannounced. There are no limits for noncash sales. The weekly limits on the amount banks and foreign exchange companies may buy in cash foreign exchange from the CBI currency sales window are as follows. Effective February 20, 2022: US$200,000 for a bank, US$1,800,000 for foreign exchange Type A, US$700,000 for foreign exchange Type B, and US$60,000 for foreign exchange Type C. (Previously, they were US$250,000 for a bank, US$200,000 for foreign exchange Type A, US$750,000 for foreign exchange Type B, and US$70,000 for foreign exchange Type C.) Effective March 19, 2022: US$150,000 for a bank, US$1,500,000 for foreign exchange Type A, US$500,000 for foreign exchange Type B, and US$50,000 for foreign exchange Type C. Effective December 1, 2023: US$200,000 for a bank, US$700,000 for foreign exchange Type A, US$250,000 for foreign exchange Type B, and US$30,000 for foreign exchange Type C.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Effective April 3, 2023, the ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 14:10 Central European Time. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in Article 127(1) of Treaty on the Functioning of the EU and Article 2 of the Statute of the European System of Central Banks and of the ECB. Section 6A of the Central Bank Act 1942 notes that in discharging its functions and exercising its powers as part of the European System of Central Banks, the primary objective of the Central Bank of Ireland (CBI) is to maintain price stability. "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union as laid down in Article 3 of the Treaty on EU." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Credit institutions are free to provide spot and forward exchange rate facilities. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients. Certain foreign-exchange-related operations may be subject to a regulatory authorization regime or certain restrictions reflecting obligations in European legislation. For example, with regard to investment firms for the purposes of Directive 2014/65/EU (Markets in Financial Instruments Directive, or MiFID II), "spots" which meet the requirements in Article 10(2) of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/56 are not considered "financial instruments under MiFID II," and accordingly, the performance of certain activities/services in relation to these "spots" may not require a firm to be authorized in Ireland in accordance with the regime provided for in MiFID II. Investment firms for the purposes of MiFID II may require an authorization in Ireland to perform activities or services in relation to foreign exchange forwards. UCITS management companies authorized in Ireland are permitted to use foreign exchange derivatives on behalf of UCITS funds in line with Directive 2009/65/EU, subject to certain restrictions. Alternative investment fund managers (AIFM) authorized in Ireland are also permitted to use foreign exchange derivatives on behalf of AIFs under management.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Euro foreign exchange policy is the responsibility of the ECB. There were 19 credit institutions authorized by the CBI as of December 31, 2022, all of which may deal in foreign exchange. Credit institutions are authorized and supervised under the provisions of, inter alia, the Central Bank Act 1971, Directive 2013/36/EU (As Amended), Regulation No. 575/2013 (As Amended), and Council Regulation (EU) No. 1024/2013 (the Single Supervisory Mechanism Regulation). As of December 31, 2022, 7 firms were authorized as exchange bureaus by the CBI under Part V of the Central Bank Act 1997. These firms do not have a counterparty relationship with the CBI. Most firms authorized as exchange bureaus only provide OTC services to the public. A payment institution or an electronic money institution authorized to provide payment services or issue electronic money may, in addition, provide foreign exchange services. There were 21 payment institutions and 24 electronic money institutions authorized in Ireland as of December 31, 2022. Please note that these figures do not include registered Account Information Service Providers which, although treated as payment institutions, are not permitted to provide foreign exchange services. The provision of foreign exchange services, in addition to the provision of payment services, by a payment institution is recognized in Regulation No. 29(1) of the EU (Payment Services) Regulations 2018, which transposed Directive 2015/2366/EU (Payment Services Directive 2) into the domestic legislative framework. The provision of foreign exchange services, in addition to the issuance of electronic money or provision of payment services, by an electronic money institution is recognized in Regulation No. 28(1)(c) of the EU (Electronic Money) Regulations 2011, which transposed Directive 2009/110/EC (as amended by Payment Services Directive 2) into the domestic legislative framework. Under MiFID, spots which meet the requirements as set out in Article 10(2) of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/565 are not considered financial instruments for the purposes of Section C(4) of Annex 1 to Directive 2014/65/EU.

Resident Accounts

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Foreign exchange balances may generally be freely transferred: all exchange control legislation in Ireland expired December 31, 1992. Since January 1, 1993, no laws or restrictions prevent the free movement of capital or current payments to or from Ireland by individuals or corporate entities for any purpose whatsoever. This liberalization applies equally to EU and non-EU countries. However, in any such foreign exchange transactions, the Irish resident parties, including financial institutions, must ensure conformity with (1) financial sanctions under various EU Council regulations enforced under domestic law, which affect transfers, including economic resources, to and from jurisdictions, entities, and individuals that are subject to sanctions, and (2) anti-money-laundering legislation to ensure that effective measures are taken to combat the laundering of the proceeds of criminal activity or the financing of terrorism. In accordance with the Criminal Justice (Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing) Act 2010 (the "Act"), all credit and financial institutions providing services (including foreign-exchange-related services) must adopt policies and procedures to prevent money laundering and terrorism financing. The procedures must specify "measures to be taken (by them in their businesses) to prevent the use, for money laundering or terrorism financing, of transactions or products that could favor or facilitate anonymity." The "CBI" is specified in the Act as the appropriate authority for credit and financial institutions. CBI, pursuant to Section 63 of the Act, is responsible for monitoring credit and financial institutions' compliance with the AML/CFT obligations contained in the Act. If a credit or financial institution fails to establish procedures to guard against the use of its foreign exchange services for money laundering or the financing of terrorism, it commits an offence under Section 54(15) of the Act, and may also be subject to regulatory action by the CBI, including an administrative sanction.

Effective February 25, 2022, and subject to certain exemptions, EU credit institutions cannot accept deposits exceeding €100,000 from Russian or Belarusian persons or entities under the specific case laid down in Article 5(b)(1) of Council Regulation No. 833/2014 and Article 1u of Council Regulation No. 765/2006 of May 18, 2006, respectively: "it shall be prohibited to accept any deposits from Russian/Belarusian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia/Belarus, or legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia/Belarus, if the total value of deposits of the natural or legal person, entity, or body per credit institution exceeds 100 000 EUR."

		Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments. In July 2020, the Government agreed to draft legislation which will give effect to this EU regulation to screen FDI coming into Ireland, and the Screening of Third Country Transactions Act 2023 was enacted in October 2023. The Act empowers the Minister for Enterprise, Trade, and Employment to respond to threats to Ireland's security and public order posed by particular types of foreign investment and to prevent or mitigate such threats. Under this legislation, the Minister will be able to assess, investigate, authorize, condition, prohibit, or unwind foreign investments from outside of the EU, based on a range of security and public order criteria. The act will need to be commenced by way of Ministerial order, and this is expected in Q2 2024.

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	11/28/2022	Restrictive measures in view of the situation in Haiti.
	05/03/2023	Restrictive measures in view of actions destabilizing the Republic of Moldova.
	07/26/2023	Restrictive measures in view of Iran’s military support of Russia’s war of aggression against Ukraine.
	10/12/2023	Restrictive measures in view of the situation in Sudan and in view of activities undermining the stability and the political transition of Sudan.
	10/25/2023	Restrictive measures in view of the situation in Niger.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	04/03/2023	The ECB Governing Council changed the computation time of the euro foreign exchange rates (also known as the ECB reference rates) to around 14:10 Central European Time (CET), to avoid overlaps with publication time (14:15 CET). Previously reference rates took place at 14:15 CET.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	02/25/2022	Subject to certain exemptions, EU credit institutions cannot accept deposits exceeding €100,000 from Russian or Belarusian persons or entities under the specific case laid down in Article 5(b)(1) of Council Regulation No. 833/2014 and Article 1u of Council Regulation No. 765/2006 of May 18, 2006, respectively.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Under Prevention of Terrorism Ordinance No. 33, 5708-1948, money and other assets may not benefit an organization associated with terrorism. The Prohibition on Terrorism Financing Law, No. 5765-2004, prohibits transactions in property for purposes of terrorism and prohibits transactions in terrorists' property. Israel maintains a licensing mechanism on imports from eight non-WTO members that have no diplomatic relations with Israel or prohibit imports from Israel—namely, Afghanistan, Algeria, Iraq, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, and Yemen. Licenses are granted for imports from these countries on an ad hoc basis, under exceptional circumstances (for example, economic necessity) and with authorization from the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Labor. Imports and exports of rough diamonds are controlled to avoid trade with countries that do not participate in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. Imports of goods that are clearly identified with organizations associated with terrorism (for example, flags) are prohibited. Trading is prohibited with the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, and Syria; however, because of the US presence in Iraq, trade in Iraqi dinars was authorized temporarily. Economic activity is prohibited with a foreign entity that has been identified by a ministerial committee as assisting Iran in the advancement of its nuclear program or in obtaining weapons of mass destruction or the means of delivery of weapons of mass destruction, unless the ministerial committee has permitted economic activity with that foreign entity. In addition, financial institutions are prohibited from investing in a corporation that has been identified by a ministerial committee as maintaining a substantial business relationship with Iran, unless the ministerial committee has permitted it.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. However, the Bank of Israel (BOI) may intervene in the foreign exchange market in the event of unusual movements in the exchange rate that are inconsistent with underlying economic conditions or when conditions in the foreign exchange market are disorderly. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a floating arrangement.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The representative rate of the new shekel against the US dollar for a specific day is the average rate of new shekels in bilateral interbank quotes during a predetermined sampling period. Deviations from the sample average of more than 2 standard deviations are excluded from the calculation. In exceptional cases, if the calculated exchange rate does not reflect actual rates in the market, discretion may be exercised in determining the representative rate. The representative rates of the new shekel against other currencies are based on the representative rate of the US dollar, and the exchange rates of the relevant currencies in the international money markets at the time the rates are determined. Therefore, the representative rate of any currency against the new shekel is an indicator of the exchange rate in the foreign exchange market, is based on an average of banks' published buying and selling prices, and does not necessarily reflect actual transaction rates. The rates have no official or legal standing and are not published in the Official Gazette. They are used mainly for valuations and in contracts. Parties to a foreign-currency-indexed business transaction may use any mutually acceptable rate. The representative rate is binding on such transactions only if explicitly stipulated in advance.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	Israel's government, in consultation with the governor of the BOI, sets a price stability target—an annual rate of increase in the CPI. The current target is between 1% and 3% a year, and the BOI is obliged to strive to achieve that goal.
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range	Yes.	The government sets an inflation target (currently 1%–3%) as part of its economic policy.
Target measure	Yes.	The target is set in terms of the headline CPI and is evaluated continuously referring to the CPI inflation rate in the past 12 months.
CPI	Yes.	Israel's government, in consultation with the governor of the BOI, sets a price stability target—an annual rate of increase in the CPI. The current target is between 1% and 3% a year, and the BOI is obliged to strive to achieve that goal.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The target is set in terms of the headline CPI and is evaluated continuously referring to the CPI inflation rate in the past 12 months.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The BOI is independent in setting the short-term rate of interest and in using the monetary instruments to achieve its goals. The BOI's interest rate serves as the basis according to which a range of interest rates is set in the economy, including the rates of interest that the public (households and businesses) pays the banks on short-term loans and the rates of interest that it receives from the banks on its short-term deposits.
Target corridor band	No.	It is a point decision on interest rate, not a corridor.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	Yes.	The MPC is obligated to present the Government and the finance committee in parliament, at least twice a year, the Monetary Policy Report. Periodic Report on Monetary Policy (Bank of Israel Law (2010), section:55 a and b:

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(a) No less than twice annually, the Committee shall present the Government and the Knesset Finance Committee with a report containing a survey of developments in the field of price stability and economic developments in the time period covered by the report, and the policy that the Committee believes necessary for the maintenance of price stability within the range determined by the Government as per Section 3(b) and for the attainment of the other objectives in Section 3. (b) If the inflation rate deviates, during six consecutive months, from the range determined by the Government as per Section 3(b), said periodic report shall include details about the reasons for the deviation, the policy that the Committee has adopted to readjust the inflation rate to the determined range, and the Committee's estimate of the period of time required for the attainment of this result; for this purpose, "deviation of the inflation rate" is the change between the Index most recently published before the date of the calculation and the Index published in the same month of the preceding year.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	Bank of Israel Law (2010), section 55 c: The Knesset Finance Committee shall discuss the report presented under this Section, with the participation of the Governor, immediately after the report is presented; if a report as per Subsection (b) is submitted, the discussion shall take place with the participation of the Minister of Finance as well.
Other	No.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	The overall voting count of the MPC is published but not with the identification of individual MPC members
Publication of minutes	Yes.	The BOI publishes the minutes of the discussions regarding the determination of the interest rate. The minutes are published about two weeks after the announcement of the interest rate. The publication of the minutes of the interest-rate discussions, in the format adopted by the CBs of the advanced economies throughout the world, is intended to increase the transparency of the BOI's interest-rate policy, and together with other of the BOI's publications will enable the public, the Knesset (Israel's unicameral parliament), and the government to deepen their understanding of that policy.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The Staff publishes a forecast, on quarterly basis, that includes an inflation forecast for the upcoming year and for 2 subsequent years. The Monetary Policy Reports include a section with these forecasts. The Monetary Committee presents the government and the Knesset Finance Committee no less than twice annually a report on the monetary policy. The report includes a survey of developments in the field of price stability and economic developments in the time period covered by the report, and the policy that the Committee believes necessary for the maintenance of price stability within the range determined by the government and for the attainment of the BOI's other objectives. The reports are issued about a month after the end of each half-year. Appendices to the report contain tables with updated figures, which are used by policymakers. The BOI generally published this report before the Committee's appointment as well.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	The spot exchange market is unregulated and operates in an identical manner to developed country markets. Foreign exchange bureaus are licensed by the MOF; their activities are generally unrestricted, and several hundred bureaus are in operation. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOI. They may maintain accounts abroad and make foreign currency transfers on behalf of their clients. They are subject to the Money-Laundering and Terrorism Financing Prohibition.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market operates freely with no formal framework. As of December 31, 2022, there were 11 local market-maker banks and between 30 and 40 foreign financial institutions that were also active at times, as well as a few brokers. The BOI monitors the foreign exchange market (daily volume, volatility, bid-offer spreads, and so on) to ensure its orderly functioning.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market operates freely; there is no formal framework.
Brokerage	Yes.	The interbank market operates freely; there is no formal framework.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank market operates freely; there is no formal framework.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The BOI does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market. There are reporting requirements for transactions in spots, swaps, and new shekel–foreign currency forwards. The BOI had previously introduced US$/NIS swaps in 2020 to confront high dollar liquidity pressures.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	There is a list of products that are prohibited for import. Government policy is to encourage free trade including imports. However, there are products whose import the state has banned as a result of unwanted use or danger to the public. The prohibited items for import are defined in the Customs Order (Prohibition of Importation) 2005, under the authority of the Minister of Finance. The order lists the prohibited goods for import at several levels, in some cases it defines the detail of the customs and the prohibited goods and in other cases it defines the designation of the prohibited goods for import. In addition, there are prohibited products that are not included in the order: Law for the Prevention of Asbestos and Harmful Dust Hazards 2011; Import and Export Order (Prohibition of Importing Fireworks Di Nur) 2015; and Import and Export Order (Airsoft Import Prohibition) (Temporary Order) 2021.
Open general licenses	Yes.	According to the provisions of the Free Import Order 2014, an exemption from proof of compliance of the import legality can be requested, depending on the government office in question, the type of goods and the purpose of the goods. These are exemptions from proving compliance with the conditions set out in the law, but the essential obligation remains unchanged. In this area, there are exemptions in the field of standards, in the field of sensitive food or exemptions set forth in the Licensing of Services and Professions Law in the Automotive Industry and more.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Italy participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes euro foreign exchange reference rates on every working day, except on TARGET closing days. The reference rates are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at around, effective April 3, 2023, 14:10 Central European Time (CET) (previously 14:15 CET), and are published at around 16:00CET. The reference rates are broadly used by the Italian public administration for administrative and fiscal purposes.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

		and asset management companies, the BOI; for insurance companies, the Institute for the Supervision of Insurance Companies) if the holding (a) equals or exceeds 10%, 20%, 30%, or 50% of the target entity's capital or voting rights or (b) confers the power to exert significant influence over the target entity. Authorization is also needed if control is gained as a result of acquisition of holdings or contracts or through other bylaw provisions. Regulation (EU) 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments. The Italian government enacted Law Decree No. 23, setting forth new provisions impacting the Golden Power and in general the FDI screening mechanisms in light of COVID-19. The Decree has expanded the obligation to communicate to the government any acquisition (or share deal) and asset deal, by EU and extra-EU entities, of shareholdings in companies operating assets falling in the sectors defined in accordance with the Article 4 of the Regulation (EU) 2019/452, which include critical technologies and dual-use items, including artificial intelligence, robotics, semiconductors, cybersecurity, aerospace, energy storage, quantum and nuclear technologies as well as nanotechnologies and biotechnologies, food security, access to sensitive information, including personal data, freedom and pluralism of the media and financial, credit and insurance sectors. The Decree now allows the Italian government to initiate Golden Power reviews independently and in the absence of a notification. The Decree has provisionally extended the scope of the existing filing requirements for transactions concerning sectors of energy, transportation, communications, as well as the European sectors mentioned above, also to EU entities. In particular, until December 31, 2020, any acquisition of shares, resolution, and transaction adopted by any EU or extra-EU entity holding strategic assets in the sectors of energy, transportation and communications, as well as high tech is subject to a foreign investment filing if: (1) resulting in change of control, ownership, or destination of use of assets above and (2) for extra-EU investments, the acquisition is at least 10% of share capital or voting rights and the total investment value is equal to or higher than one million euros, while for European entities, the investment results in control of the targeted company. Decree No. 23 was extended by Law No. 176/2020 until June 30, 2021, by Decree No. 56/2021 until December 31, 2021, and by Decree No. 228/2021 until December 31, 2022 (effective January 1, 2022). The provisions on the Golden Power contained in Decree No. 23 were incorporated in Law Decree No. 21/2022 effective March 21, 2022.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Commercial banks and other credit institutions are subject to EU and national prudential regulations in accordance with the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision core principles for effective banking supervision and the Basel Accord (International Convergence of Capital Measurement and Capital Standards). The Consolidated Law on Banking (Legislative Decree No. 385/1993, Testo Unico Bancario (TUB)), as well as BOI Circular No. 285 of December 17, 2013 (as amended), and Circular No. 286 on prudential reporting transpose into the national regulatory framework the provisions in CRD IV—Directive 2013/36/EU concerning authorization of credit institutions, acquisition of qualified holdings in a credit institution, cross-border activities, internal capital and liquidity adequacy assessment processes, corporate governance, risk management and control, remuneration policies and practices, capital buffers, prudential supervision, supervisory review and evaluation processes, and sanctions. The present framework has been recently reviewed to implement the new CRD V requirements (Directive (EU) No. 2019/878 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2019, Amending Directive 2013/36/EU as regards Exempted Entities, Financial Holding Companies, Mixed Financial Holding Companies, Remuneration, Supervisory Measures and Powers, and Capital Conservation Measures). The CRD V requirements regarding the financial holding companies, the mixed financial holding companies, and Intermediate EU parent company (Articles 21a and 21b of the Directive (EU) No. 2019/878 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2019) were transposed into the Italian legislation by means of the Legislative Decree No. 182/2021. The national framework was amended via BOI's implementing provisions (Circular No. 285, Part I, Chapters 2 and 4, as updated in July 2022). Regarding the provisions concerning interest risk arising from non-trading book activities, references have been updated in the national framework (Circular No. 285, Part I, Title III, Chapter 1, and Title IV, Chapter 3, as updated in December 2023) to the aspects that will be supplemented with the Delegated Regulations to be adopted by the Commission (in accordance with Article 84(5) and Article 98(5a) of Directive 2013/36/EU). Moreover, provisions concerning own funds, own funds requirements, liquidity requirements, leverage, large exposures, and public disclosure obligations are laid out in the CRR — EU CRR No. 575/2013.

(1) A reform of "Banche Popolari" (a particular form of nonprevalent mutual cooperative bank) was approved by the parliament (Decree-Law No. 3/2015 converted to Law No. 33/2015); in December 2016, in particular, the reform introduced an obligation for Banche Popolari with consolidated assets exceeding €8 billion to become joint-stock companies. Following the enactment of primary legislation, the BOI's implementing provisions went into effect, completing the legal framework by providing the necessary prudential rules and guidelines for the banks concerned.
(2) Decree-Law No. 18 of February 14, 2016, converted by Law No. 49 of April 8, 2016, introduced significant innovations in the Italian cooperative banking sector fostering the consolidation of the "Banche di Credito Cooperativo" (BCCs) and providing for the establishment of cooperative banking groups. According to the regulatory framework, each Italian BCC must either join a cooperative banking group to hold a banking license, become a joint-stock company, or liquidate. The parent company of the cooperative banking group must be a joint-stock company, with a banking license and net capital not less than €1 billion. The provisions of BOI Circular No. 285, as amended, aligned the rules applicable to cooperative banks on an individual basis to the reform of cooperative banking groups. Decree-Law No. 119 of October 23, 2018, amended the reform and allowed BCCs established in the Italian Region of Trentino Alto-Adige to create an institutional protection scheme (IPS) instead of joining a cooperative banking group to take into account particular features of the mutual banks located in that region.
(3) Directive 2014/92/EU on the comparability of fees related to payment accounts, payment account switching, and access to payment accounts with basic features (Payment Accounts Directive—PAD) was implemented in Legislative Decree No. 37 of March 15, 2017, which aims to enhance customer protection and financial inclusion.
On August 3, 2017, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct customer relations, originally issued July 29, 2009) to (a) enhance customer protection by ensuring continuity of payment services in the event of divestment of branches of business and (b) clarify the discipline of basic payment accounts, also regulated by Ministerial Decree No. 70 of May 3, 2018, which introduced detailed provisions regarding consumer access to a payment account with basic features. In June 2019, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct relations with customers, originally issued July 29, 2009) to ensure that adequate information is delivered to consumers on payment account fees.
(4) Directive (EU) 2015/2366 on payment services in the internal market (Revised Payment Service Directive—PSD2), complemented by Regulation (EU) 2015/751, was transposed into Legislative Decree No. 218 of December 15, 2017. In particular, the regime (a) regulates the new payment services set out in the Directive; (b) aligns the electronic money distribution regime applicable to banks with those already applicable to electronic money institutions; (c) imposes EU payment institutions operating on an EU member state territory through agents under the right of establishment to appoint a central contact point, under certain conditions, to ensure adequate communication and information reporting; (d) strengthens customer protection in the event of unilateral changes to contract terms; and (e) prohibits additional fees for specified payment methods. In March 2019, the BOI adopted implementing provisions (amending its provisions for banks and financial intermediaries on transparency and correct relations with customers, originally issued July 29, 2009) to ensure that customers receive adequate information regarding payment services.

In July 2019, the BOI issued a regulation amending supervisory provisions for payment institutions and electronic money institutions and updated Circular No. 285 on supervisory provisions for banks to implement the Revised Payment Service Directive provisions applicable to banks.
(5) The Banking Recovery and Resolution Directive (BRRD) was transposed (Legislative Decree Nos. 180 and 181). In particular, Decree No. 180/2015 (a) requires banks to meet at all times a prudential requirement on their own funds and liabilities to ensure resolution actions' effectiveness; (b) empowers resolution authorities to assess banks' resolvability and impose a wide range of measures to remove any impediment to their resolvability (for example, requirement to divest specific assets; restrict or prevent the development of business lines or products; require changes to legal or operational structures); and (c) provides that banks must contribute annually to the National Resolution Fund. The Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive (DGSD) (Legislative Decree No. 30) requires banks to contribute annually to a deposit guarantee scheme; if a bank fails to do so, the ECB may, as a last resort, withdraw its banking license.
Directive (EU) 2017/2399 of the European Parliament and of the Council of December 12, 2017, amended Directive 2014/59/EU as regards the ranking of unsecured debt instruments in the insolvency hierarchy. The directive promotes the harmonization of the creditors' hierarchy across national insolvency laws, introducing a new layer of unsecured debt instruments that ranks senior to subordinated debt and junior to senior preferred notes and any claims benefiting from legal or statutory preferences. The directive was transposed into Article 12-bis of the TUB by Law No. 205 of December 27, 2017, which created a new class of nonpreferred senior debt ("strumenti di debito chirografario di secondo livello") ranked in insolvency proceedings above own funds instruments and subordinated liabilities that do not qualify as own funds instruments, but below other senior liabilities.
Directive (EU) 2019/879 amended Directive 2014/59/EU as regards the minimum requirement of own funds and eligible liabilities that banks should fulfill to have enough loss-absorbing and recapitalization capacity in the event of resolution. This Directive was transposed into the Italian framework, by Legislative Decree No. 193, which, inter alia, (a) required banks subject to resolution strategy to build-up a minimum requirement of own funds and eligible liabilities (this requirement will enter into force in 2024, but an intermediate requirement applies as of 2022), (b) introduced some amendments to certain provisions implementing Directive BRRD, relating, notably, to liabilities governed by non-EU law and moratorium, and (c) introduced a minimum denomination amount of €150,000 and €200,000 for, respectively, senior non-preferred debt and subordinated debt instruments issued by banks.
(6) Following the transposition of the Mortgage Credit Directive (MCD) relating to residential immovable property (Legislative Decree No. 72), an updated version of the regulation on transparency in banking services and conduct rules between intermediaries and clients entered into force. In particular, such amendments enhanced consumer protection by requiring banks to provide consumers with personalized information about mortgage credit agreements by means of a standardized document (according to the template attached to the MCD) and granting the consumer a seven-day reflection period before the conclusion of the agreement. Also, BOI Circular No. 285/2013 (Supervisory Provisions for Banks) and Circular No. 288/2015 (Supervisory Provisions for Financial Institutions) were updated and provide for the MCD rules on creditworthiness assessment and on the valuation of immovable property for mortgage lending purposes. (7) Regarding the provision of investment services, the Markets in Financial Instruments and Amending Regulation/Markets in Financial Instruments and Amending Directive package on market in financial instruments (Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014 and Directive 2014/65/EU) was transposed into national law by Legislative Decree No. 129 of August 3, 2017, which amended the TUF and entered into force on January 3, 2018. In December 2019, a BOI implementing regulation, which introduces organizational rules for intermediaries providing investment services (banks included) was issued. Circular No. 285 on supervisory provisions for banks was also updated. Such regulation has been revised to complete the transposition of the Investment Firm Directive (IFD) (Directive 2019/2034/EU) on the prudential supervision of investment firms, with specific regard to rules on internal governance and remuneration systems applicable to investment firms. (8) Directive (EU) 2018/843 on AML and CFT was transposed into AML Law No. 231/2007, as amended by Legislative Decree No. 125 of October 4, 2019. The implementation process of the previous directive (Directive EU 2015/849)—with regard to sanctioning procedures, customer due diligence, internal controls, and record keeping —is finalized. The BOI has adopted the following implementing provisions: (a) Regulation of the BOI of March 26, 2019, on organization, procedures and internal control in the field of aAML, which introduces organizational rules for obligated entities and (b) BOI regulation of January 15, 2019, on sanctions and administrative sanctioning procedures; (c) BOI regulation of July 30, 2019, on customer due diligence; and (d) BOI regulation of March 24, 2020, on record keeping. (9) In November 2019, the European Parliament adopted a regulatory package for the (minimum) harmonization of European Covered Bond Framework in EU Member States (Directive (EU) 2019/2162 and Regulation (EU) 2019/2160). The Directive was transposed into national law with the adoption of Legislative Decree No. 190/2021, which amended Law No. 130/1999. The new framework was complemented with level two implementing provisions issued by the BOI (Circular No. 285, Part III, Chapter 3, as amended with the 42nd update of the Circular).

The BOI issued a regulation on collective asset management (Regolamento sulla gestione collettiva del risparmio (RGCR)) that is consistent with the EU regulatory framework (as amended). Among other things, the Italian Consolidated Law on Finance specifies that Italian credit funds, which have been permitted to originate loans since 2015, cannot lend to retail consumers and that their lending activity is subject to rules on transparency. It also extends permission to EU AIFs to grant loans in Italy under conditions set out in the law and specified by the above-mentioned RGCR issued by the BOI. Effective November 16, 2022, the RGCR was amended to implement Directive (EU) 2019/1160 amending Directive 2009/65/EC and Directive 2011/61/EU with regard to cross-border distribution of Jamaican dollar is determined in the domestic foreign exchange market, in which the Bank of Jamaica (BOJ) intervenes occasionally with sales and purchases of foreign currency. The BOJ intervenes occasionally via market auctions. Intervention may be done on both sides of the market. The BOJ announces the auction on the day of the auction by 9:30 a.m., and the results are published on the day by 10:45 a.m. The results are also published in its Annual Report and Quarterly Monetary Policy Report, with a two-month lag. The Bank also publishes, on each intervention date, a list of the foreign exchange intermediaries that participated in the auction, the amounts that each was allotted, and the settlement prices. To improve the transparency of the market, the BOJ, since mid-2019, has published all transactions over US$100,000 and the rate at which these transactions were consummated. There has been no discernible change in BOJ's operations in the foreign exchange market. The intervention process on both sides of the market is transparent. The Bank's intervention in the foreign exchange market has resulted in more net purchases relative to the previous year. Data on BOJ's intervention shows that, over the period May 1, 2022, to April 30, 2023, BOJ net purchased US$1.2 billion from the market, reflecting US$704.1 million in B-FXITT sales. This compares to US$800.6 million in net purchases and US$621.9 million via B-FXITT during the same period in the previous year. BOJ's net purchases from the market occurred in a context of the strong performance on the current account of the balance of payments. Jamaica recorded a current account surplus of 1.9% for fiscal year 2022/2023. This was underpinned by strong recovery in some key sectors of the economy such as Tourism. In addition, remittances inflows remained well above pre-COVID levels, allowing for a strong surplus on the transfers account and, hence, strong inflows via the surrender requirement. Concurrent with the increase in foreign exchange inflows, there was also an increase in foreign currency demand, driven to a large extent by an increase in global commodity prices. It was in this context that the BOJ provided USD liquidity to the market via its foreign exchange intervention sale auctions, to maintain orderly functioning of the financial markets. Notwithstanding the sales to the market, the BOJ was able to build reserves during the period. Since July 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar, with one realignment in March 2023. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to "crawl-like" from "floating", effective July 5, 2022.

Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	The mandate of monetary policy is the maintenance of price stability or low inflation. The BOJ conducts monetary policy with the aim of achieving a continuous medium-term inflation target of 4%–6% an annum for the next three years. The Bank uses monetary policy tools to meet this target objective. Jamaica's monetary policy framework moved from Inflation Targeting Lite to a full-fledged inflation-targeting regime with the passing of the BOJ (Amendment) Act, 2020, on April 16, 2021. The BOJ (Amendment) Act, 2020, also established the MPC which has the responsibility of making monetary policy decisions to achieve the Government of Jamaica's (GOJ's) inflation target.

Policy rate	Yes.	Interest is paid on overnight balances in the current accounts of DTIs at the BOJ. The applicable interest rate is the BOJ policy rate. At end-September 2023, the policy rate was 7%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The floor of the corridor is set as the Bank's policy rate while the ceiling, the interest rate on the overnight standing lending facility, is determined as a spread over the policy rate. The ceiling of the interest rate corridor is 200 basis points (bps) over the policy rate.

Open letter	Yes.	If inflation either falls below the lower end of the target (below 4%) or increases above the upper end of the target (above 6%), the Bank is required to explain to the MOFP and the Jamaican public why the inflation target was missed and the corrective policy actions that will be taken to restore inflation to the target. The Bank is required to notify the MOFP within 60 days of missing the target.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The MPC must publish statements on the performance of the Bank with respect to its monetary policy and achievements in relation to the inflation target, and issue monetary policy updates which are to be submitted to the MOFP every six months, at a minimum, or as may be directed by Parliament. The law guides that the MOFP must, on receipt of the Monetary Policy Statement prepared by the MPC, table a copy in the House of Representatives, following which, in keeping with the statutory provision, the MOFP must refer to the Standing Finance Committee of the House of Representatives.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	The market is operated by ADs, cambios, exchange bureaus (bureaux de change), and the BOJ. As of December 31, 2022, there were 11ADs and 49 cambios. ADs include all commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies. ADs are authorized to buy, sell, borrow, or lend foreign currency or foreign currency instruments. Cambios are licensed to buy and sell foreign currency. Starting in September 2015, commercial banks have stopped accepting as deposits or purchasing cash from cambios as a result of de-risking by overseas correspondent banks. Proceeds from official loans, divestment of government assets, and taxes on the bauxite sector payable in foreign currency are sold or payable directly to the BOJ. Exchange bureau operations are limited to the exchange of foreign currency notes (for Jamaican dollars) held by hotel guests. As of December 31, 2022, there were 133 exchange bureaus, whose purpose is to facilitate foreign exchange transactions with hotel guests. Exchange bureaus which operate in hotels may purchase only up to US$8,000 or its equivalent in other currencies, in any one transaction. The sale of foreign exchange is limited to reconversion of unused Jamaican dollars from guests. BOJ operates a foreign exchange facility for PSEs where foreign exchange is sold to meet their demand, thereby minimizing volatility in the market. The surrender requirement for ADs under the PSE facility is 15% of ADs' US dollar purchases from commercial clients, and the surrender requirement for cambios under the PSE facility is 10% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients. The regular surrender arrangement for both ADs and cambios is 5%. The total minimum surrender obligation for ADs to the BOJ therefore is 20% of daily foreign currency purchases from commercial clients and 15% for cambios. Under the surrender arrangement, the BOJ purchases US dollars, Canadian dollars, pounds sterling, and euros at the applicable mid-day rates. As of April 2019, cambios' foreign exchange purchases' holdings cannot exceed 30% of their five days' gross purchases for all currencies or US$9 million, whichever is less.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The BOJ purchases from and sells foreign exchange to ADs and cambios under the specified terms. The BOJ launched the BOJ Foreign Exchange Intervention Trading Tool (B-FXITT) in July 2017. Transactions are done via an auction mechanism that determines the price, while the BOJ only determines the volume. The rules of the B-FXITT stipulate, inter alia, that each entity is allowed no more than three bids and each bid must be no more than 10% of the auction size and no entity's total bid-volume may exceed 20% of the auction size. The BOJ stopped conducting auctions on a weekly basis on October 17, 2019. The BOJ conducts auctions at short notice, in the event of abnormal or disorderly market conditions. The intermediaries may submit bids to buy or sell foreign exchange from or to the BOJ at a rate determined by the participants. While the framework allows for both the sale and purchase of foreign exchange to and from the market, in the initial stages, the BOJ used the framework for the sale of foreign exchange only. The BOJ started using the framework for the purchase of foreign exchange in April 2018. The BOJ has not used the framework for the purchase of foreign exchange since December 2018. The BOJ introduced a reserve price in the B-FXITT auction to eliminate extreme pricing/bidding, aiming to maintain a rules-based, competitive, multiple price intervention system while eliminating outliers. The reserve price is calculated as a reference rate ± a predetermined spread where bids/offers above and below the highest and lowest reserve price, respectively, are not accepted. In the case of the sell auction, bids are allocated starting with the highest bid price to the lowest bid price, subject to a calculated reserve price, until the operation amount is fully allotted or all bids are fully allocated. All allocated bids are settled at a uniform price which is the lowest allocated bid price (cut-off price).

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants. All 11 ADs and 49 cambios as of December 31, 2022, can participate in the interbank market. The trading platform was introduced in December 2020.
Over the counter	Yes.	Institutions may transact with each other directly.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There was an increase in the number of forward transactions in 2022 relative to 2021. Of the 252 trading days in 2022, there were 141 days on which forward market activity was reported in the USD/JMD compared to 35 days in 2021.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	Transactions may take place in all currencies, but the principal currencies accepted in the exchange market are the US dollar, Canadian dollar, pound sterling, and euro. There are no restrictions on the use of foreign currency among residents.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Economic agents are free to settle all transactions with domestic currency. The Jamaican dollar may be used to conduct and settle all current and capital transactions.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.

Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The BOJ operates the Systemically Important Payment Systems in Jamaica, including the JamClear systems—Real-Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) and Central Securities Depository. The BOJ provides operational support to the Automated Clearing House (ACH)—another Systemically Important Payment System owned and operated by Automated Payments Limited, a company owned by participating commercial banks. The JamClear RTGS is specifically designed to clear large-value, time-critical payments by financial market participants on accounts held at the BOJ in real time throughout the business day. Payments settled in JamClear RTGS are final and irrevocable. The JamClear systems are fully integrated, facilitating settlement on a delivery versus payment basis of all securities traded in the domestic market. With regard to the ACH, the BOJ acts as (1) participant—negotiating checks drawn on commercial banks, sending and receiving electronic files with check data, and handling direct debits and credits to and from the ACH operator; (2) settlement bank—effecting the settlement of clearing balances on the accounts of commercial banks; (3) overseer—providing oversight to ensure the efficient operations of the clearing system; and (4) supervisor of the manual clearing process—facilitating processing of items that do not qualify for the ACH and for foreign currency checks that qualify for domestic clearing—that is, checks drawn on local commercial banks or their correspondent overseas banks in the four major currencies: US dollars, Canadian dollars, pounds sterling, and euros.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	While all residents are free to conduct transactions in foreign currency, only ADs, cambios, and exchange bureaus may undertake the business of trading in foreign exchange. The Minister of Finance may issue directions to specified classes of persons regarding the acquisition of foreign assets and may exempt persons from one or more of the prohibitions outlined in Section 22A(2) of the BOJ Act. Trading in foreign currency by residents and nonresidents must be authorized in their capacity as ADs, cambios, or exchange bureaus. Persons whose acquisition of foreign assets is restricted may acquire them (including foreign securities) only as directed by the Minister of Finance or the BOJ acting under delegated authority from the Minister of Finance. This delegated authority has been exercised for cambios and exchange bureaus.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	These are subject to the ordinary tax laws of Jamaica and the foreign country.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may maintain foreign exchange accounts domestically, but these are subject to the ordinary tax laws of Jamaica. These accounts facilitate balance transfers abroad. As with the operation of domestic currency accounts, institutions must fulfill know-your-customer (KYC) requirements before accepting foreign currency deposits (Regulation 6(1)(a)(i) The Proceeds of Crime (Money Laundering Prevention) Regulations, 2007); and (Section V of the BOJ's Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT)/PF (Proliferation Financing) Guidance Notes—(KYC) Know the Transaction Counterparty Policy and Procedures). In addition, minimum operational standards are determined by the institutions' internal policy. The BOJ AML/CFT/PF Guidance Notes were substantially updated, to, inter alia, incorporate discussions on a risk-based approach and risk assessments and regulatory expectations and licensees' obligations in these regards, and provide guidance on PF, KYC, and customer due diligence (CDD) requirements, AML/CFT obligations of the Boards of Licensees, Politically Exposed Persons, correspondent banking and virtual assets, and nominated officer regime.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents may maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, subject to the tax laws of the foreign country. Operations of these accounts are subject to the foreign country's laws and regulations.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Residents may hold domestic currency deposits abroad. Residents are free to transfer bank balances held abroad to accounts held domestically. The Jamaican dollar is not traded internationally.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	The residents may use Jamaican dollar balances in their account to purchase foreign currency at any time with an AD (including the bank at which the account is held) or a cambio at the rate negotiated with the counterparty.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresidents may hold foreign exchange accounts in Jamaica. Funds from these accounts may be transferred freely between residents and nonresidents as well as between domestically held accounts and those held abroad.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	The regulations governing accounts held by residents apply.

Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents who intend to make a public offering of securities in Jamaica must register with the Financial Services Commission (FSC). Issuers must provide detailed information about themselves to the FSC and to the public. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act and, where applicable, the Exempt Distribution Guidelines issued by the FSC. If the issue of debt is undertaken in foreign currency, it is subject to the foreign exchange regime under the BOJ Act.
On capital market securities	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents who intend to make a public offering of securities in Jamaica must register with the FSC. Issuers must provide detailed information about themselves to the FSC and to the public. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act, unless exempt. Deposit-taking financial institutions are prohibited from investing on behalf of clients. This business is conducted by separate corporate entities. If the issue of debt is undertaken in foreign currency, it is subject to the foreign exchange regime under the BOJ Act.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Persons issuing shares to the public must comply with the Securities Act, Guidelines and the Companies Act and, if the shares are to be listed, the Jamaica Stock Exchange rules. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act, unless exempt. An offer must be made to other shareholders of the same class if any person acquires, at once or over a period of time, shares that (taken together with shares held or acquired by persons acting in concert with that person) convey 50% or more of the voting rights of a company or control of the company. Additional requirements apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no limitations on the acquisition of shares in a company by nonresidents, except shares in locally incorporated commercial banks and other licensed DTIs, no more than 5% of which may be held by a foreign government or an agency of a foreign government without the written approval of the Supervisory Committee. Pursuant to the Banking Services Act (BSA), the Supervisory Committee replaces the Minister of Finance as the supervisory decision-making authority. Effective March 31, 2023, companies are now expressly required to obtain and hold accurate and up to date information on their respective beneficial owners and to file such information with the Companies Office of Jamaica.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no limitations on the sale or issue of securities by a nonresident, except for the general rules that apply to all issuers of securities pursuant to the Securities Act and its regulations. The sale or issue of debt and equity is a regulated activity. Issuers may also be required to prepare a prospectus pursuant to the Companies Act and comply with the Jamaica Stock Exchange listing rules (if listing on the exchange).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions on the purchase of bonds and other debt securities abroad. ADs, insurance companies, securities dealers (SDs), credit unions, cambios, exchange bureaus, collective investment schemes (CISs), and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with directives from the BOJ. Commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies are ADs and have the widest remit to undertake dealings in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to directives from the BOJ, insurance companies and pension funds may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, as well as the foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Insurance Companies) Directions, and the BOJ (Dealings In Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Pensions Funds) Directions. Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. SDs and CISs are allowed to invest in securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. On April 30, 2021, the permissible investments for SDs and CISs were expanded to include investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated in Jamaica and which are foreign exchange earners; publicly traded shares of entities incorporated in Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars that are earners of foreign exchange and whose debts are rated by credit rating agencies as investment grade; BOJ CDs denominated in foreign currency; GOJ guaranteed corporate foreign currency debt instruments issued by corporate entities incorporated in Jamaica, publicly traded shares of corporate entities incorporated outside of Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars, with market capitalization of US$10 billion or greater. The cap on these investment activities for SDs and CISs is 25%. From April 30, 2021, the permissible investments for insurance companies, pensions funds, CISs, and SDs are the same. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets but may otherwise be subject to the exemption requirements to proceed with a contemplated transaction once the activity fits the description of an activity under Section 22A(2) and (3) of the BOJ Act. There are limits on investments by the DTI that apply to equity investments. Aggregate shareholdings by the DTI may not exceed 50% of the DTI's capital base, and in any one company or enterprise may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	These transactions are subject to the Securities laws. Residents and nonresidents who intend to make a public offering of securities in Jamaica must register with the FSC. Issuers must provide detailed information about themselves to the FSC and to the public. Persons dealing in such instruments should comply with the Securities Act, unless exempt. Deposit-taking financial institutions are prohibited from investing on behalf of clients. This business is conducted by separate corporate entities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	In the case of bonds issued via exempt distribution, both residents and nonresidents must meet the criteria to be eligible to purchase the bonds or debt securities. Otherwise, the Securities Act and the attendant regulations do not impose any restrictions on the purchase of local bonds or debt securities by nonresidents. There is no minimum holding period. The issuance of debt in foreign currency is subject to the foreign exchange regime under the BOJ Act. Effective February 22, 2022, there was a ban on foreign exchange debt issuance in Jamaica. Effective March 4, 2022, the ban was lifted. Effective March 5, 2022, the BOJ requires the issuer of foreign exchange debt in Jamaica to submit: (1) an attestation that the distribution strategy would not create a demand for foreign exchange; (2) a list of the intended sources of subscription across the dealers' client buckets; and (3) following the closure of the transaction, verification of the sources of subscription.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	As in the case of residents, nonresidents have to comply with the laws applicable to the sale or issue of bonds or debt securities. For example, the Securities Act requires the issuer to be registered with the FSC and the Disclosure of Interest Regulations mandates the filing of information and the periodicity of such filings, and that the issuer provides an information memorandum. Where the sale or issue of debt instruments involves debt denominated in foreign currency, such issues are subject to the foreign currency dealings framework under the BOJ Act. Payments must occur through ADs; instruments must be issued with or by persons licensed under the Securities Act as a SD and must comprise instruments in respect of which SDs have obtained the requisite exemption to deal in. Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The Securities Act and its attendant regulations apply. The residents must comply with Sections 7 and 26, unless except exempt under subsection 7(2)(a).
On collective investment securities	Yes.	Unit trusts, mutual funds, and other forms of CISs are governed by regulations under the Securities Act. The Securities Act has established a comprehensive legal framework for the regulation of CISs facilitating various forms of CISs by removing obstacles that impede the growth and diversity of the CIS industry, while granting greater protection for users of these products. The investments are managed by an investment company, whereas trust assets are held by a trustee independent of the management company. 		law requires (1) registration of CIS with the FSC; (2) fit and proper requirements of trustees and managers; and (3) proper record keeping and accounting. The law also prohibits (1) failure to file returns with the FSC; (2) false statements or falsification or destruction of documents required under the law; (3) fraudulent or misleading inducements to acquire units; (4) distribution of circulars pertaining to unregistered unit trusts; and (5) failure to keep records required by law. Authorization from the Minister of Finance in relation to the foreign currency component of collective investment securities is required. Banks and other licensed DTIs cannot directly undertake investment activities on behalf of third parties (or customers), but such activities may be accommodated through separate legal entities (that is, subsidiaries) with appropriate authorization. ADs have the broadest authorization to acquire foreign assets on their own behalf subject their respective prudential requirements.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are no limitations.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Part III of the CIS Regulations states the requirements for overseas CIS to be registered to issue its securities in Jamaica. An example of the requirements is the submission of information and documents (including but not limited to financial statements, organizational documents, and a profile of directors and officers) to satisfy the FSC, including: (1) the overseas CIS which is from a jurisdiction where the laws and regulatory oversight for CIS are sufficient to ensure investor protection and market integrity and (2) the CIS which is in good standing in the foreign jurisdiction. The FSC has the power to request any other information to assess the application of the overseas CIS.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions on the purchase of bonds and other debt securities abroad. ADs, insurance companies, SDs, credit unions, cambios, exchange bureaus, CISs, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with directives from the MOFP. Commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies are ADs and have the widest remit to undertake dealings in relation to foreign currency and foreign currency instruments. According to Ministerial directives from the MOF, insurance companies and pension funds may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, as well as the foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Insurance Companies) Directions, and the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Pensions Funds) Directions. Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. SDs and CISs are allowed to invest in securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. On April 30, 2021, the permissible investments for SDs and CISs were expanded to include investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated in Jamaica and which are foreign exchange earners; publicly traded shares of entities incorporated in Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars that are earners of foreign exchange and whose debts are rated by credit rating agencies as investment grade; BOJ CDs denominated in foreign currency; GOJ guaranteed corporate foreign currency debt instruments issued by corporate entities incorporated in Jamaica, publicly traded shares of corporate entities incorporated outside of Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars, with market capitalization of US$10 billion or greater. The cap on these investment activities for SDs and CISs is 25%. From April 30, 2021, the permissible investments for insurance companies, pensions funds, CISs, and SDs are the same. No directives have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. Parties not in these categories are not limited in their acquisition of foreign assets but may otherwise be subject to the exemption requirements to proceed with a contemplated transaction once the activity fits the description of an activity under Section 22A(2) and (3) of the BOJ Act.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The Securities Act and the CISs Regulations, 2013, apply to residents.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	These are governed by securities under the Securities Act. The definition does not contemplate any financial commodity, contract, or instrument that may be gazetted from time to time. There is none gazetted at this time.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are no limitations.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to the Securities Act and the attendant requirements apply to nonresidents.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The Securities Act and the CIS Regulations, 2013, apply to residents.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	The Money Lending framework imposes certain requirements on non-financial institutions wishing to undertake lending activities in Jamaican dollars. The law sets forth, among other things, the prescribed maximum rate of interest (that is, rate beyond which interest cannot be charged and is periodically prescribed by the Ministerial order), the form of the lending agreement, and how money lenders may advertise. Commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies, nonbank financial institutions governed by the Insurance Act, and Securities Act, Industrial and Provident Societies and Friendly Societies; and statutory bodies incorporated for the purposes of lending money are exempt from the requirements of this law. The business of money lending in foreign currency is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the DTI's capital base (10% for a building society). (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit. The Microcredit Act governs the business of lending to individuals and to micro, small, and medium enterprises (MSMEs). The Act speaks to licensing and governance requirements, reflects BOJ is the regulator for these service providers, incorporates consumer related provisions on lending practices, which regime is overseen by the Consumer Affairs Commission, and includes penalties for non-compliance with the Act. Lending in foreign currency remains subject to the requirements of the BOJ Act and commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies, nonbank financial institutions governed by the Insurance Act, and Securities Act, Industrial and Provident Societies, and Friendly Societies; and statutory bodies incorporated for the purposes of lending money are exempt from the requirements of this law.
Commercial credits	Yes.	The Money Lending Act governs transactions involving persons who do not undertake the business of extending credit.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	In relation to private persons, such transactions are subject to the laws of the overseas jurisdiction. Licensed deposit takers (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the DTI's capital base (10% for a building society). (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	While all residents are free to conduct transactions in foreign currency, only ADs may undertake the business of lending in foreign currency. Otherwise, persons (such as nonresidents) wishing to undertake the business of lending in Jamaica must obtain the requisite exemption by Ministerial order to proceed.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Lending activities in Jamaica involving foreign currency are subject to the foreign currency dealings provisions of the BOJ Act. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the DTI's capital base. (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	The provisions of the Microcredit Act, Money Lending Act, and the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica. Money lending in foreign currency to persons resident in Jamaica is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act, and this extends to cases in which an overseas-based person conducts financing activities in foreign currency, or through foreign currency instruments, with a Jamaica-based person, regardless of whether negotiations take place and related contracts are executed outside Jamaica.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	In the case of individuals and non-financial firms, there are no restrictions. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the DTI's capital base. (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the bank's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	The provisions of the Microcredit Act, Money Lending Act, and possibly the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica. The business of money lending in foreign currency to persons resident in Jamaica is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act, and this extends to cases in which an overseas-based person conducts financing activities in foreign currency or through foreign currency instruments with a Jamaica-based person, regardless of whether negotiations take place and related contracts are executed outside Jamaica.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	The Exchange Control (Removal of Restrictions) Order of 1991 eliminated controls on outward direct investment. There are limits on investments by DTI that apply to equity investments. Aggregate shareholdings by a DTI may not exceed 50% of the DTI's capital base, and in any one company or enterprise may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	There are no limitations on the acquisition of shares in a company by nonresidents, except shares in locally incorporated licensed DTIs under the BSA, no more than 5% of which may be held by a foreign government or an agency of a foreign government without the written approval of the Supervisory Committee. The Supervisory Committee is the supervisory decision-making authority.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	To the extent that the liquidation of direct investment in locally incorporated licensed DTIs under the BSA amounts to divestment/transfers or disposal of shares, these are subject to the approval of the Supervisory Committee where the disposal involves 20% or more of the voting shares of the DTI. If the liquidation equates to a voluntary liquidation, this requires the approval of the supervisor of banks. To the extent that the liquidation of direct investment in a corporate SD amounts to a divestment/transfer or a disposal of shares that amounts to a change in ownership, the Securities Act mandates that corporate SDs and advisers be owned, controlled, or supervised by persons who are citizens of and habitually resident in Jamaica or a CARICOM member.
Controls on real estate transactions	No.	No controls are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, persons in the real estate business (that is, valuators, dealers, developers) are subject to the Real Estate Dealers and Developers Act and oversight by the Real Estate Board. Under the BOJ Act, foreign assets include real estate situated outside of Jamaica and the foreign asset acquisition restriction that applies to certain local financial firms includes real estate located outside of Jamaica.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	No restrictions are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, persons listed in Section 22B(1) of the BOJ Act are subject to restrictions, because this activity amounts to the acquisition of a foreign asset. Although licensed deposit takers under the BSA, who are also ADs, have the broadest permit to acquire foreign assets, they are also subject to prudential and statutory limits regarding the nature and quality of investments and fixed asset holdings, which may not exceed an amount equivalent to their capital base without the approval of the supervisor.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	No restrictions are in place in relation to transactions between private persons. However, transactions involving commercial enterprises in the real estate business are subject to the requirements of the Real Estate Dealers and Developers Act and the Real Estate Board. These persons are also designated non-financial institutions under the Proceeds of Crime Act (POCA) and are reporting entities under the Terrorism Prevention Act (TPA) and therefore have similar CDD obligations as banks and other financial institutions, when dealing with customers.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.	The Money Lending Act is applicable to transactions undertaken by persons who are not involved in the business of extending credit. Otherwise, if such transactions involve commercial enterprises, the BOJ Act may apply. In addition, the Companies Act specifically prohibits private companies from soliciting capital from the public. Any activities indicative of deposit-taking or securities business are expressly prohibited under the BSA and the Securities Act.
By residents to nonresidents	No.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply. In addition, the provisions of the Money Lending Act and possibly the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.	Depending on the circumstances, these matters may be subject to the existing succession laws (that is, the Probate of Deeds Act, the Inheritance (Provision for Family and Dependents) Act, the Intestate Estates and Property Charges Act, the Companies Act, the Proceeds of Crime Act), and applicable tax laws.
By residents to nonresidents	No.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply. In addition, the provisions of the Money Lending Act and possibly the BOJ Act apply, if the financing is offered and/or executed in Jamaica.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	No.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply.
Transfer of assets	No.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	No.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.	The laws of the overseas jurisdiction apply.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are generally authorized, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions under customs laws, income tax laws, and AML/CFT laws (where applicable in relation to financial institutions that facilitate the transfers), and the Betting, Gaming, and Lotteries Act.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Deposit-taking financial institutions may not invest on behalf of clients. This business is conducted by separate corporate entities. BOJ operates a foreign exchange facility for PSEs. The foreign exchange demand of PSEs is consolidated and met through this facility thereby minimizing volatility in the market. The surrender requirement for ADs is 20% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients, of which 15% is directed to the PSE facility and the additional 5% comprises the regular surrender arrangement for ADs. The surrender requirement for cambios is 15% of their daily foreign exchange purchases from commercial clients, of which 10% is directed to the PSE facility and 5% comprises the regular surrender arrangements for cambios.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Licensed deposit takers are not prohibited from borrowing overseas, but the extent to which such activities may be undertaken is subject to these persons continuing to meet the prudential and statutory limits regarding the nature and quality of investments. SDs, which are subject to margin and capital requirements, may not engage in credit operations that would result in a breach of margin and/or capital requirements.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	No restrictions apply, but institutions must be guided by local and overseas income tax laws in relation to any interest accrued and remitted to Jamaica as well as the AML/CFT/PF laws in this regard as well as the respective AML/CFT/PF guidance issued by functional regulators.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Licensed deposit takers under the BSA are not prohibited from lending overseas, but the extent to which such activities may be undertaken is subject to these persons continuing to meet the prudential and statutory limits regarding the nature and quality of such facilities as well as any financial regulations operating in that jurisdiction. The following limits apply: financial institutions (operating under the BSA, that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) and financial institutions (operating under Insurance Act and Securities Act) are exempt from the requirements of the Money Lending Act and the Microcredit Act. The business of money lending in foreign currency is subject to the provisions of the BOJ Act. Licensed deposit takers under the BSA (that is, commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies) are subject to statutory lending limits and other prudential requirements applicable to the extension of credit as follows: (1) Facilities to any one person (not another bank) may not exceed in the aggregate 20% of a DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 5% of the DTI's capital base. (2) Facilities to a group may not exceed in the aggregate 40% of the DTI's capital base; for any portion of such credit facilities that is unsecured, that portion may not exceed 10% of the DTI's capital base. There are also prudential provisioning requirements applicable to the extension of credit. In relation to the DTIs, the BSA 2014 repealed Banking Act (BA) and Financial Institutions Act (FIA), which governed these entities and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. The BSA came into force September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the Minister of Finance. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139). SDs are subject to margin and capital requirements and may not engage in credit operations that would result in a breach of margin and/or capital requirements.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Currently, lending in foreign currency may be carried out only by ADs. Other commercial lenders may apply for exemptions issued by the MOF.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Any person may purchase instruments denominated in foreign currency. ADs have the broadest permit to carry out transactions with securities issued in foreign currency. Other specific categories of companies are allowed to acquire foreign securities only in accordance with the directives issued by the MOF. Deposit takers must hold capital on a risk-weighted basis that depends on the classes of assets held.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	Commercial banks and other licensed DTIs under the BSA may be required to match their Jamaican dollar liabilities to their clients with Jamaican dollar assets.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Effective April 1, 2023, the minimum cash reserve requirement for domestic-currency-denominated liabilities is 6% (before it was 5%). The requirement on foreign currency liabilities is 14% (before 13%). The cash reserve and liquid assets requirements are differentially applied to building societies not meeting a prescribed threshold of qualifying assets (residential mortgage lending) in relation to savings funds. For building societies, domestic and foreign currency reserve requirements are based on building societies meeting the 40% threshold for domestic-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to domestic currency deposits and withdrawable shares and for foreign-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to foreign currency deposits and withdrawable shares. Societies that meet the qualifying assets threshold have lower requirements of 1% and 5% for the cash reserve and liquid assets ratios, respectively. Higher requirements apply to societies that fail to meet the prescribed thresholds. The BSA came into effect September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the Minister of Finance. The BSA repealed and replaced the BA and FIA and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139), unless expressly revoked.

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Effective April 1, 2022, the LAR for domestic currency and foreign liabilities of commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies was reduced to 14% (previously 19%) and 22% (previously 29%), respectively. Effective July 1, 2022, the LAR for domestic currency and foreign liabilities was reduced to 9% and 17%, respectively. Effective October 1, 2022, the LAR for domestic currency and foreign liabilities of commercial banks, merchant banks, and building societies was reduced to 5% and 13%, respectively. The cash reserve and liquid assets requirements are differentially applied to building societies not meeting a prescribed threshold of qualifying assets (residential mortgage lending) in relation to savings funds. For building societies, domestic and foreign currency reserve requirements are based on building societies meeting the 40% threshold for domestic-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to domestic currency deposits and withdrawable shares and for foreign-currency-denominated qualifying assets in relation to foreign currency deposits and withdrawable shares. Societies that meet the qualifying assets threshold have lower requirements of 1% and 5% for the cash reserve and LARs, respectively. Higher requirements apply to societies that fail to meet the prescribed thresholds. Debt securities and instruments issued by the GOJ, whether denominated in Jamaican dollars or in foreign currency and regardless of original maturity, are designated liquid assets within nine months of maturity. The BSA came into force September 30, 2015, by Appointed Day Notice signed by the minister of finance. The BSA repealed and replaced the BA and FIA and substantially amended the Building Societies Act. However, notwithstanding the repeal of the BA and FIA and amendment of the Building Societies Act, regulations (including notices and notifications) under the repealed enactments remain in effect with such changes as may be necessary, as if made under the BSA (Section 139) unless expressly revoked. Following a series of phased reductions (effective April 1, 2022, from 14% to 9%, effective July 1, 2022, from 9% to 4%, effective October 1, 2022, from 4% to 0%), the non-cash portion of the liquid asset requirement (LAR) in domestic and in foreign currency for DTIs was eliminated. The coexistence of the LAR and a LCR represented a regulatory burden for DTIs, making it necessary for the non-cash portion of the LAR to be phased out entirely. Licensees are expected to be able to meet their liquidity needs, as measured by the LCR (minimum limit of 100%), in each significant currency, where a significant currency is defined as one that comprises at least 5% of a DTI's total liabilities or at least 5% of a Financial Holding Company's total consolidated liabilities.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts	No.	Deposit accounts, whether held by residents or nonresidents, are held by nonresidents		treated alike, except for the tax treatment of A accounts.

Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.	Banks may not engage in managed funds activities on behalf of customers or other third parties.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	There are limits on investments by DTIs that apply to equity investments. Aggregate shareholding may not exceed 50% of the capital base, and in any one company may not exceed 10% of the capital base.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Substantial ownership (that is, holdings of 20% or more) in banks is subject to the Supervisory Committee. Foreign governments and their agents may not hold more than 5% of the shares in locally incorporated commercial banks and licensed DTIs, unless the Supervisory Committee approves. Pursuant to the BSA, the Supervisory Committee replaces the Minister of Finance as the supervisory decision-making authority.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	ADs' NOP limits for long positions are 15% of capital or J$4.5 billion (whichever is lower) and for short positions 25% or J$7.5 billion (whichever is higher).
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	ADs' NOP limits for long positions are 15% of capital or J$4.5 billion (whichever is lower) and for short positions 25% or J$7.5 billion (whichever is higher).
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	As of 2017, GOJ foreign currency exposures were 100% risk-weighted. Foreign currency bonds issued by the GOJ adhere to the global standard as set out in the Basel Accord. ADs, insurance companies, credit unions, building societies, cambios and exchange bureaus, CISs, and pension fund managers may not acquire foreign assets, except in accordance with directives issued by the MOF. No directions have been issued to authorize the acquisition of foreign assets by credit unions. These transactions may be undertaken in accordance with the requisite exemption orders issued under the BOJ Act. Stipulated requirements are the standard minimum requirements. The insurance, securities, and pension sector have specific legislations and attendant regulations.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance companies are subject to the requirements of the Insurance Act and its regulations and to all other regulatory requirements issued by the FSC. Insurance companies may acquire securities issued by the GOJ and securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States as well as the foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Insurance Companies) Directions issued October 2020 and April 2021 (see definition of "Allowable Foreign Assets"). Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of total assets. These permissions apply in relation to permissible insurance business which is defined as including General insurance business as defined under the Insurance Act; Ordinary Long-Term Insurance Business as defined under the Insurance Act, excluding Equity Linked Insurance Products; and Sickness and Health Insurance Business. These requirements are the standard minimum requirements. Insurance regulations 38–72 govern the investments that an insurance company may make, specifying, for example, eligible investments, portfolio limits, and prohibited investments. Since 2020, insurance companies have been communicated by the BOJ through statutory directions issued under the BOJ Act.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance companies may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States and foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Insurance Companies) Directions (see definition of "Allowable Foreign Assets"). Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies. Pursuant to Regulation No. 59 of the Insurance Regulations, an insurer that is authorized to transact business on a branch basis in a foreign country may hold foreign securities of that country not exceeding its deposit and reserve obligations incurred in that country.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurance companies may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States and foreign assets set out in BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Asset Limit) (Insurance Companies) Directions(see definition of "Allowable Foreign Assets"). Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies. Matching assets must be held in relation to liabilities.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	No specific regulation requires a minimum on local portfolio holdings. However, directives include maximums for institutions' foreign investment (that is, no more than 10% of total assets in foreign assets).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Insurance companies must ensure that matching assets are held against liabilities incurred. Insurance companies are expected to apply an asset liability management program that is appropriate to the nature, scale, and complexity of the risk and its business. The insurance act was amended to expand the powers of the FSC to prescribe regulations for insurers to establish risk management procedures based on international standards, allowing the Commission to introduce new regulations which will require insurers to carry out annual stress testing and implement asset liability management policies and procedures to assess and mitigate the risk to which these entities are exposed in their daily business activities.
Pension funds	Yes.	The Pensions (Superannuation Funds and Retirement Schemes) Act and regulations and directions from the BOJ in relation to the acquisition of foreign assets apply. The Pensions (Superannuation Funds and Retirement Schemes) (Investment) regulations governed the pension plans' investment. Investment in ordinary shares must be from a recognized stock exchange of a recognized jurisdiction. Recognized jurisdiction is defined as Canada, United Kingdom, or United States. Limits were communicated by the BOJ on a case-by-case basis or on request and thereafter by Directions of October 2020, and April 30, 2021.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For pension funds that acquire foreign assets as part of their business activities, purchases must be in accordance with directions issued by the MOF. Accordingly, pension funds may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, or the United States, and foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Assets Limit) (Pensions Funds), Directions (see definition of "Allowable Foreign Assets"). Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. These requirements are the standard minimum requirements and may change.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	For pension funds that acquire foreign assets as part of their business activities, purchases must be in accordance with directives issued by the MOF and the BOJ Act Section 22B(1). Pension funds may acquire only securities issued or guaranteed by the governments of Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States, and foreign assets set out in the BOJ (Dealings in Foreign Currency) (Foreign Assets Limit) (Pensions Funds), Directions (see definition of "Allowable Foreign Assets"). Foreign assets may not exceed 10% of the total assets of insurance companies and pension funds. These requirements are the standard minimum requirements and may change.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	No specific regulation requires a minimum on local portfolio holdings. However, directives include maximums for institutions' foreign investment (that is, no more than 10% of total assets in foreign assets).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	While pension legislation does not explicitly require currency matching, it is a criterion considered in evaluating the maturity profile of the assets and liabilities of a pension plan.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	SDs (investment firms) must be incorporated in Jamaica or CARICOM member countries. For CIS, the CIS Regulations—Parts II and III provide for the registration for both local and overseas CIS, respectively. Part III of the CIS Regulations states the requirements for overseas CIS to be registered to issue its securities in Jamaica. An example of the requirements is the submission of information and documents (including but is not limited to financial statements, organizational documents, and a profile of directors and officers) to satisfy the FSC, including: (1) the overseas CIS which is from a jurisdiction where the laws and regulatory oversight for CIS are sufficient to ensure investor protection and market integrity and (2) the CIS which is in good standing in the foreign jurisdiction.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	CIS Regulation 33 mandates investment restrictions for CIS. For example, (1) no more than 15% of the scheme's net assets may be invested in illiquid assets and (2) no more than 10% of the scheme's net assets may consist of securities from one issuer, except in the case of securities that are issued or guaranteed by the GOJ and the BOJ and issued by any government where those securities have received an investment grade credit rating. For the SDs, there are concentration limits and large exposure limits. For the purchase of foreign securities, the cap on foreign assets for SDs and CISs' investments is 25%. The permissible investment activities also include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside of Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. On April 30, 2021, the permissible investment activities were expanded to include investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated in Jamaica and which are foreign exchange earners; publicly traded shares of entities incorporated in Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars that are earners of foreign exchange and whose debts are rated by credit rating agencies as investment grade; BOJ CDs denominated in foreign currency; GOJ guaranteed corporate foreign currency debt instruments issued by corporate entities incorporated in Jamaica, publicly traded shares of corporate entities incorporated outside of Jamaica with shares issued in United States dollars, Great Britain pounds, euros, or Canada dollars, with market capitalization of US$10 billion or greater.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	CIS Regulation 33 mandates investment restrictions for CIS. For example, (1) no more than 15% of the scheme's net assets may be invested in illiquid assets and (2) no more than 10% of the scheme's net assets may consist of securities from one issuer, except in the case of securities that are issued or guaranteed by the GOJ and the BOJ and issued by any government where those securities have

For the purchase of foreign securities, the cap on foreign assets for SDs and CISs' investments is 25%. The permissible investment activities also include investment grade sovereign obligations, investment grade corporate obligations of entities incorporated outside of Jamaica, and shares of such corporations. Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	No regulation specifies a minimum on local portfolio holdings. However, directives include maximums for institutions' foreign investment (that is, no more than 25% of total assets in foreign assets).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	Although securities legislation does not explicitly state that a SD must match the currency composition of assets against liabilities, in calculating the capital adequacy ratio, a dealer must measure its exposure in each foreign currency position by deducting all liability amounts from all asset amounts in each currency. The overall net position is added to the total of the dealer's risk-weighted assets in determining the capital adequacy ratio. Implicitly, it is in a dealer's best interest to match the foreign currency asset and liability positions or to hold additional capital against this specific exposure.

Digital Currencies and Crypto Assets

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	Yes.	JAM-DEX®, Jamaica's central bank digital currency (CBDC), was launched July 1, 2022, to the public and operates using a hybrid system within which BOJ issues currency to DTIs and authorized Payment Service Providers. These entities then distribute JAM-DEX to the retail market. The CBDC issued by BOJ is solely for domestic use. Amendment to Section 10 of principal act states that the currency of the island is notes, coins, and CBDC.
Retail	Yes.	Effective July 1, 2022, a domestic retail CBDC was launched as a part of a hybrid system. To use CBDC, retail consumers require a CBDC wallet, which is different from a regular bank account and much easier and simpler to obtain, with streamlined and simplified KYC requirements. While persons who already have bank accounts will be able to automatically obtain a CBDC account, authorized Payment Service Providers as well as DTI's will be able to on-board unbanked customers. Customers will be able to transfer and convert funds seamlessly between regular and CBDC wallets. To carry out CBDC transactions anywhere and at any time, consumers will be able to access, download and deploy a mobile wallet app on any smart phone, tablet or similar compatible device using the networks of both major telecom service providers. Customers will also be able to top-up their wallets with CBDC through all authorized agents or smart ABMs and do business using CBDC phone-to-phone with merchants.

Wholesale	Yes.	Effective July 1, 2022, a domestic wholesale CBDC was launched as a part of a hybrid system JAM-DEX® is fully integrated with the existing large value financial market infrastructure – the RTGS and makes use of already available telecommunications infrastructures. Thus, JAM-DEX® does not utilize blockchain technology, but instead uses the traditional technology associated with the BOJ RTGS that allows for seamless interfacing and integration. The JAM-DEX® platform is based on a proprietary system developed by eCurrency Mint Inc. (eCurrency). Through a licensing arrangement, eCurrency retains the intellectual property rights and BOJ has the right of use of the JAM-DEX® solution. Supporting system components include the digital currency minting and issuance module; e-Wallets applications that are enabled for iOS and Android devices; and financial institutions' applications. eCurrency's solution supports a two-tier architecture and public-private partnership in which the BOJ is the sole issuer of CBDC, while private sector payment networks enable its distribution, storage, and transaction. BOJ's data is protected by a backup and recovery solution that allows for the effective recovery of data in the event of system loss/failure, which is tested as part of business continuity management. Wallet providers invest in this technology at their own cost.

Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating. The exchange rate of the yen is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. However, the authorities intervene when necessary to counter disorderly conditions in the market. The principal intervention currency is the US dollar. Interventions fall within the mandate of the MOF, which publishes daily purchases and sales amounts as well as intervention currencies on its website. The Bank of Japan (BOJ), acting as agent of the Minister of Finance, intervenes in the market through financial institutions and/or brokers. The MOF intervened in the foreign exchange market in September 22, October 21, and October 24, 2022, to address excess volatility and disorderly exchange rate movement for the first time since 2011. The MOF publishes monthly data on foreign exchange interventions in its monthly press release.

Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board	Yes.	In January 2013, the BOJ decided to set the "price stability target" under the framework for the conduct of monetary policy by majority vote. The "price stability target" is also stated in the joint statement of the government and the BOJ on Overcoming Deflation and Achieving Sustainable Economic Growth, released at the same time. The "price stability target" is set by the Board of the BOJ.

Target horizon	Yes.	The BOJ aims to achieve the price stability target of 2% at the earliest possible time (Joint Statement of the Government and the BOJ on Overcoming Deflation and Achieving Sustainable Economic Growth of January 2013).
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	A negative interest rate of minus 0.1% to the policy rate balances in current accounts held by financial institutions at the BOJ is the short-term policy interest rate. The BOJ also targets the 10-year Japanese Government Bond (JGB) yield at around 0%. In 2018, with a view to persistently continuing with powerful monetary easing, the BOJ decided to strengthen its commitment to achieving the price stability target by introducing forward guidance for policy rates. The BOJ has lifted the quantitative target for the annual JGB purchases of ¥80 trillion and will purchase a necessary amount of JGBs without setting an upper limit on its guidance on JGB purchases to maintain 10-year JGB yields at around 0%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	Effective October 31, 2023, the BOJ decided to maintain the target level of 10-year Japanese government bond (JGB) yields at around 0% and conduct yield curve control with the upper bound of 1% for these yields as a reference. Previously, the band around the 10-year JGB yield target was +/- 25 bps, and "fixed-rate purchase operations for consecutive days" could be used to set an upper limit on interest rates when necessary.

Other	No.
Transparency	Yes.	The BOJ releases the Outlook for Economic Activity and Prices (Outlook Report) quarterly (usually January, April, July, and October). The Outlook Report presents the BOJ's outlook for developments in economic activity and prices, assesses upside and downside risks, and outlines its views on the future course of monetary policy. The Monetary Policy Meetings are held eight times a year, and the Statement on Monetary Policy is released immediately after the meeting. The Summary of Opinions is published about a week after the meeting.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Votes are published in the Statement on Monetary Policy.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	The minutes of each Monetary Policy Meeting are published after the following meeting. The transcript of each Monetary Policy Meeting is published ten years after the Monetary Policy Meeting (available only in Japanese).

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Japanese tariff system is stipulated by the Customs Law, Customs Tariff Law, and Temporary Tariff Measures Law. The harmonized classification schedule annexed in the Customs Tariff Law sets out both the classification and the corresponding customs duty rate (called the general rate) of particular products. The rate actually applied, however, is not necessarily the general rate. The Temporary Tariff Measures Law sets out the temporary rate for certain products, which in these cases prevails over the general rate. In addition, when the customs duty rate in the WTO Concession Schedule (so-called WTO rate) is lower than the general rate (or the temporary rate, if applicable), the WTO rate is applied. For designated developing countries and areas, the Temporary Tariff Measures Law also provides a preferential rate, which is applicable to certain products and lower than the above rates. The Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) rate is applicable to the originating goods of the party.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Controls apply to the extent that the purchase of shares is affected by laws on inward direct investment. Pursuant to the Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Act (FEFTA) passed in November 2019 and its subsequent regulations, there is an exemption scheme for prior notification for stock purchases and the threshold for inward direct investment in designated industries that requires prior notification is 1%. The prior notification of stock purchases is exempted for investors that comply with the following conditions: (1) Investors or their closely related persons do not become board members of the investee company; (2) investors do not propose to the general shareholders' meeting transfer or disposition of investee company's business activities in the designated business sectors; and (3) investors do not access non-public information about the investee company's technology in relation to business activities in the designated business sectors. Foreign state-owned entities cannot be exempt. However, sovereign wealth funds may be exempt from "prior notification" requirements only if Ministry of Finance accredits them. Foreign financial institutions (banks, asset management companies, registered investment companies, etc.) are exempt with no threshold.

		electricity, gas, heat supply, telecommunications, broadcasting, water, railroad, and passenger transport; (3) Protection of public safety: biological and security industries; (4) Smooth operation of the Japanese economy: oil, leather and leather products, agriculture, forestry and fisheries, air transport, and maritime industries; and (5) investment by investors from countries with which Japan does not have a treaty or other international agreement on inward direct investment, for reciprocity reasons. The amended FEFTA passed in November 2019 and its subsequent regulations introduced the exemption scheme for prior notification for stock purchases. The FEFTA threshold for inward direct investment in designated industries that requires prior notification is 1%. The following industries have been designated as industries that require prior notification in response to changing domestic and international circumstances: (1) manufacturing of medicine for communicable diseases and medical equipment since 2020; (2) business relating to critical minerals since 2021; and (3) some business sectors contributing to securing stable supply chains of critical goods, such as metals and mineral products refining and storage battery manufacturing effective May 24, 2023. Under the Act on Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation, etc., direct and indirect foreign capital participation in the Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation must be less than one-third. Under the Radio Act and Broadcasting Act, foreigners and foreign-controlled firms, etc., may not hold licenses to operate broadcasting stations nor be approved as broadcasters. Firms are considered foreign controlled if any of their executive directors are foreigners or if foreigners hold at least one-fifth (for territorial broadcasters, including indirect investment) or one-third (for facility-supplying broadcasters) of voting rights. Under the Civil Aeronautics Law, only firms with less than one-third of voting rights held by foreigners and in which none of the representatives and less than one-third of the board of directors are foreigners may hold a license to operate an air transport business.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	For payment companies licensed by the CBJ to issue and manage credit payment instruments, the provisions of Paragraph A of Article 16 of the bylaw of Electronic Payment and Money Transfer No. (111) of 2017 apply.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Licensed banks may lend to nonresidents who engage in business activities in Jordan. Licensed banks are not permitted to lend nonresidents who do not engage in business activities in Jordan.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Pursuant to Instructions No. 2/2021, the granting of direct facilities in foreign currencies is prohibited. However, there are exceptions allowing funding activities or services that can generate foreign currencies not less than the periodic prepayment plus interest, which includes export and reexport purposes, tourism, transportation, and hotels. Funding building construction in foreign currencies is prohibited in all cases. These instructions aim to put the determinants of granting direct credit facilities in foreign currency in addition to providing the determinants of granting credit facilities to persons who do not conduct an activity inside the Kingdom and/or finance activities outside the Kingdom.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	The reserve requirement is 7% for current and call accounts, 5% for saving accounts, notice accounts, term deposits, and certificates of deposit accounts (applicable to commercial banks), 6% for current and call accounts, and 4% for saving accounts, notice accounts, term deposits, and certificates of deposit (applicable to Islamic banks) in dinars and foreign exchange.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	According to CBJ Instructions for Legal Liquidity No. 37/2007 of 2007, banks must keep liquid assets equal to at least 100% of their weighted liabilities in all currencies (including dinars) and at least 70% of their weighted liabilities in dinars. LCR Regulations No. 5/2020 requires banks to have an adequate stock of unencumbered liquid assets that can be converted immediately to cash to meet its liquidity needs for the next 30 days under specific stress scenarios. At a minimum, these liquid assets should enable the bank to continue performing its activities until day 30 of the specified stress scenario, by which time it is assumed that the bank management had acted appropriately to solve the liquidity crisis. Banks must maintain at all times an LCR in the minimum of 100% of its weighted liabilities on both levels (consolidated and branches in Jordan). Limits stated in the instructions are the minimum limits for applying the LCR standard and become binding for banks.
Interest rate controls	No.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The National Bank of the Republic of Kazakhstan (NBK) publishes monthly data on foreign exchange interventions on a regular basis, with time series available beginning in January 1996. Data are usually published within two weeks of the end of the reporting period. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The NBK sets the official exchange rate of the domestic currency with respect to foreign currencies on a daily basis on business days on which the stock exchange holds foreign currency trading. The weighted average market exchange rate of the domestic currency against the US dollar as of 3:30 p.m. Nur-Sultan time, based on the results of the stock exchange session, is set as the official exchange rate of the domestic currency against the US dollar for the business day following the trading day. For other foreign currencies, the market exchange rate of the domestic currency with respect to a foreign currency is calculated by the NBK using the cross-rate against the US dollar, arrived at in accordance with the demand quotes received through news agency channels as of 4:00 p.m. Nur-Sultan time on a stock exchange trading day, and it is set as the official exchange rate for the next business day. On nonbusiness days, the NBK exchange rates on the business day preceding the nonbusiness day are in effect. The NBK publishes daily exchange rates of certain currencies against the tenge for accounting and computation of customs and other mandatory payments to the budget.

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	The monetary policy is based on an inflation-targeting framework. The annual inflation rate at the end of the year is compared with the target inflation range. There are no provisions addressing the consequences of a failure to meet the inflation target. The consequences if inflation misses its target have not been specified.
Target setting body	Yes.
Government
Central Bank	Yes.
Monetary Policy Committee	Yes.	The MPC of the NBK is a decision-making body on monetary policy issues. It (1) sets the base rate; (2) sets the interest rates on the main operations of monetary policy; and (3) makes decisions on other issues of monetary policy that are not within the exclusive purview of the NBK Board. The MPC issues decrees on matters within its purview.
Central Bank Board	Yes.	The inflation target is set by the NBK Executive Board, which consists of five representatives of the NBK, a representative from the Presidential Administration of the Republic of Kazakhstan, the first deputy prime minister of Kazakhstan, the minister of national economy, and the chair of the Agency of the Republic of Kazakhstan for Regulation and Development of the Financial Market. The NBK Executive Board approves the government's monetary policy, within whose framework targets are set. Decisions at meetings of the Executive Board are adopted by a majority vote of the Executive Board members present. In the event of a tie, the NBK chair casts the deciding vote. Meetings of the Executive Board are legally valid if the members present constitute a quorum, defined as at least two-thirds of Executive Board members, which must include the NBK chair or a person serving in the chair's place. There are no legal provisions regarding adjustment of the target; however, the NBK's position is that a target already set is not subject to change.

Government and Central Bank
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range	Yes.	The NBK set a target band for inflation in 2021–2022 at 4%–6%. Beginning in 2023, there will be an intermediate target of 4%–5%, which will allow for a smoother slowdown in inflation. The 3%–4% target is expected to be achieved beginning in 2025.
Target measure	Yes.	Target inflation is expressed in terms of year-end inflation (December over December of the previous year).
CPI	Yes.	For the purposes of inflation targeting, the CPI is used. The CPI is calculated by the Bureau of National Statistics of the Agency for Strategic Planning and Reforms. The CPI describes the change over time in average prices for a fixed basket of goods and services purchased by the public for personal consumption.
Core inflation

Target horizon	Yes.	The horizon for reaching the inflation target is over the medium term.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The NBK targets the short-term money market rate TONIA (tenge overnight index average), which is the weighted average interest rate on overnight repo transactions on the Kazakhstan Stock Exchange (KASE) in the automatic repo sector. For the purpose of greater representativeness and to establish a money market interest rate benchmark, TONIA is calculated at the end of each working day as a weighted average value of the profitability of one-day repo operations with a cutoff of 5% of transactions with the lowest and highest profitability. The threshold volume of transactions for the calculation of TONIA is set at T 100 billion. If the threshold value of the volume of transactions per day is not reached, TONIA is defined as the sum of the value of the base rate set by the NBK effective that day and the average spread of TONIA to the base rate for the previous five days.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The NBK sets a base rate with a corridor of ±100 basis points. The NBK has standing deposit and liquidity provision facilities.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	No.
Other	Yes.	Reporting takes place as part of a memorandum approved by the chief of the Republic of Kazakhstan Presidential Administration, as well as presentation of the annual report of the NBK.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	No.	Votes are not published. There are press releases regarding the base rate.
Publication of minutes	No.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Inflation forecasts are published quarterly in “Inflation Forecast” press releases and in quarterly “Inflation Surveys.”
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market includes the KASE, which conducts daily trading online using an electronic trading system; an OTC interbank market; and a network of exchange bureaus handling foreign exchange cash transactions.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized banks conduct spot transactions on the KASE and in the interbank market. Residents and nonresidents purchase and sell foreign currency in the Republic of Kazakhstan exclusively with banks authorized to engage in exchange operations with foreign currency, through foreign exchange bureaus of such authorized banks, and through foreign exchange bureaus of authorized institutions following the procedure established by the NBK. Licenses to conduct foreign exchange transactions (as part of a general banking license) are issued to authorized banks by the NBK.

		Banks authorized to conduct transactions in foreign currency in accordance with their licenses or under the law may freely purchase and sell foreign currency both in the Republic of Kazakhstan and abroad. As of December 31, 2022, there were 26 institutions that held licenses to perform banking and other operations. The NBK issues licenses for exchange operations with foreign currency in cash, which authorizes the exclusive activity of foreign currency exchange operations in cash and the purchase and sale of refined gold bullion with individuals. Nonbank exchange bureaus do not have the right to conduct foreign exchange operations directly with the NBK. Nonbank exchange bureaus may not make payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their customers. They may open accounts abroad and may purchase foreign currency from and sell foreign currency to authorized banks and the public. As of December 31, 2022, there were 2,247 bank and nonbank foreign exchange bureaus performing operations with foreign exchange cash. Banks, authorized institutions, and nonbank foreign exchange bureaus set their exchange rates independently. Pursuant to NBK Resolution No. 296 of November 29, 2018, the limits (T 6 and T 7 for the US dollar and the euro, respectively) on the margin between the buying and selling rates of cash in US dollars and euros for tenge cash transactions conducted with the public through exchange bureaus were eliminated. However, by Resolution No. 33 of March 19, 2020, the NBK reestablished the limits on the margin between the buying and selling rates on cash foreign exchange transactions against tenge conducted by individuals through exchange offices of authorized banks and authorized nonbanking organizations as follows: T 6 for the US dollar and T 7 for the euro. The resolution was adopted in the context of COVID-19. Given the lack of consensus with regard to the outlook for an end to the negative impact of external economic factors related to COVID-19 on the country's economy and the domestic foreign exchange market, under NBK Executive Board Resolution No. 86 of July 14, 2020, on the Establishment of Limits on the Margin between Buying and Selling Rates for Foreign Exchange Transactions against the Tenge Performed through Exchange Offices (taking into account the changes made on December 21, 2020), the decision was made to extend the margin limits of T 6 for US dollars and T 7 for euros until January 1, 2022. There are no provisions with regard to commissions on the sale and purchase of foreign exchange cash through exchange bureaus.

Interbank market	Yes.	Banks conduct transactions in the KASE and in the OTC interbank market at freely negotiated rates. Daily online trading is carried out using an electronic trading system, through which participants submit their bids. The NBK monitors the trading sessions and if necessary participates in trading. The NBK participates in trading sessions via a remote terminal or sends a trader to the trading floor if the remote connection is not available. Internal regulations of the KASE govern trade execution and settlement. Banks set their own exchange rates. There are no limits on the commissions charged by market

Brokerage	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, the number of organizations with a brokerage and (or) dealer license was 38 (including second-tier banks).
Market making	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, 19 organizations were market makers for financial instruments.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange futures are quoted in the KASE. Swap transactions are allowed in the KASE. The NBK participates in foreign exchange swap transactions in the KASE. Forward exchange operations are conducted in the interbank market. Forward transactions are not conducted in the KASE.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments and transfers between residents take place in domestic currency, except in cases specified by the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control. Payments and transfers of funds in transactions with nonresidents may be performed in any currency. A payment and/or transfer of funds in domestic currency between a resident and a nonresident is treated as a foreign exchange transaction.

Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange control is administered by the government, the NBK, and other foreign exchange control bodies and agents in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control and legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan. The NBK and other government bodies (the MOF, the Public Revenue Committee under the MOF) serve as foreign exchange control agents in accordance with the scope of authority established by legislation. Authorized banks, nonbank exchange bureaus, and professional participants in the securities market who perform foreign exchange transactions for their clients serve as foreign exchange control agents. The NBK monitors compliance by residents and nonresidents with the requirements of foreign exchange legislation and performance of the functions of foreign exchange control agents by authorized banks and nonbank exchange bureaus. The Agency of the Republic of Kazakhstan for the Regulation and Development of the Financial Market licenses banks and financial institutions to engage in banking operations in foreign exchange and supervises the activities of banks and other financial institutions. The NBK also licenses nonbank exchange bureaus and supervises their activities. The MOF monitors and supervises government loans and government-guaranteed loans. Public revenue authorities (the Public Revenue Committee of the MOF) participate in foreign exchange control related to exports and imports. At the time of customs clearance of goods, an authorized official of a territorial subdivision of the public revenue body—when there is an export or import foreign exchange contract that requires the assignment of a record number in accordance with the Rules for Export-Import Foreign Exchange Control in the Republic of Kazakhstan—checks the record number of the export or import foreign exchange contract entered in the declaration of the goods against the information received regarding the export or import foreign exchange contract with a record number. If there is a discrepancy between the declaration and the actual information, the exporter or importer must make the relevant corrections to the declaration of goods following the procedure established by the customs legislation of Kazakhstan. Government agencies that issue export and import licenses also monitor compliance with eligibility criteria and licensing rules.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Public (trade) relations arising in the production of precious metals and the turnover of precious metals and precious stones, raw materials containing precious metals, and jewelry and other products made of precious metals and precious stones are regulated by currency legislation and the legislation of Kazakhstan on precious metals and by international treaties. In accordance with currency legislation, authorized banks and authorized organizations may carry out, through their exchange offices, transactions for the purchase and (or) sale of refined gold bullion, as issued by the NBK. Refined gold bullion is classified as a foreign exchange asset, and transactions with it for domestic currency are classified as foreign exchange transactions and are subject to the same regulation as other foreign exchange transactions.

		Refined gold and gold for minting coins are classified as commodities subject to export restrictions under Decision No. 30 of the Board of the Eurasian Economic Commission (EAEC) of April 21, 2015, on Nontariff Regulatory Measures. (This restriction does not extend to the CBs of EAEU member states.)
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	According to the AML/CFT law, a transaction, purchase, or sale of precious metals and precious stones and jewelry, including in cash form, is subject to financial monitoring if the transaction amount is equal to or exceeds T 5 million or the equivalent in foreign currency. Data and information on transactions subject to financial monitoring are sent to the Agency of the Republic of Kazakhstan for Financial Monitoring.
On external trade	Yes.	The Ministry of Industry and Infrastructure Development administers government control of imports and exports of precious metals and commodities containing precious metals. EAEU member states apply identical controls on external trade in gold. Refined gold bullion is classified as a foreign exchange asset, and transactions with it are classified as foreign exchange transactions and are subject to the same regulation as other foreign exchange transactions. Refined gold and gold for minting coins are classified as commodities subject to export restrictions under Decision No. 30 of the Board of the EAEC of April 21, 2015, on Nontariff Regulatory Measures; specifically, a license is issued in accordance with the Instruction on the Preparation of an Application for a License to Export and/or Import Certain Types of Goods and on the Preparation of Such a License, approved by Decision No. 199 of the Board of the EAEC of November 6, 2014, along with a government control document. (This restriction does not extend to CBs of EAEU member states.) Exports of precious metals, including refined gold bullion, from the EAEU require a license from the pertinent EAEU government authority where the exporter is registered. Exports of precious metal coins from the EAEU require a government control document. Exports from the EAEU of precious metal coins that are the legal tender of an EAEU member are handled by that country's CB and commercial banks.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	Within the EAEU, individuals may move cash and/or monetary instruments in an unlimited amount and without declaration. A declaration is required in the case of imports by individuals from third countries (countries that are not EAEU members) or exports by individuals to third countries of cash and/or traveler's checks exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 and of monetary instruments denominated in domestic and foreign currency (for example, bills of exchange, bank checks, certified bearer securities). Banks are permitted to freely import and export domestic and foreign currency, provided they comply with the requirements of the customs legislation.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	For individuals, cash and/or traveler's checks are subject to customs declaration if the total amount imported into or exported from the customs territory of the EAEU at one time exceeds the equivalent of US$10,000 at the exchange rate in effect on the day the passenger customs declaration is presented to a customs authority. For legal entities, domestic currency banknotes are subject to customs declaration as goods.

Other nontariff measures	Yes.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Imports of goods are subject to (1) VAT of 12% and customs duties (some exemptions); (2) excise taxes, where applicable; and (3) antidumping protective and compensatory duties, if applicable. Imports from EAEU member countries are exempt from customs duties. There is a uniform customs tariff within the EAEU, along with other uniform measures for regulating trade in goods with third countries, in accordance with the Treaty on the EAEU of May 29, 2014 (EAEC Council Decision No. 54 of July 16, 2012, on Approval of the Uniform Foreign Economic Activity Commodity Nomenclature of the EAEU and the Uniform Customs Tariff of the EAEU). To meet tariff obligations of Russia and the Republic of Kazakhstan with the WTO for 2018, in accordance with EAEC Council Decision No. 66 of July 13, 2018, and EAEC Board Decision No. 94 of June 5, 2018, import customs duty rates were lowered for 179 tariff subheadings beginning September 1, 2018. To meet the Republic of Kazakhstan's tariff obligations for 2017–2018 that differ from those of Russia, on December 1, 2017, Kazakhstan's import tariffs for 2,475 tariff lines were lowered by an average of 1.4 percentage points. Import duty rates are also in effect pursuant to Order No. 105 of the Republic of Kazakhstan Minister of the National Economy of December 19, 2018, on an Amendment to Order No. 58 of the Republic of Kazakhstan Minister of the National Economy of February 9, 2017, on Approval of a List of Goods Subject to Import Customs Duties, Their Rates, and Effective Dates.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Residents (with the exception of a branch office (representative office) of a foreign organization) must ensure that domestic and foreign currency received in payment for exports of goods (work, services) is credited to accounts at authorized banks within the time period stipulated by the terms of the contract.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The repatriation requirement is considered to have been met in full or in part if: (1) proceeds in domestic and/or foreign currency are credited to a resident's accounts at foreign banks in fulfillment of the resident's liabilities under the terms of a financial loan from a nonresident or for the use of the resident's overseas branches (representative offices); (2) foreign currency received by residents from holding exhibitions or sporting, cultural, and other similar events outside Kazakhstan is used to cover expenses during the time that the events are underway; (3) foreign exchange earnings are posted to accounts at foreign banks held by resident transportation organizations for the purpose of covering expenses related to the payment of port and other fees in foreign states and the servicing of transportation equipment owned by such transportation organizations and their passengers while they are located outside the Republic of Kazakhstan, and expenses to support the operations of branch offices (representative offices) of such transportation organizations located outside the Republic of Kazakhstan; (4) a nonresident's obligation is offset by a counterclaim under foreign exchange export or import contracts; (5) a nonresident's obligation is met by replacing the original obligation between a resident and nonresident with a different obligation between the same parties that provides for a different object or means of fulfillment; or (6) an insurance payment is received when an insured event occurs, under insurance contracts covering the risk of default on obligations by a nonresident. Transactions exceeding the equivalent of US$50,000 are subject to repatriation compliance monitoring.
Surrender requirements	Yes.	The Republic of Kazakhstan Government Resolution on the Surrender by Quasi-Public Sector Entities of a Portion of their Foreign Currency Proceeds in the domestic market was adopted. It requires the sale of 50% of the foreign currency export proceeds of the quasi-public sector entities in the domestic market. The resolution's validity was extended until January 1, 2022. Surrender to the central bank	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	A unified procedure for registration of agreements on the movement of capital and accounts with foreign banks is in effect. When making payments and (or) transfers of money under an agreement requiring a registration number, or using an account in a foreign bank with a registration number, the authorized bank (or its branch) verifies the registration number. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process. A resident party to a foreign exchange agreement applies to the NBK for a registration number before commencement of fulfillment of obligations under the foreign exchange agreement by either of its parties. Authorized banks must submit to the NBK a report on all foreign exchange transactions, including on behalf of clients, equal to or exceeding US$50,000 indicating the account number, if any.
Repatriation requirements	No.	The repatriation requirement is applicable only to foreign trade activity of residents (exports and imports of goods, works, and services), not to capital transactions.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	There is a single procedure for the registration of contracts on the movement of capital and settlements at foreign banks. When a payment is made and/or money is transferred under a contract requiring an account number—or when an account at a foreign bank to which an account number has been assigned is used—an authorized bank (or its branch) checks for the presence of an account number and for details of the foreign exchange contract in the payment document. The registration requirement applies to agreements on the movement of capital, the parties to which are residents (other than authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations). The resident party to an agreement asks the NBK to assign an account number before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. The registration procedure does not constitute a permitting process. Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all foreign exchange operations, including those on behalf of customers, that are equal to or exceed the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	For statistical purposes, residents (except authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations) must apply to the NBK for registration of agreements on the sale of equity securities exceeding US$500,000 or equivalent issued by residents or nonresidents to nonresidents before obligations under the contract may be fulfilled by any of the parties. Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all foreign exchange operations, including on behalf of customers, equal to or exceeding the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities locally by nonresidents must be registered with the Agency for the Regulation and Development of the Financial Market for trade in the organized securities market. The state registration of corporate issue-grade securities issues is performed by the authorized body as part of state regulation, oversight, and supervision of the activities of entities operating in the market for securities and other financial instruments. For statistical purposes, residents (with the exception of authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations) must apply to the NBK for registration of agreements on the acquisition of equity securities exceeding US$500,000 or equivalent from nonresidents issued by residents or nonresidents before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all foreign exchange operations, including on behalf of customers, equal to or exceeding the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	For statistical purposes, residents (with the exception of authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations) must apply to the NBK for registration of agreements on the acquisition of equity securities exceeding US$500,000 or equivalent from nonresidents issued by residents or nonresidents before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. If the agreement does not specify an amount, the contract is considered subject to registration. Authorized banks must present to the NBK a report on all foreign exchange operations, including those on behalf of customers, equal to or exceeding the equivalent of US$50,000, indicating the account number, if any.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	For statistical purposes, residents (except authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations) must apply to the NBK for registration of agreements on the sale of equity securities exceeding US$500,000 or equivalent to nonresidents issued by residents or nonresidents before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities locally by nonresidents must be registered with the Agency for the Regulation and Development of the Financial Market for trade in the organized securities market. The state registration of a bond issue (bond program) of a nonresident issuer is conditional on the following requirements: (1) a minimum credit rating of at least B under the Standard & Poor's international scale or an equivalent rating assigned by one of the other rating agencies; (2) signature by a foreign supervisory body of the given legal entity's country of origin of the Multilateral MoU Concerning Consultation and Cooperation and the Exchange of Information of the International Organization of Securities Commissions; (3) meeting the requirements for the official listing of the debt securities of a nonresident issuer by a stock exchange and for trading on a stock exchange; (4) permission from the relevant foreign supervisory body for the issuance of bonds in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan or a letter stating that such permission is not required under the laws of the nonresident issuer's country; (5) compliance with prudential ratios and other standards and limits of the relevant supervisory body for the three months before application for state registration of the bond issue (bond program) is filed (if the nonresident issuer is a financial institution). State registration of a nonresident issuer's bond issue, in which the bonds are denominated in foreign currency, is performed, provided the prospectus for the nonresident issuer's bonds has a mandatory provision that interest and principal will be paid in the currency in which the bonds are issued. For statistical purposes, residents (except authorized banks and branches (representative offices) of foreign organizations) must apply to the NBK for registration of agreements on the purchase of debt securities exceeding US$500,000 or equivalent from nonresidents issued by nonresidents before obligations under the contract are fulfilled by any of the parties. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Banks must comply with the following ratio of liabilities to nonresidents to equity capital: The ratio of total short-term liabilities to nonresidents to the bank's equity capital (coefficient k-7) may not exceed 1. Obligations to nonresidents include (1) demand liabilities to nonresidents, including liabilities for which no settlement period has been set; (2) term liabilities to nonresidents with initial maturity up to one year inclusive; and (3) term obligations to nonresidents with the unconditional right of the creditor to demand early repayment, including term and conditional deposits of banks, except term and conditional deposits of individuals and legal entities.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Mortgage loans not related to entrepreneurial activity in foreign currency are prohibited to individuals who do not have income in this currency for six consecutive months preceding the date of the application.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	The securities banks may purchase are specified in paragraph 8 of Article 8 of the Law on Banks and Banking. Specifically, there is a requirement that banks be allowed to perform transactions with debt securities with a minimum required rating. The rating for bonds of foreign issuers and issuers of the Republic of Kazakhstan must be at least B (based on the classification of the Standard & Poor's and/or Fitch rating agencies) or at least B2 (based on the Moody's Investors Service classification). The rating for foreign government bonds must be at least BBB– (based on the Standard & Poor's and/or Fitch classification) or at least Baa3 (based on the Moody's Investors Service classification). There are no restrictions regarding the currency in which a debt security is issued.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange deposits are included in the liability base for banks' minimum reserve requirements (MRRs). For the purpose of calculating MRRs, liabilities in domestic and foreign currencies are differentiated according to maturity (short term and long term). The ratios for liabilities in foreign currency are 3% for short-term and 1% for long-term liabilities; in tenge, they are 2% for short-term and 0% for long-term liabilities.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	For monitoring liquidity of commercial banks, the relevant agency sets limits (minimum values) for coefficients of banks' current, quick, and quick foreign exchange liquidity. The liquidity coefficients are calculated as the ratio of the average monthly amount of a bank's assets to its average monthly liabilities, taking into account accrued fees, types of assets and liabilities, and other factors. The limit for the current liquidity ratio (k-4), calculated as the ratio of a bank's average monthly highly liquid assets to its average monthly demand liabilities, including accrued fees, is 0.3. The quick liquidity ratio k4-1, calculated as the ratio of a bank's average monthly highly liquid assets to average monthly term liabilities with remaining maturity up to and including seven days, may not be less than 1. Limits are set at 0.9 and 0.8, respectively, for quick liquidity ratios k4-2 and k4-3, which are calculated as the ratio of a bank's average monthly liquid assets to average monthly term liabilities with remaining maturity up to one month (k4-2) and up to three months (k4-3). The foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-4, calculated as the ratio of average monthly highly liquid foreign currency assets to average monthly term liabilities in the same foreign currency with remaining maturity up to and including seven days, may not be less than 1. When calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-4, a bank's term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to seven days, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 100%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to seven days. Accordingly, there are limits of 0.9 and 0.8 for foreign exchange liquidity ratios k4-5 and k4-6, which are calculated similarly for term liabilities with maturities up to one month and three months. When calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-5, a bank's term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to one month, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 90%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to one month; when calculating the foreign exchange liquidity ratio k4-6, a bank's term liabilities with a remaining maturity up to three months, multiplied by a conversion coefficient equal to 80%, are included in the amount of liabilities in foreign currency with a remaining maturity up to three months.

Interest rate controls	No.	The Kazakhstan Deposit Guarantee Fund (KDGF) determines the amount and procedure for the payment of banks' contributions, which are calculated through a methodology developed by the KDGF, taking into account the compliance of interest rates on new personal deposits with those recommended by the KDGF for deposits in foreign currency and deposits in domestic currency.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Deposits in foreign currency are included in the liability base for which banks must comply with MRRs. For the purpose of calculating the MRRs, liabilities in domestic and foreign currencies are differentiated according to the principle of maturity (short term and long term). The ratios for liabilities in foreign currency are 3% for short-term liabilities and 1% for long-term liabilities, while the ratios for liabilities in domestic currency are 2% for short-term liabilities and 0% for long-term liabilities.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	The calculation of liquid assets includes all financial assets, including highly liquid assets, minus (1) specially formed provisions and (2) claims on nonresidents that are legal entities registered abroad or their citizens or legal entities registered in countries on the list of countries that have not accepted OECD information exchange obligations or their citizens or organizations that are subsidiaries of legal entities registered in the aforementioned countries. Loans are included on the redemption schedule in accordance with loan agreements. The following securities, which are not included in the calculation of highly liquid assets, are included in the calculation of liquid assets, provided the given securities are serving as collateral for liabilities that are included in the calculation of liabilities: (1) government securities of the Republic of Kazakhstan issued by the government and the NBK; (2) securities issued by the Samruk-Kazyna National Welfare Fund and the Baiterek Management Holding Company

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Joint-Stock companies; (3) government securities of countries with a sovereign debt rating in foreign currency no lower than the level established by the NBK; and (4) bonds of foreign issuers with a minimum required rating assigned by one of the rating agencies and conforming to the requirements of the agency. When calculating liquid assets, the time remaining to maturity for securities is considered to be the time remaining to maturity for the liabilities for which the given securities are serving as collateral. There is no difference in the liquid asset requirement for deposits of/liabilities to nonresidents and residents.
Interest rate controls	No.	The KDGF determines the amount and procedure for the payment of banks' contributions, which are calculated through a methodology developed by the KDGF, taking into account the compliance of interest rates on new personal deposits with those recommended by the KDGF for deposits in foreign currency and deposits in domestic currency.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Investments of resident banks abroad are restricted by limits on the placement of equity and borrowed funds in domestic assets. For commercial banks (with the exception of banks founded by the Republic of Kazakhstan Government), average monthly internal assets must be equal to at least the average monthly amount of equity capital, subordinated debt, perpetual financial instruments, debt securities issued by the bank—except securities issued by the bank in foreign currency—and internal liabilities. In addition to the average monthly indicator, banks must adhere to a daily limit, which is equal to 95% of internal assets for each day based on the average monthly volume of internal liabilities for the previous month. Relevant credit risk weights are established for banks' assets placed with nonresident institutions when calculating capital adequacy coefficients (k1, k1-2, and k-2), which are calculated as follows: k1 is calculated as the ratio of core capital to the sum of assets and contingent liabilities, weighted by the degree of credit risk, and assets and contingent claims and liabilities calculated taking into account market risk and operational risk. The minimum level is 0.055 . k1-2 is calculated as the ratio of Tier 1 capital to the sum of assets and contingent liabilities, weighted by the degree of credit risk, and assets and contingent claims and liabilities calculated taking into account market risk and operational risk. The minimum level is 0.065 . k-2 is calculated as the ratio of equity capital to assets and contingent liabilities, weighted by the degree of credit risk, and assets and contingent claims and liabilities calculated taking into account market risk and operational risk. The minimum level is 0.08.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	A nonresident bank from WTO member countries may apply to the authorized body to obtain permission to open a branch in the Republic of Kazakhstan if certain conditions are met. Previously, opening of branches of nonresident banks were not permitted. The conditions include the following: (1) The total assets of the nonresident bank must not be less than the equivalent of US$20 billion. (2) The nonresident bank's country of residence cooperates internationally in preventing and combating the legalization (laundering) of criminal proceeds and the financing of terrorism and cooperates with the FATF. (3) There is an agreement between the authorized body and the financial supervision body of the nonresident bank's home country.

(4) There is written notification from the financial supervisory authority of the nonresident bank's home country stating that it does not object to the opening of a branch in the Republic of Kazakhstan, or a statement from that country's financial supervisory authority that permission is not required.
(5) There is written confirmation from the financial supervisory authority of the nonresident bank's home country that it is licensed to carry out banking activities.
The founders and shareholders of the bank may be legal entities and individuals, residents, and nonresidents of the Republic of Kazakhstan.
Legal entities registered in offshore zones listed by the authorized body may not directly or indirectly own and (or) use and (or) dispose of voting shares of banks resident in the Republic of Kazakhstan.
A nonresident legal entity may obtain approval from the Agency of the Republic of Kazakhstan for Regulation and Development of the Financial Market to be a bank holding company or major stakeholder in a bank if it has the minimum required rating from one of the major rating agencies. A nonresident bank with the required rating may be a parent bank of a subsidiary bank. A list of the major rating agencies and the minimum required rating are established by the Agency of the Republic of Kazakhstan for Regulation and Development of the Financial Market. Legal entities registered in offshore zones, or with affiliates registered in offshore zones, and participants in (founders or shareholders of) legal entities registered in offshore zones, listed by the authorized agency, may not directly or indirectly hold, use, and/or determine the disposition of voting shares in resident banks. This restriction does not apply to banks that are subsidiaries of nonresident banks with a minimum required rating from one of the rating agencies.
A minimum long-term credit rating in foreign currency of at least BBB on the Standard & Poor's international scale or equivalent ratings assigned by another established rating agency is established for the following nonresident legal entities:
legal entities that are acquiring (or have) the status of a bank holding company or holding company;
legal entities that are acquiring (or have) the status of a major stakeholder in a bank;
banks that are establishing (or that have) subsidiary banks in the Republic of Kazakhstan.
This requirement does not apply to:
(1) nonresident legal entities that meet all of the following conditions:
(a) It has a minimum long-term credit rating in foreign currency of at least BB– on the Standard & Poor's international scale or equivalent ratings assigned by another established rating agency.
(b) It is a resident of a foreign country with a minimum sovereign rating in foreign currency of at least BB– according to Standard & Poor's or equivalent ratings assigned by another established rating agency.
(c) There is an information-sharing agreement between the authorized body for the regulation, oversight, and supervision of the financial market and financial institutions and the authorized body for banking regulation of the legal entity's home country.
(2) Nonresident bank holding companies that acquired the relevant status before January 1, 2013, and that meet the following requirements as of the date indicated:

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Kenya pursues a floating exchange rate regime where the value of the Kenya shilling is determined by forces of demand and supply in the foreign exchange market. Intervention in the foreign exchange market by the Central Bank of Kenya (CBK) is only to moderate volatility and is meant to facilitate smooth functioning of the foreign exchange market. The CBK has no preferable path for the exchange rate and therefore CBK does not aim at influencing movements in the exchange rate. Foreign exchange market interventions therefore serve only to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate. The Kenya Shilling depreciated by 24% since December 2021 to June

On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	East African investors are treated as local investors; domestic investors must hold 10% of the share capital of a listed company. The caps to foreign investors' shareholding of listed companies were removed in 2015 via amendments to the capital markets foreign investors' regulations. This allowed foreign investors to hold up to 100% equity in any listed company. However, from a policy point of view, some companies were deemed strategic or of public interest; hence, another provision was added (in the same amended regulations) indicating that the Cabinet Secretary for the National Treasury could at his discretion prescribe limits on foreign caps as deemed fit and the conditions were provided. More specifically, the Capital Markets (Foreign Investors) Regulations with 2015 Amendments stipulates that: 3(1) Any proportion of the voting shares of an issuer after an initial public offering shall be available for investment by foreign investors without any restrictions in the level of holdings except as provided under the Capital Markets (Takeovers and Mergers) Regulations, 2002. (2) Notwithstanding Regulation 3(1), the Cabinet Secretary may by notice in the gazette, prescribe a maximum foreign shareholding in an issuer or listed company. (3) The Cabinet Secretary may only exercise the power under Paragraph 3(2) where (a) in a privatization transaction, the government or its agency is divesting its shares to the public; (b) some level of local ownership in a strategic industry or sector in the country is to be maintained; or (c) it is in national interest.

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.
Retail	No.	In February 2022, CBK issued a Discussion Paper on Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC) and sought views from the public on the potential applicability of a CBDC Kenya. The objective was to inform policy decision and public acceptance regarding the innovation. In June 2023, CBK issued a Discussion Paper on CBDC: Comments from the Public. The Paper summarizes the views that were received on the applicability of CBDC in Kenya. It concludes that in the context of the Kenyan payment ecosystem, a CBDC is not feasible priority in the short to medium term.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Korea maintains certain exchange restrictions against the following individuals and entities: certain individuals and entities associated with the Taliban, the Al-Qaida network, terrorists in general, and the former regime of Saddam Hussein; certain individuals and entities posing a threat to international peace and security in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Côte d'Ivoire, and Sudan; certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Eritrea and Somalia; certain individuals and entities involved in Iranian nuclear and/or ballistic missile programs; certain individuals and entities involved in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea's nuclear, ballistic missile, or other weapons of mass destruction (WMD) and related programs; certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Liberia; certain individuals and entities associated with Muammar Qadhafi's regime; and certain individuals and entities threatening peace and security in Central African Republic, Republic of South Sudan, and Yemen. Korea maintains certain exchange restrictions against certain individuals named by the Guidance of the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MOEF). Also, certain individuals and entities related to the Islamic Republic of Iran (Iranian residents or groups located in Iran) were eliminated from certain exchange restrictions list because of the MOEF revised notice.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of the won is freely determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. As such, the system is managed in accordance with the principles defined by the free floating system, and the government's role is very limited to remain within the range allowed by the free floating system. However, because of the lack of information on the authorities' interventions, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Bank of Korea (BOK) may intervene in the market with the funds of the BOK and the Foreign Exchange Equalization Fund when it is deemed necessary for the stability of the market. BOK publishes quarterly aggregate intervention data in net terms, no later than three months after the end of the respective quarter.

Point target	Yes.	The inflation target for 2019 onward has been set at 2%. The BOK will review the inflation targeting framework in consultation with the government every two years and explain the review to the public. If adjustment of the inflation target becomes inevitable, due for instance to unexpected domestic or global economic shocks or to changes in economic conditions, the BOK will adjust the target in consultation with the government.
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The target measure is the monthly year-on-year (y-o-y) CPI inflation published by the Statistics Korea.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The BOK conducts monetary policy to maintain the annual rate of CPI inflation near the target over a midterm horizon.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The Monetary Policy Board of the BOK meets eight times a year to determine the base rate. As of June 30, 2023, the policy rate was 3.5%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The BOK uses the base rate as a fixed bid rate for its sales of seven-day repurchase agreements and as the minimum bid rate for its purchases of seven-day repurchase agreements. The interest rates of liquidity adjustment deposits and loans are 100 basis points (bps) below and above the base rate, respectively, as of June 30, 2023. If the base rate falls below 1%, then the interest rate of liquidity adjustment loans is equal to two times the base rate, and the rate for liquidity adjustment deposit is 0%. Since July 31, 2023, the interest rates of liquidity adjustment deposits and loans were changed to “50 basis points (bps) below and above the base rate” from “100 basis points (bps) below and above the base rate.”
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	If there is a request from the national assembly, the governor will attend the meeting and answer questions.
Other	Yes.	The BOK publishes its “Monetary Policy Report” four times a year to explain how it is implementing the inflation target monetary policy. The BOK publishes twice a year an inflation assessment, which includes price developments, future inflation forecasts and risks, and the monetary policy stance for achieving price stability, and provides explanations of the assessment to the public through various means (or channels), such as by holding governor’s press conferences.

Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Right after a committee meeting, the governor holds a press conference to announce the policy decision. In the press conference, the governor also informs who were minor voters.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	The committee meeting minutes are published on the first Tuesday falling after two weeks from the meeting by posting it in the website of the BOK. The names of committee members are concealed in the minutes.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The inflation forecast is published through a quarterly economic forecast (Economic Outlook) by the BOK with two-year horizon.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The Korean foreign exchange market consists of OTC markets and exchanges. The OTC markets comprise a customer market in which foreign exchange banks deal with customers, including importers, exporters, travelers, and nonresidents, and an interbank market, in which foreign exchange banks deal among themselves. Standardized products are traded on the exchanges. Residents may buy and sell currency futures and options on internationally recognized futures exchanges or on the domestic exchange, the Korea Exchange. Commercial banks may set exchange rates and commissions freely in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Financial institutions trade foreign exchange either via brokers or directly among themselves. As of December 31, 2022, 55 institutions, including 42 foreign exchange banks, participated in the spot foreign exchange market through brokers. Financial institutions are required to register with the MOEF to deal in foreign exchange. Money exchangers, such as hotels, department stores, and travel agencies, need to register with Korea Customs Service. As of December 30, 2022, there were 1,497 money exchangers. They may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOK and are limited to purchasing and selling banknotes denominated in foreign currency and purchasing traveler's checks issued in a foreign country. Money exchangers can pay by domestic payment means to buy foreign currency or traveler's check from residents or nonresidents. They are responsible for preparing exchange books, which contain exchange date, name of buyer (seller), personal information such as ID card number, exchange amount, applied exchange rate, and other transaction information and report the exchange books to Korea Customs Service. Spot foreign exchange transactions are allowed between security brokerages. The won–yuan spot foreign exchange market operates based on a market-making agreement with 11 designated market makers as of December 30, 2022.

There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. Financial institutions participating in the interbank foreign exchange market have formed an autonomous committee, the Seoul Foreign Exchange Market Committee. Foreign exchange brokers, the BOK, and the government also participate in this committee. Nine institutions have been licensed as foreign exchange brokers, with licenses granted by the MOEF. FX authorities intervene in the interbank market through an intermediary bank.
Over the counter	Yes.	Financial institutions transact directly among themselves.
Brokerage	Yes.	Most interbank transactions are handled through brokers who intervene between foreign exchange banks without holding a position. MOEF's authorization is required to operate a foreign exchange brokerage business.
Market making	Yes.	There are 11 designated market makers for the CNH/KRW spot foreign exchange market in Seoul.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange banks may freely carry out forward transactions between foreign currencies, as well as between won and foreign currencies in the interbank and customer markets. The limits on banks' foreign exchange derivatives contracts were set at 50% of bank capital for domestic banks and 250% for foreign bank branches. The limits have been increased from 40% and 200%, respectively, since March 2020 as a part of the COVID-19 pandemic response to ease FX liquidity.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Remittances from these accounts and withdrawals in foreign currency may be made freely. The approval of the bank is not required when the account is held for remittances abroad or transfers to other foreign exchange accounts, for purchases and withdrawals of foreign means of payment, or for payments relating to approved transactions.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may open three kinds of domestic currency accounts with domestic foreign exchange banks: (1) nonresident domestic currency accounts; (2) nonresident free won accounts; and (3) exclusive domestic currency accounts for investment. A nonresident domestic currency account is for domestic settlement, whereas a nonresident free won account is for international settlement. An exclusive domestic currency account, a special form of nonresident free won account, is for settlement of investments in shares, bonds, or money-market instruments.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Remittances from nonresident free won accounts and exclusive domestic currency accounts for investment may be made freely, but remittances abroad from nonresident domestic currency accounts require notification to BOK in advance of the transfer. (BOK does not have a right to stop remittance from nonresidents' won accounts, but remittance cannot be proceeded without such declaration.)
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.	Transfers are blocked between nonresident domestic currency accounts and nonresident free won accounts, between nonresident domestic currency accounts and domestic currency accounts exclusively for investment, and between nonresident free won accounts. (See above for description of the types of nonresident accounts.)

Between residents and nonresidents	No.	In Korea, only VASPs who have registered their businesses in accordance with the FATF standards can operate virtual asset exchanges, and only residents whose identities have been checked are allowed to make transactions at the registered exchanges. In terms of nonresidents, domestic law limits their virtual asset transactions since it is hard to check their identities. With regard to cross-border transaction, not domestic one, in accordance with the Travel Rule under the FATF standards, which are applied to virtual asset transaction, a resident and a nonresident can make a transaction only when an originator (sender) and a beneficiary (recipient) can share the customers' identity information.
For current transaction	No.	In Korea, virtual asset, which is quite volatile, is not officially recognized as an electronic payment means for current transaction. However, there is no rule that limits using virtual asset as a personal payment means according to mutual agreement between individuals.

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		June 29, 2009.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: January 11, 2018.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.	Kosovo implements certain restrictive measures, such as freezing of funds, other financial assets, and economic resources.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Kosovo maintains restrictions in accordance with UNSC resolutions, sanctions issued by institutions of the EU and the Government of the USA. Those restrictions are imposed purely for the preservation of national and international security. The Government of Kosovo Decision No. 09/196 of September 17, 2014, endorsed sanctions issued by institutions of the EU and the Government of the USA against legal entities and the authorities of Russia. An Administrative Directive on Prevention and Detection of Terrorism Financing is in place. Article 4 of the Directive provides for lists of persons and entities suspected of terrorism as follows: Consolidated Lists of Individuals and Entities belonging to or associated with the Taliban and Al-Qaida Organization as established and maintained by the UNSC (UNSC Resolution No. 1267); the list established by the EU (EU Council Resolution No. 2580/2001); and the list established by the Secretary State of the USA (Section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act of the USA).
Other security restrictions	No.

No separate legal tender	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is an exchange arrangement with no separate legal tender. Since January 2002, when Kosovo unilaterally adopted the euro, this currency is a legal tender in the Territory and circulates freely. The United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK) Regulation No. 1999/4 of September 2, 1999, “On the currency permitted to be used in Kosovo" specifies in Section 1 that "Parties to a contract or any voluntary transaction may denominate such transaction in any currency agreed on by the parties. Unless proven otherwise, such an agreement must be deemed to exist with regard to any foreign currency that is widely accepted in the Territory of Kosovo." Administrative Direction No. 1999/2 of October 4, 1999, "Implementing UNMIK Regulation No. 1999/4 of 2 September 1999, On the Currency Permitted to be used in Kosovo" designated Deutschmark (DEM) as the only currency to formulate accounts and to perform compulsory payments. Later, because of the changeover of DEM into euro, Administrative Direction No. 2001/24 of December 21, 2001, "Amending Administrative Direction No. 1999/2 implementing UNMIK Regulation No. 1999/4 on the currency permitted to be used in Kosovo" replaced DEM by euro (1 euro = 1.95583 DEM).

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks and other financial institutions may trade in foreign exchange among themselves at freely determined exchange rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and other financial institutions in Kosovo may purchase and sell euros for other currencies. There were 12 commercial banks and 60 foreign exchange bureaus participating in the foreign exchange market as of June 30, 2023. The foreign exchange market in Kosovo is limited because most international payments and transfers are done in euro. Foreign exchange bureaus must be licensed and operate under the Central Bank of the Republic of Kosovo (CBK) regulation. The number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus is not limited. Foreign exchange bureaus may not

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There were 12 commercial banks participating in the foreign exchange market as of June 30, 2023. The euro foreign exchange market operates according to a market-making agreement. The volume of interbank market is low as Kosovo does not have its own currency, and the euro is treated as a local currency. The following regulations are in place: (1) Regulation on the Repurchase of Securities with the Central Bank. The purpose of this regulation is to determine the conditions and criteria to be met by a bank based on the request for assistance from collateral-backed lending of the Government of Kosovo securities through the execution of a repurchase agreement with the CBK. The purpose of this lending is to assist member banks in the efficient management of their liquidity in the short term. The General Master Repurchase Agreement authorizes CBK to perform credit operations with commercial banks operating in Kosovo through collateral-based lending; (2) Regulation on Intraday and Overnight Lending. The purpose of this Regulation is to determine the conditions and criteria according to which the CBK may provide collateralized intraday and overnight liquidity loans for eligible banks. The purpose of these two liquidity facilities is to enable CBK to perform operations with eligible banks and ensure a secure operation of the interbank payment settlement system.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions continue to take place over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	Banks are free to set their bid-ask rates in the interbank foreign exchange market. Twelve banks and 60 foreign exchange bureaus are market participants who continuously quote buy and sell prices.
Forward exchange market	No.	There is no forward exchange market in Kosovo, but there are no restrictions on forward deals by residents abroad. Some banks may offer a forward exchange rate contract, but there is no demand for such contracts.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Controls are applied only for the prevention of money laundering based on Law No. 05/L-096 of the Republic of Kosovo of May 25, 2016, on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Combating Terrorism Financing.

Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports are free of licensing requirements, except for certain products, consistent with international conventions (for example, arms, gold, diamonds, drugs, narcotics, and hazardous waste). Some products, such as pharmaceuticals, fuel, and some agricultural products, require licenses, which are issued on a case-by-case basis. Imports are not limited according to quantity or value. There are statistical and security reporting requirements for residents' external payments. Imports require only a commercial invoice, import customs declaration, and certificate of origin. From January 1, 2012, through December 31, 2015, Kosovo benefited from a preferential trade agreement with the EU. The Stabilisation and Association Agreement in force since April 1, 2016, extended the preferential trade agreement with the EU.
Positive list	Yes.
Negative list	Yes.	The importation of narcotic drugs or raw materials for the production or processing of narcotic drugs is prohibited. The importation of weapons, ammunition, or explosive is also prohibited. The importation of certain chemicals and pharmaceuticals is restricted.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.	Licenses for importation of goods are not issued with any value or volume quotas.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Rules apply to the quality of imported petroleum. Imported cars may be no more than 13 years old.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Commodity imports are subject to customs tariffs at 10% of the value of goods. Excise taxes are applied to certain products such as fuel, cars, alcoholic beverages, and tobacco; no customs tax is applied to a number of agricultural and food products. VAT is collected at customs clearance for many imported goods. Kosovo belongs to the Regional FTA known as CEFTA signed December 19, 2006, and applies tariffs on trade with members in accordance with the agreement. All products imported from Serbia and Bosnia and Herzegovina are subject to a 100% tariff.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import licenses are required for all commercial imports other than fresh fruits and vegetables, wheat, and flour. Licenses are issued freely to registered Kuwaiti merchants and companies. To be registered, the importer must be either a Kuwaiti citizen, a firm in which all partners are Kuwaiti citizens, or a shareholding or limited liability company in which Kuwaiti citizens own at least 51% of the stock.
Positive list	Yes.	Individuals are allowed to import construction materials for personal use, provided (1) materials are consistent with the Gulf standards and (2) individuals have a building permit issued by the Kuwait Municipality.
Negative list	Yes.	MCI decisions apply.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Imports of industrial equipment and machinery and their spare parts require industrial licenses, which are valid for one-time use. Licenses are issued to registered and licensed industrial establishments with the approval of the Industrial Development Commission at the MCI. Private imports of personal objects may be permitted under individual or specific licenses. Registered importers handling a variety of commodities may obtain a general license valid for one year. Other importers must obtain specific licenses for individual commodities, which are also valid for one year.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Government procurement policies give preference to Kuwaiti-produced goods up to a price margin of 5% over goods produced in other GCC countries and 10% over goods produced in non-GCC countries.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In accordance with the GCC Customs Union, a minimum tariff of 5% applies to non-GCC imports; there are no tariffs on imports from other GCC members with at least 40% local value added. Imports of foodstuffs and some machinery and equipment, spare parts, and raw materials are exempt from import duties. Kuwait applies higher tariffs in industries with domestic producers that supply at least 40% of the local market. Tariff rates differ depending on the domestic-value-added content of the products in question. If domestically produced goods contain at least 20%, 30%, or 40% of domestic value added, protective duties of 15%, 20%, and 25%, respectively, may be applied to competing imports. The degree of protection is reduced by 5% in the case of consumer goods. The maximum duty imposed on products that compete with locally manufactured goods is 100%. Duties on goods imported from GAFTA member countries are being gradually reduced.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Credit facilities local banks may extend in dinars to nonresidents must be limited to those that finance dinar-denominated contracts awarded by government entities in Kuwait, while observing the terms and controls included in the CB instructions of May 2, 1995. The following are relevant in this regard: (1) Credit must be extended on a sound basis, particularly regarding the purpose of the credit; the consistency of the credit type, size, and currency with the actual needs of the customer and within the limits of the financed contract; and use of the credit for the purpose for which it was extended. In general, an integrated credit study must be conducted on the feasibility of the requested credit, taking into account the soundness of the customer's financial position, the availability of repayment sources, the collateral submitted, and other considerations. (2) Banks should minimize their exposure to credit risk by distributing credit risk across a wide customer base, diversifying their credit facilities portfolio and distributing it across various sectors of the economy, and establishing maximum limits for risk associated with foreign credit, taking into account the nature of country risks. Banks must periodically review their credit policies and introduce appropriate amendments, particularly in regard to applied limits and delegated authority, all within the strategic direction of the bank and current developments.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Local banks are allowed to extend credit facilities in KD to nonresidents, without the need of seeking the CBK's prior consent, for financing contracts whose value may not exceed KD 40 million, provided such facilities do not exceed 70% of the total value of each contract. As for other contracts or credit facilities exceeding such limits, they must require the prior consent of the CBK. The following conditions must be satisfied in respect of all KD credit facilities extended by the local banks to their nonresident customers: (1) The credit facilities extended in KD to nonresidents must be limited to financing the contracts denominated in KD and awarded by government bodies in the State of Kuwait. The financing bank must verify that the contracts to be financed are in fact real contracts, and must retain copies thereof. (2) Finance extended for such cases must be limited for each separate contract and may not be concluded through general credit lines extended to the borrowing customers. (3) A Letter of Assignment over all the financed contract payments must be signed in favor of the lending bank. Such payments must be utilized for repayment of the granted credit facilities in compliance with such facilities' conditions.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Controls apply to the sale and issuance of bonds and other debt securities abroad. Banks are subject to approval requirements set by CBK for the sale and issuance of bonds and other debt securities abroad.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	CBK AML requirement states that banks may not enter into a cross-border correspondent or business relationship with a shell bank or correspondent financial institution in foreign country that allows its accounts to be used by a "shell bank."
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Credit facilities local banks may extend in dinars to nonresidents are limited to those that finance dinar-denominated contracts awarded by government entities in Kuwait, in accordance with the terms and controls in the CBK instructions of May 2, 1995. When extending credit facilities to their resident and nonresident customers for work and projects outside Kuwait, local banks must comply with the minimum limits under CBK Instruction No. BSB/105/1993 concerning the Rationalization and Organization of Banks' Credit Policy and the relevant circulars. The following are relevant in this regard: (1) Credit must be extended on a sound basis, particularly regarding the purpose of the credit; the consistency of the credit type, size, and currency with the actual needs of the customer and within the limits of the financed contract; and use of the credit for the purpose for which it was extended. In general, an integrated credit study is required on the feasibility of the requested credit, taking into account the soundness of the customer's financial position, the availability of repayment sources, and the collateral submitted, among other considerations. (2) Banks should minimize their exposure to credit risk by distributing risk across a wide customer base, diversifying their credit facilities portfolio and distributing it across various sectors of the economy, and establishing limits for risk associated with foreign credit, taking into account the nature of country risks. Banks must periodically review their credit policies and introduce appropriate amendments, particularly in regard to applied limits and delegated authority, all within the strategic direction of the bank and current developments.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks are also required to follow up the customer's observance of the purpose for which these facilities were extended, whereby that review should encompass assessing the customer's need for the requested foreign currencies to finance his activities, and the real utilization of such currencies within the request for credit. Additionally, banks must verify the availability of sources of repayment in the same currencies.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.

KYRGYZ REPUBLIC

(Position as of October 31, 2023)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		May 8, 1992.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: March 29, 1995.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with the Kyrgyz Republic states that, as of May 18, 2021, the Kyrgyz Republic maintained a MCP arising from the use of the official exchange rate for government transactions. The official rate may differ by more than 2% from market rates because it is based on the average transaction weighted rate of the preceding day. (Country Report No. 21/174)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	The Kyrgyz Republic maintains certain exchange restrictions in accordance with UNSC resolutions to combat the financing of terrorism and for AML purposes.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Measures have been adopted that restrict financial transactions and freeze the accounts of certain individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to UNSC resolutions, the current FATF list of organizations associated with terrorism, and a list of individuals and entities involved in terrorism and/or extremist activities, or in the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, compiled by the State Financial Intelligence Service under the Government of the Kyrgyz Republic (GKR).

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of the Kyrgyz Republic is the Kyrgyz som.
Other legal tender	No.
Unitary
Dual	Yes.	The exchange rate structure is dual, because the official rate may differ by more than 2% from market rates because it is based on the average transaction-weighted rate from 3:00 p.m. of the preceding trading day until 3:00 p.m. of the current trading day. In practice, the official and market rates have not differed by more than 2%, not including the period February 25–April 22, 2022. Since 2010, the official exchange rate of the US dollar against the som has been calculated daily as the weighted average of the exchange rates used in US dollar purchase and sale transactions carried out in the exchange market through the National Bank of the Kyrgyz Republic's (NBKR's) Automated Trading System (ATS) for the reporting period from 3:00 p.m. of the previous trading day until 3:00 p.m. of the current trading day. Since 2012, the official exchange rates of the euro, ruble, and tenge

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The National Bank may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market only for the purpose of smoothing out sharp fluctuations in the exchange rate. Information on interventions is published on the NBKR's official website on the day an intervention is performed, after the close of the trading day. Data on the date of the intervention and the volume purchased or sold in U.S. dollars are published. In 2022, the country's foreign exchange market was formed primarily based on the situation in the foreign exchange markets of the countries that are the main trading partners of the Kyrgyz Republic and in foreign financial markets. Thus, with the beginning of the military operation by the Russian Federation against Ukraine and the further aggravation of the situation, from February 24 to March 3 on the Moscow Exchange the exchange rate of the US dollar against the ruble increased by 22.11%, from 80.4 to 103.3 rubles a US dollar. This situation has had a negative impact on the foreign exchange market of Kyrgyzstan. In this regard, at the initial stage, to smooth out sharp fluctuations in the exchange rate, on February 24, 2022, the National Bank carried out one intervention to sell US dollars in the amount of 13.05 million. With the negative development of the situation around the Russian Federation and Ukraine, the sanctions pressure on the economy of the Russian Federation increased, which was the main reason for the actual introduction of significant barriers to the export of capital from the Russian Federation, later similar measures were introduced in Kazakhstan. Restrictive measures on the export of foreign currency in cash in the Russian Federation and the Republic of Kazakhstan have led to large inflows of cash in the national currencies of these countries and an increase in the volume of remittances both in national currencies and in US dollars to the territory of Kyrgyzstan. In turn, the recipients of money transfers in most cases converted them to US dollars (if they were the currencies of the sender's country) or cashed (if the remittance was in US dollars) and exported cash US dollars outside the country. . In this regard, to ensure the economic security of the country and minimize the adverse consequences of the crisis, the NBKR has taken a number of anti-crisis measures, including the establishment of a ban on the export of cash US dollars outside the country by commercial banks, exchange bureaus and microfinance organizations. At the same time, from time to time, to smooth out sharp fluctuations in the exchange rate, as well as to stabilize the situation in the country's foreign exchange market, the National Bank continued to carry out foreign exchange interventions both for the purchase and sale of US dollars. In total, in 2022, there were eight interventions to sell US dollars in the amount of 486.5 million US dollars and two purchase interventions in the amount of 190.74 million US dollars. In total, net sales for 2022 amounted to 295.76 million US dollars. Since February 2022, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed, and since October 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar with one realignment in February 2023. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate was reclassified twice: (1) to other managed from stabilized effective February 25, 2022, and (2) to crawl-like from other managed effective October 21, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate of the US dollar against the som is calculated daily as the weighted average of the exchange rates used in noncash US dollar purchase and sale transactions carried out in the exchange market through the NBKR's ATS for the reporting period from 3:00 p.m. of the previous trading day until 3:00 p.m. of the current trading day. Thus, the calculation of the official exchange rate of the US dollar takes into account all spot exchange rates, and it also takes into consideration volatility in the interbank foreign exchange market. The official exchange rates of the euro, ruble, and tenge are determined daily. Effective March 14, 2022, the official exchange rate of the Russian ruble against the Kyrgyz som is calculated at a cross rate based on the average values between the maximum and minimum exchange rates of the US dollar against the ruble, recorded in the Bloomberg news agency/Reuters news agency in the period from 15:00 of the previous trading day until 15:00 of the current trading day Bishkek time. The official exchange rates of other foreign currencies are determined on a weekly basis, based on the cross-rates of quotes for these currencies against the US dollar in international financial markets. The NBKR determines and announces the official exchange rates of foreign currency against the som for accounting and settlement purposes, without any obligation to buy or sell foreign currency at these rates. According to the agreement between the NBKR and the Central Treasury of the Kyrgyz Republic Ministry of Finance, when performing operations involving the conversion/purchase and subsequent transfer of foreign currency, the Central Treasury uses (1) the official exchange rate for foreign currencies set by the National Bank and in effect on the date payment is made (in the event that the foreign currency is in the National Bank's currency portfolio and is included in the quotation list of the National Bank), or (2) the negotiated currency exchange rate with a commercial bank of the Kyrgyz Republic or a foreign correspondent bank of the National Bank (in the event that the NBKR does not hold the foreign currency), with compensation by the Central Treasury of exchange rate differences arising in the purchase of foreign currency not held by the NBKR and their transfer.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The NBKR's goal is to achieve and maintain price stability, as specified in Kyrgyz Republic Constitutional Law No. 92 of August 11, 2022, on the NBKR. In accordance with the Medium-Term Monetary Policy Guidelines (approved by Executive Board Resolution No. 2017-P-07/51-1-(DKP) of December 13, 2017), the intermediate target of monetary policy is an inflation forecast based on a comprehensive analysis of the macroeconomic situation in the Kyrgyz Republic and in the external environment. The National Bank's discount rate as the main monetary policy instrument is a benchmark for the cost of funds in the money market. Short-term money market interest rates serve as an operational monetary policy benchmark.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Transactions involving the purchase and sale (exchange) of cash and noncash domestic and/or foreign currency within the Kyrgyz Republic are not restricted and are performed only at banks, specialized financial and financial and lending institutions, microfinance companies, microcredit companies, credit unions, and exchange bureaus with the relevant license from the National Bank. The procedure and conditions for the performance of transactions involving the purchase and sale (exchange) of cash and noncash domestic and/or foreign currency, as well as requirements imposed on authorized persons, are determined by the National Bank (Article 26 of the Kyrgyz Republic Constitutional Law on the NBKR). As of December 31, 2020, there were 23 licensed commercial banks (including one branch of a foreign bank), 379 foreign currency exchange bureaus, 9 microfinance companies licensed to perform certain banking operations in foreign currency, and 2 microcredit companies licensed to perform the purchase and sale of foreign currency on their own behalf. In accordance with Article 11 of Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 206 of December 16, 2016, on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking, commission fees and rates for the performance of banking services are set independently by the persons performing the banking services, in accordance with the requirements of the banking legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic. In accordance with Article 35 of the same law, the official exchange rate is determined and announced by the National Bank on the basis of the market spot exchange rate and other market rates. The official exchange rate is determined and announced by the National Bank with an obligation on the part of the National Bank to purchase and sell foreign currency at the announced exchange rates, and at the same time, pursuant to Paragraph 2 of the same article, the spot exchange rate and other market rates are freely determined between the seller and the buyer, unless otherwise established by the National Bank. In accordance with Article 2-1 of Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 116 of July 22, 2011, on Competition, anti-monopoly regulation in the banking services market is performed by the NBKR in accordance with regulatory legal acts, compliance with which is mandatory for commercial banks and other financial and lending institutions licensed and regulated by the NBKR. The sale and purchase of cash and noncash foreign exchange through clearing transactions, payment of traveler's checks, and payments in foreign currency are limited to NBKR-licensed banks. Licenses to perform the activity of a foreign currency exchange bureau are issued only to legal entities. The activities of foreign currency exchange bureaus are licensed and regulated by the NBKR. Foreign currency exchange bureaus may conduct only transactions specified in their licenses. They may not perform foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. Legal entities that open exchange bureaus and have a license to perform exchange transactions with foreign exchange cash may without restriction purchase and sell using their own resources (within the limits of their reported working capital) and on their own behalf only foreign exchange cash, and only in exchange for cash domestic currency. Exchange bureaus must provide information on the sources of their working capital (NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 53/10 of November 27, 2014). If a legal entity opens an account abroad, this does not mean that this is an account of the foreign currency exchange bureau. A foreign currency exchange bureau itself may not open an account abroad. To engage in the purchase and sale of foreign currency on its own behalf, credit union and microcredit company have to obtain an additional license from the NBKR. A microfinance company has to obtain a license to perform certain banking operations in foreign currency. A specialized financial and lending institution has to obtain licenses to perform exchange operations with foreign currency. To ensure the economic security of the Kyrgyz Republic and stabilize the situation in the domestic foreign exchange market, the National Bank adopted a set of measures. Effective March 18, 2022, the volume of transactions in tenge for financial institutions was temporarily limited. Effective March 19, 2022, the purchase rate of the tenge for financial institutions was temporarily reduced (except for exporters). Effective July 22, 2022, the volume of transactions with foreign currency in cash between exchange offices and commercial banks was limited. Effective July 27, 2022, the conversion of a money transfer must be made at the rate indicated in the information stand of the purchase and sales rates of foreign currencies.

		Precious Metals and Precious Stones and the NBKR; (2) the establishment of requirements regarding the accounting and reporting of precious metals and precious stones, as well as the procedure for the performance of transactions with precious metals and precious stones; (3) regulatory-legal oversight of actions by legal entities and individual entrepreneurs performing transactions with precious metals and precious stones in domestic and foreign markets, their entry in a special register; (4) government oversight of transactions with precious metals and precious stones.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic does not provide for restrictions on domestic ownership of gold or trading domestically in gold. The Department of Precious Metals within the MOF of the Kyrgyz Republic performs assay supervision to ensure compliance by legal entities and individuals with the requirements of the law and approved standards for the production, processing, and use of precious metals and precious stones, and for the manufacture of jewelry and other items thereof, regardless of the form of ownership. The NBKR limits commercial banks' open position in precious metals. The limits on open positions in precious metals are carried out similarly to the limits on open positions in foreign currency: The limit for each precious metal is 15% of the net total capital of commercial banks and the limit for all precious metals is 20% of the net total capital of commercial banks. Commercial banks submit balances daily to the NBKR for each type of precious metal as well as information on compliance with open foreign exchange position limits for precious metals as part of their reporting requirements. Pursuant to Article 11 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Precious Metals and Precious Stones, supervision of compliance by persons performing operations (transactions) with precious metals and precious stones and jewelry articles thereof (including scrap) with the requirements of the Kyrgyz Republic legislation on combating the financing of terrorism and money laundering is performed in accordance with the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic (Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 87 of August 6, 2018, on Combating the Financing of Terrorist Activity and Money Laundering; Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 606 of December 25, 2018, on Measures to implement the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Combating the Financing of Terrorist Activity and Money Laundering).
On external trade	Yes.	In accordance with the regulation on the import and export of precious metals and raw materials containing precious metals into and from the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU), approved by Decision No. 30 of the Eurasian Economic Commission (EAEC) Board of April 21, 2015, imports and exports of unprocessed gold or silver (only refined gold or silver in the form of ingots, plates, powder, and granules, as well as gold used for the minting of coins) into and from the customs territory of the EAEU are subject to licensing. The import and export of precious metals and precious stones in any form, with the exception of those subject to a state monopoly in accordance with Article 4 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Precious Metals and Precious Stones, into and from the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic, are performed by legal entities and individuals in accordance with decisions of the EAEC and the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic, accompanied by mandatory declaration at customs control posts. Effective August 17, 2022, there is a temporary 6-month ban on the export of used catalytic converters, slag, ash, and precious metal residues contained in catalytic converters from the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic. Effective August 20, 2022, there are temporary quantitative restrictions on the export of precious metals and raw materials containing precious metals from the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic for a period of 6 months.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.	The movement by individuals of cash (Article 2, Paragraph 1, subparagraph 23, of the Customs Code of the EAEU) and/or monetary instruments (Article 2, Paragraph 1, subparagraph 8, of the Customs Code of the EAEU) across the customs border of the EAEU is performed without restriction in accordance with the Customs Code of the EAEU. According to the Treaty on the Procedure for the Movement of Cash and/or Monetary Instruments by Individuals across the Customs Border of the Customs Union within the Framework of the EAEU of July 5, 2010, in the event of a one-time export of cash and/or traveler's checks in a total amount equal to or less than US$10,000 at the exchange rate of the currencies in effect on the date the passenger customs declaration is presented to the customs authority, such funds and/or traveler's checks are not subject to written customs declaration. In the event of the movement of cash and/or traveler's checks across the customs border of the EAEU in a total amount that is greater than the equivalent of US$10,000, they need to be declared in writing, indicating the entire amount of cash and/or traveler's checks being imported or exported. Monetary instruments, other than traveler's checks, transported across the customs border of the EAEU must be declared regardless of their amount. When individuals make a customs declaration of cash and/or monetary instruments, a passenger customs declaration is used, and the supplemental form "Declaration of cash and/or monetary instruments" should be completed following the procedure established by Decision No. 287 of the Customs Union Commission of July 18, 2010. No permits need to be submitted in this process. Pursuant to Decision No. 130 of the Executive Board of the EAEC of August 6, 2019, on the Presentation of Documents to Confirm the Origin of Cash and/or Monetary Instruments, a passenger customs declaration is accompanied by the presentation of documents to confirm the origin of cash or monetary instruments if the total amount of the cash and/or monetary instruments being imported at one time into the customs territory of the EAEU or being exported at one time from the customs territory of the EAEU is greater than the equivalent of US$100,000 at the exchange rate of the currencies in effect on the date the passenger customs declaration is presented to the customs authority. Thus, the declaration requirement has two separate limits: movement of over US$10,000 requires declaration, and over US$100,000 requires confirmation of origin.

Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The Kyrgyz Republic Government's State Financial Market Regulation and Supervision Service (Gosfinnadzor) is the authorized government body implementing a unified government policy in the area of supervision and regulation of the securities market. Controls on securities are enforced by Gosfinnadzor, except for controls on the following securities: government securities, municipal securities, and securities of the NBKR (according to Article 1(2) of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Securities Market). Regulation of the market in government securities (government treasury bills, government treasury bonds) of the GKR is administered by the MOF of the Kyrgyz Republic pursuant to its legal regulatory acts. The NBKR acts as the agent for placement and servicing of issues of GKR securities. The parallel placement and trading of government securities are performed through the NBKR and the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company; the main depository of government securities is the NBKR, while the sub-depository, which is authorized to carry out functions related to the performance of depository activity of its depositors with respect to operations with government securities, executed through the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company, is the Central Depository closed joint-stock company. The process of placing and servicing issues of Kyrgyz Republic Government securities is connected with the holding of placement auctions, the maintenance of a depository account, the organization of secondary trading, and the performance of redemption, which are regulated by the following regulatory acts: Regulation No. 556 of October 2, 2008, on the Issue, Placement, Circulation, and Redemption of Kyrgyz Republic Government Securities; Regulation No. 20/1 of June 26, 2013, on the Procedures for the Placement, Reoffering, Additional Placement and Repurchase of and Performance of Settlements with Securities of the GKR through the NBKR; Regulation No. 10/9 of March 28, 2013, on the Depository Account of Government Securities placed through the NBKR.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Gosfinnadzor is the authorized government body implementing a unified government policy on supervision and regulation of the securities market.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may purchase shares in accordance with current regulations on the same general terms as residents. No later than three business days from the date of disclosure of information about a material fact in the prescribed manner, issuers (residents and nonresidents) must send information about the material fact and its disclosure to the authorized government body for the regulation of the securities market. Material facts include an event (fact) that could have an impact on the issuer's financial and commercial activity and/or on the price of securities, including: - changes in the list of persons serving on the issuer's governing bodies (with the exception of a general shareholders' meeting); - changes in the amount of participation in the issuer's capital and that of its subsidiaries and dependent companies by persons who serve on the issuer's elected governing bodies; - changes in the list of persons who hold 5% or more of the securities (equity stakes), as well as changes in the percentage of those who own 5% or more of the securities (equity stakes); - changes in the list of legal entities in which the issuer holds 20% or more of the authorized capital; - the appearance in the issuer's registry of a person who holds more than 5% of its voting shares (equity stakes, equity interest);

- one-time transactions of the issuer the amount of which or the value of property of which constitutes 10% or more of the assets of the issuer on the date of the transaction;
- a fact (or facts) resulting in a one-time increase or decrease in the value of the issuer's assets by more than 10%;
- a fact (or facts) resulting in a one-time increase in the issuer's net profit or net loss by more than 10%;
- reorganization of the issuer, its subsidiaries or dependent companies;
- income accrued and/or payable (paid) on the issuer's securities;
- decisions of general meetings;
- redemption of the issuer's securities;
- other events (facts) provided for by regulatory legal acts of the Kyrgyz Republic (according to Article 31, Paragraphs 1 and 3, of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Securities Market).

Under Article 85 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the NBKR, Banks, and Banking (2017), any individual or legal entity is required to obtain written permission from the National Bank if intending, singly or jointly with other parties, regardless of the method of acquisition of ownership of shares, including inheritance or reinstatement of ownership, to acquire a threshold stake in the capital of a bank, including a significant stake and control, which may be achieved through an additional acquisition of shares. A threshold stake in a bank's capital refers to direct or indirect ownership or management, singly or jointly with other parties, of 10% or more, 20% or more, 33% or more, 50% or more, and 67% or more of a bank's voting shares.

Legal entities that are not engaged in banking or financial activity may not, singly or jointly with other persons: exercise direct or indirect ownership or management of more than 20% of the voting shares of any type of a bank; individuals and legal entities residing and/or registered in offshore zones or that have as stakeholders affiliated persons registered in offshore zones, a list of which is established by the National Bank, individuals and legal entities subject to international sanctions adopted by the UNSC, as well as individuals and legal entities registered in states subject to international sanctions adopted by the UNSC that prohibit legal relationships with said persons and are binding on the Kyrgyz Republic may not be bank shareholders.

Any individual or legal entity holding a threshold participation in the capital of a bank, intending to dispose of shares, alone or jointly with other persons, regardless of the method of alienation, in the amount that affects the change in the threshold value, is obliged to notify the National Bank in advance at least one month before the transaction, as well as to notify the potential acquirer of the need to obtain prior permission from the National Bank for the acquisition of a threshold participation in the bank's capital in accordance with the requirements of this Law.

In the event of a change in the stakeholders in microcredit companies and microcredit agencies, written approval from the NBKR is required for re-registration with the Ministry of Justice in connection with a change in participants.

Acquisition of more than 20% of the shares of microfinance companies, guarantee funds, and, 10% or more of the voting shares of housing-savings credit companies requires NBKR approval.

Pursuant to Article 22 of Kyrgyz Republic Law On Banks, and Banking: (1) A significant stake refers to direct or indirect ownership or management, singly or jointly with other persons, of 10% or more of the voting shares of a joint-stock company or 10% or more of the

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The NBKR licenses and carries out prudential and non-prudential regulation of the lending activities of financial and lending institutions, depending on whether or not they have the right to attract deposits. Commercial banks operate under a license to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Commercial banks may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on Islamic financing principles in domestic and foreign currencies. Nonbank financial and lending institutions operate under a license/certificate of registration to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Nonbank financial and lending institutions may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on these principles in domestic and foreign currencies. Within the context of implementing the Kyrgyz Republic Government Affordable Housing Program for 2015–2020, amendments have been made to the Kyrgyz Republic Laws on the Licensing and Permitting System in the Kyrgyz Republic and on Collateral, to the Civil Code of the Kyrgyz Republic, and also to the Law on the Protection of Bank Deposits to set up a mechanism for contractual savings for housing. Thus, to ensure the functioning of this mechanism, the National Bank drafted and adopted the Regulation on the Licensing of Housing Savings Credit Companies and the Rules for Regulation of the Activities of Housing Savings Credit Companies, and amendments and additions have also been made to current regulatory legal acts of the National Bank with regard to regulating the activities of housing savings credit companies. These regulatory legal acts are posted on the official website of the National Bank. With a view to bringing regulatory legal acts of the National Bank into line with the Kyrgyz Republic Law on Guarantee Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic, the Kyrgyz Republic National Bank Executive Board adopted regulatory legal acts on licensing and on the regulation and supervision of activities of guarantee funds. These regulatory legal acts are posted on the official website of the National Bank. With the aim of providing support to businesses and promoting further development of their activities by increasing access to financial resources, given the need to mitigate the negative consequences of COVID-19, and bearing in mind the Fund's goals and objectives, the National Bank is providing for capitalization of the Fund in the amount of 1 billion soms. At a special general meeting of the Fund's shareholders, the shareholders adopted a decision to increase the Fund's capital by 1 billion soms at the expense of National Bank resources. At an extraordinary general meeting of the Fund's shareholders, the shareholders adopted a decision to increase the Fund's capital by 2 billion soms at the expense of National Bank resources. These resources will be used by the Fund to offer additional guarantees for the obligations of borrower businesses, and also for placement as deposits with commercial banks, which will provide banks with additional resources for lending. These resources were

Borrowing abroad	No.	These transactions must be reported to the NBKR.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	These transactions must be reported to the NBKR.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	These transactions must be reported to the NBKR.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Commercial banks operate under a license to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Commercial banks may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses to perform banking operations based on Islamic financing principles in domestic and foreign currencies. For the purpose of minimizing indirect foreign exchange risks in lending in foreign currency, amendments and additions were made to certain regulatory legal acts of the NBKR. Thus, NBKR Executive Board Resolutions Nos. 22/6 and 22/7 of April 15, 2015, lowered the requirements for loan loss provisions in national currency to 0% and increased them for loans in foreign currency to 2.5%, or 5%, or 7.5% depending on the client's income structure in national and foreign currency. NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 53/11 of September 16, 2015, introduced amendments concerning the requirement to (1) conduct an annual internal audit of the internal control system of credit risk because of foreign currency risk, including the classification of loans/assets; (2) include in the internal regulations of the bank policies, procedures, and a comprehensive system of permanent identification, assessment, monitoring, and control for the identification and measurement of credit risk, including the credit risk because of foreign exchange risk; (3) assess the ability of the customer to service the foreign currency loan during the following 12 months if revenues are mainly in the national currency, taking into account the credit risk because of adverse changes in the exchange rate; (4) analyze at least once a month (or immediately if the official exchange rate changes by 5% or more) the impact of exchange rate changes and identify possible losses from fluctuations in exchange rates and their impact on borrower solvency. NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 78/23 of December 23, 2015, increased from 7.5% to 10% the loan loss provisions on foreign currency loans for borrowers whose income in foreign currency is less than 50%. National Bank Executive Board Resolution No. 7/3 of February 10, 2016, on Amendments and Additions to Certain Resolutions of the NBKR Executive Board, prohibited financial and lending institutions from providing consumer and mortgage loans in foreign currency to individual borrowers. Nonbank financial and lending institutions operate under a license/certificate of registration to perform banking operations in domestic and/or foreign currency. Nonbank financial and lending institutions may operate on the basis of Islamic financing principles under licenses/certificates of registration to perform banking operations based on these principles in domestic and foreign currencies. Resolution of the Board of the NBKR No. 2020-P-33/75-4-(NFKU) of December 28, 2020, establishes requirements for NBFOs to create reserves in the amount of 5% to 10% on loans in foreign currency for borrowers receiving less than 50% of their income in foreign currency.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	The State Service for Regulation and Supervision of the Securities Market under the Kyrgyz Republic Ministry of Economy and Finance (Gosfinnadzor) is the authorized government body responsible for implementing the overall government policy with regard to supervision and regulation of the securities market. Gosfinnadzor implements controls on securities, with the exception of the following: government securities, municipal securities, and NBKR securities (pursuant to Article 1(2) of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Securities Market). The Kyrgyz Republic MOF is responsible for regulation of the government securities market (government treasury bills, government treasury bonds) in accordance with its regulatory legal acts. The NBKR serves as the agent for the placement and servicing of government securities issues. In accordance with the Regulation on the Issue, Placement, Circulation, and Redemption of Kyrgyz Republic Government Securities, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 556 of October 2, 2008, the Kyrgyz Republic Government has the right to issue government treasury bonds in the domestic currency of the Kyrgyz Republic and in foreign currency (rules for issuing government treasury bonds denominated in foreign exchange were added to the Regulation on the Issue, Placement, Circulation, and Redemption of Kyrgyz Republic Government Securities by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 735 of October 27, 2015). The purpose of issuing government securities is to provide financing for the current national budget deficit and refinancing of government debt that is coming due. The specific terms and reasons for issuing government treasury bonds denominated in foreign exchange are not provided for in regulatory legal acts on government securities. Commercial banks that have entered into an agreement on participation in auctions with the NBKR have direct access to auctions for the placement of government securities, as do institutional investors. Other interested parties may participate in auctions for the placement of government securities through commercial banks or the Kyrgyz Stock Exchange closed joint-stock company. A joint-stock company is a legal entity doing business for the purpose of earning a profit and raising funds through the issue and placement of shares. It is required to issue shares whose value is expressed in the domestic currency of the Kyrgyz Republic regardless of the form in which a contribution is made. The legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic does not provide for any restrictions on the issue of bonds by nonresidents denominated in foreign exchange. In accordance with regulatory legal acts of the National Bank governing the activities of commercial banks (Regulation on Bank Operations with Securities), there are no restrictions on commercial banks with regard to the purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Differential reserve requirements for commercial banks apply. The NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 78/7 of December 23, 2015, on establishing reserve requirements amounts for liabilities included in the calculation base: (1) for liabilities in the domestic currency at the level of 4% of total liabilities in domestic currency, included in the calculation base; (2) for liabilities in Armenian drams, Belarusian rubles, Kazakhstani tenge, Chinese renminbi, and Russian rubles at the level of 4% of liabilities in Armenian drams, Belarusian rubles, Kazakhstani tenge, Chinese renminbi, and Russian rubles, included in the calculation base; and (3) for liabilities in foreign currency (except for those specified in (2) above) at the level of, effective October 9, 2023, 15% (previously 14%) of total liabilities in the relevant foreign currencies, included in the calculation base. The list of liabilities included in the calculation base for required reserves includes all deposits of individuals and legal entities, as well as deposits of the Kyrgyz Republic Government and local government authorities. Commercial banks deposit required reserves in a correspondent account with the NBKR. The NBKR Executive Board Resolution No. 16/5 of April 23, 2014, specifies the procedure for compliance with reserve requirements, in accordance with which the base period for compliance with reserve requirements is four calendar weeks. The volume of required reserves is determined on the basis of the average daily calculation base for the previous base period, and the amount of required reserves is established by the NBKR Executive Board. The required reserve value that is established remains in effect throughout the four weeks of the base period. The som equivalent of foreign exchange liabilities included in the calculation base is calculated daily at the NBKR's official exchange rate. Monitoring of compliance with required reserves is carried out at the end of the four-week base period. Reserve requirements are deemed to have been met if for the base period as a whole the difference between the amount of funds in a commercial bank's correspondent account with the NBKR and the amount of required reserves is positive or equal to 0. The volume of funds on a commercial bank's correspondent account for compliance with the reserve requirements on a daily basis must not be below the minimum threshold level determined by the NBKR Executive Board. The minimum threshold level is 70% of a bank's required reserves for the relevant period. The amount of required reserves, the list of liabilities to be included in the calculation base, and the interest rate for meeting required reserve standards are set by the Executive Board of the NBKR. The interest rate for meeting required reserve standards is equal to 0%. In the event of a failure to meet the requirements regarding the daily minimum amount of required reserves, a commercial bank must pay an interest penalty equal to three times the National Bank's discount rate on the amount of the daily shortfall.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The State Financial Market Regulation and Supervision Service under the Kyrgyz Republic Government regulates the issue, trading, and public offering of securities of the Kyrgyz Republic and securities of foreign issuers, as well as the prospectuses of such offers, in accordance with the requirements of the given law and other laws of the Kyrgyz Republic governing the nonbank financial market. In accordance with the Kyrgyz Republic laws on Pension Savings Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic and on Investing Funds to Finance the Funded Part of the State Social Insurance Pension in the Kyrgyz Republic, there are no maximum limits on the purchase by domestic pension funds of securities issued by nonresidents. In the Kyrgyz Republic, a pension fund is not a joint-stock company and may not issue securities (Kyrgyz Republic Law No. 216 on Pension Savings Funds in the Kyrgyz Republic of December 11, 2013).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The rules for the investment of pension savings assets, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 590 of August 19, 2015, do not provide for the investment of pension savings assets abroad. Pension savings may be placed in the following investment assets: (1) government securities – at least 40% of the value of pension savings; (2) bonds secured by issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic traded on the stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 30% of the value of pension savings; (3) shares of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic created in the form of open joint-stock companies listed on the stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 40% of the value of pension savings; (4) mortgage-backed securities and housing certificates issued in accordance with the legislation of the Kyrgyz Republic – no more than 15% of the value of pension savings (mortgage-backed securities refer to mortgage-backed bonds and housing certificates); (5) deposits in financial organizations – no more than 30% of the value of pension savings. It is allowed to invest in bonds with the security of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, shares of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, mortgage securities (housing certificates) of one issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, deposits of one credit organization – no more than 10% of pension savings for each type. Pension savings may be placed or invested in corporate securities of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic included in the quotation list of the stock exchange in the first (highest) and second (following the highest) categories.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Article 24 of the Kyrgyz Republic Law on the Investment of Funds for the Financing of the Savings Portion of Pensions under State Social Insurance in the Kyrgyz Republic, and the Rules for the Investment of Pension Savings Assets, approved by Kyrgyz Republic Government Resolution No. 463 of August 29, 2016, apply. Pension savings may be placed in the following assets: (1) government securities, in an amount not to exceed 40% of the value of pension savings; (2) secured bonds of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic that are traded in stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic – in an amount not to exceed 30% of the value of pension savings; (3) stocks of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic that were established in the form of open joint-stock companies and are listed on stock exchanges of the Kyrgyz Republic, in an amount not to exceed 40% of the value of pension savings; (4) mortgage securities and housing certificates issued in accordance with the laws of the Kyrgyz Republic, in an amount not to exceed 15% of the value of pension savings. For the purposes of these rules, mortgage securities are understood to mean mortgage-backed bonds and housing certificates; (5) deposits at financial and lending institutions – in an amount not to exceed 30% of the value of pension savings.

		Furthermore, investments in secured bonds of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, in the stocks of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, in the mortgage-backed securities (housing certificates) of a single issuer of the Kyrgyz Republic, and in deposits at lending institutions are not to exceed 10% of the value of pension savings for each type of investment. Pension savings may be placed or invested in corporate securities of issuers of the Kyrgyz Republic included in the quotation list of the stock exchange in the first (highest) and second (following the highest) categories. Legal entities that are registered in offshore zones or whose stakeholders, stockholders, and affiliates include legal entities registered in offshore zones, or individuals residing in offshore zones, or who are stockholders (stakeholders) in legal entities registered in offshore zones, are not permitted to serve as management companies for pension savings assets.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	An investment fund does not have the right to invest more than 20% of the fund's total net assets in the securities of a single issuer, or in the shares of a limited liability company, with the exception of investment funds for qualified investors and investments in government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Investment funds are permitted to invest in foreign corporate securities (shares and bonds), in the following cases: (1) the issuer has a credit rating determined by the Kyrgyz Republic Government to be acceptable for investment of an investment fund's resources, assigned by a rating agency authorized by the government agency responsible for the regulation of the securities market; (2) the securities must have an official quote (listing) rating determined by the government agency responsible for the regulation of the securities market to be acceptable for investment of an investment fund's resources, or by a securities exchange authorized by the government agency responsible for the regulation of the securities market. An investment fund does not have the right to invest more than 20% of the fund's total net assets in the securities of a single issuer or in the shares of a limited liability company, with the exception of investment funds for qualified investors and investments in government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	The composition of an investment fund's portfolio must comply with the following requirements based on a percentage of the value of its net assets: (1) a minimum of 10% in deposits in highly liquid assets, such as cash, Kyrgyz Republic Government or NBKR securities, or deposits in commercial banks with maturity up to six months; (2) a maximum of 20% in commercial bank deposits; (3) a maximum of 15% in securities of the same issuer, except for government securities and securities guaranteed by the Kyrgyz Republic Government; (4) a maximum of 20% in a single real estate investment; and (5) a maximum of 15% in the authorized capital of limited liability companies. These requirements are the maximum limits on the portion of the investment portfolio held locally. An investment fund may not: (1) invest in assets not indicated in its investment statement; (2) invest resources in securities issued by rate because of a rise in interest rates in the United States, the conflict between Russia and Ukraine, and strong demand for foreign currencies in the Lao economy. Also, cash flow management in Lao currently is not efficient enough. An escalation of such risk contributed to the depreciation of the LAK (Lao Kip) against the US dollar. In 2023, the challenges from the uncertainty of the global economy still remain, including the geopolitical tensions and competitive political-economic environment of the major countries and persistently high inflation. To maintain national monetary and financial stability, BOL has implemented tightening monetary policy while also prioritizing the stability of the financial system, continued to conduct exchange rate policy, and monitored and evaluated the outcome of policy implementation in each period. Since March 2022, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified from crawl-like to other managed, effective March 29, 2022. Data on interventions are not published.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate is calculated by the BOL as the weighted average of the previous day's interbank rates and rates of commercial banks. This rate is used to set the daily reference rate. Since June 19, 2023, the BOL increased the flexibility of the reference exchange rate for Lao Kip against the US dollar. The band of commercial banks' exchange rate movement relative to the reference rate has been widen from ±4.50% to ±7.50%, and the margin of buying and selling rates was set at 2% for the US dollar, EUR, Thai Baht, Chinese Yuan, and other foreign currencies. The trend of the reference exchange rate movement has also been regular reviewed and adjusted to reflect the trend of the market exchange rate. In addition, the supervision of foreign exchange bureaus was shifted from the BOL to commercial banks. In other words, the BOL turned foreign exchange bureaus into foreign exchange service agents under the supervision of commercial banks on July 12, 2021, to facilitate foreign exchanges between foreign exchange bureaus and commercial banks and to limit their unfavorable roles in the foreign exchange market. However, on January 13, 2023, BOL issued an announcement on closing down foreign exchange service agents under commercial banks to comply with the new Decision on Foreign Exchange Services (No. 1026/BOL of December 28, 2022) that allows only commercial banks in Lao PDR to operate foreign exchange services.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary policy framework of BOL is classified as "other monetary framework" which is defined as a mixed regime of monetary targeting and an exchange rate anchor. BOL uses reserve money which is the main component of monetary base as an operational target to achieve the intermediate targets on managing money supply (M2) and the exchange rate in banking system. To achieve these targets, BOL deploys the key policy instruments including reserve requirement ratio, policy rate, open market operations (BOL bills), and reference exchange rate. From mid-2022 onwards, BOL has furthered tightening monetary policy measures to reduce excess increase in money supply, inflation rate, and reduce exchange rate depreciation pressures. Between May 2022 and August 2023, BOL increased reserve requirement ratio three times from 3% to 5% (effective May 17, 2022) to 5.5% (effective February 13, 2023) to 8% (effective August 31, 2023) for Lao KIP and twice for foreign currencies from 5% to 8% (effective February 13, 2023) to 10% (effective August 31, 2023). Moreover, the new regulation has allowed commercial banks to now maintain a maximum of 70% (reduced from 90%) of LAK Kip reserve requirement ratio as eligible bonds. As for foreign currency reserve requirement ratio, commercial banks are allowed to maintain in a form of reserve balance holding at BOL only. Additionally, BOL also raised policy rate from 3% to 3.10% effective May 17, 2022, to 6.50% effective October 11, 2022, and further to 7.50% effective February 13, 2023. Apart from that, effective June 13, 2022, BOL announced the issuance of BOL bills to sell to the public; the additional amount of BOL bills was issued to individuals and legal entities (excluding commercial banks and financial institutions) and specifically to commercial banks and financial institutions between January and September 2023. Moreover, since late August 2023, BOL conducted a new monetary operation facility, called the seven-day fixed term deposits at BOL. With regards to exchange rate policy, between October 2022 and June 2023, BOL has widened the trading band of commercial banks' exchange rate movement relative to the reference rate for Lao KIP against USD from ±1.5% (since September 15, 2021) to ±4.5% (since October 11, 2022) to ±7.5% (since June 19, 2023), and the margin of buying and selling rates was increased for foreign currencies from 1% to 2%.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Effective October 11, 2022, the trading band of commercial banks' exchange rate movement relative to the reference rate for Lao Kip against USD was widened from ±1.5% to ±4.5%. Effective June 19, 2023, commercial banks must keep their buying and selling rates for kip against the US dollar within ±7.50% (previously ±4.5%) of the daily reference rate set by the BOL. The margin of buying and selling rates is set at 2% for the US dollar (previously 0.5%), EUR (previously 0.75%), Thai Baht (previously 0.75%), Chinese Yuan, and other foreign currencies. Commercial banks are required to report daily their rates and transaction volumes to the BOL. Decision No. 449/BOL was replaced by Decision No. 1026/BOL, which states that commercial banks are entrusted with the responsibility of providing currency exchange services to individuals, legal entities, and organizations, both domestic and international, who engage in business activities or conduct transactions within the Lao PDR according to the relevant regulations. Commercial banks may establish foreign exchange service units if they are not prepared to provide direct services under Article 8 of Decision No. 1026/BOL. Commercial banks bear full responsibility for the operation of these units and retain the authority to terminate them at their judgment. Commercial banks have responsibility to monitor the foreign exchange cash flow of entities who has foreign currency earnings, monitor cash flow from trade, and investment; as well as engage in foreign exchange transactions with these entities according to the regulations. Commercial banks also have a responsibility to sell foreign exchange currency to individuals or entities whose purposes of foreign exchange purchase include making export (especially priority goods), services, and debt settlement. On July 12, 2021, the BOL turned foreign exchange bureaus into foreign exchange service agents under the supervision of commercial banks on July 12, 2021, to facilitate foreign exchanges between foreign exchange bureaus and commercial banks and to limit their unfavorable roles in the foreign exchange market. Effective June 14, 2022, as per Decision No. 449/BOL, commercial banks and foreign exchange agents must sell foreign exchange to the individuals within the limit of 15 million kip (approximately US$1,000) a person a day. However, effective January 13, 2023, BOL issued an announcement on closing down foreign exchange service agents under commercial banks to comply with the new Decision on Foreign Exchange Services (No. 1026/BOL of December 28, 2022) that allows only commercial banks in Lao PDR to operate foreign exchange services.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	All UNSC sanctions are directly applicable and enforced in Latvia and are transposed by the EU. Moreover, to prevent the particular endangerments of peace and stability, the EU has adopted separate set of sanctions binding on its Member States, all of which are reflected as follows: restrictive measures directed against certain individuals, groups, enterprises, and entities in view of the situation in Afghanistan; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Belarus and the involvement of Belarus in the Russian aggression against Ukraine; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Burundi; restrictive measures in view of the situation in the Central African Republic; restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons; restrictive measures against cyber-attacks threatening the Union or its Member States; restrictive measures against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea; restrictive measures in view of the situation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Guinea; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Guinea-Bissau; prohibiting the satisfying of claims by the Haitian authorities with regard to contracts and transactions the performance of which was affected by the measures imposed by or pursuant to UNSC Resolutions 917 (1994), 841 (1993), 873 (1993), and 875 (1993); restrictive measures in view of the situation in Haiti (effective October 21, 2022, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 2022/2309); restrictive measures against serious human rights violations and abuses; restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Iran; concerning restrictive measures against Iran; restrictive measures in view of Iran's military support of Russia's war of aggression against Ukraine; certain specific restrictions on economic and financial relations with Iraq; restrictions prohibiting the satisfying of Iraqi claims with regard to contracts and transactions the performance of which was affected by UNSC Resolution 661 (1990) and related resolutions; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Lebanon; certain restrictive measures in respect of Lebanon; restrictive measures against certain persons suspected of involvement in the assassination of former Lebanese prime minister Rafiq Hariri; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Libya; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Mali; restrictive measures in view of actions destabilizing the Republic of Moldova; restrictive measures prohibiting the satisfying of claims with regard to contracts and transactions the performance of which was affected by the UNSC Resolution 757(1992) and related resolutions; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Myanmar/Burma; restrictive measures in view of the situation in the Republic of Nicaragua; restrictive measures in view of Russia's actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine; restrictive measures directed against certain natural or legal persons, entities, or bodies, in view of the situation in Somalia; restrictive measures in respect of the situation in South Sudan; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Sudan; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Syria; restrictive measures directed against the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida and natural and legal persons, entities, or bodies associated with them; restrictive measures directed against certain persons and entities with a view to combating terrorism; restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Tunisia; restrictive measures in view of Turkey's unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean; restrictive measures in response to the illegal recognition, occupation, or annexation by the Russian Federation of certain non-government controlled areas of Ukraine; restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Ukraine; restrictive measures in respect of actions undermining or threatening the territorial integrity, sovereignty, and independence of Ukraine; restrictive measures in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol (Crimea) (Ukraine); restrictive measures protecting against the effects of the extra-territorial application of legislation adopted by a third country, and actions based thereon or resulting therefrom; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Venezuela; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Yemen; restrictive measures in view of the situation in Zimbabwe. There are legal frameworks for UNSC resolutions to be implemented without delay, and to for Latvia propose international sanctions (UNSC and EU) without having to impose national sanctions. All persons must comply with and execute international and national sanctions. All persons (legal and natural) in accordance with their competence have the obligation to immediately and without a prior notice to freeze for an indefinite period all financial resources and financial instruments, which are directly or indirectly, completely or partially, under the ownership, possession, holding, or control of the subject of sanctions, including those financial resources and financial instruments that have been transferred to third persons. Similar provisions are provided regarding financial services and other material and immaterial assets, such as immovable property, ships, and airships. There is a Sanctions Coordination Council, which is tasked with creating unified informative materials about sanctions for all interested parties, discussing possible cooperative solutions to complicated cases, and sharing information about potential issues and risks. Failure to comply with the requirements for the internal control system of sanctions may result in fines for natural persons and legal persons of up €UR 1 million.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Latvia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at around, effective April 3, 2023, 14:10 Central European Time (CET) (previously 14:15 CET), and are published at around 16:00 CET. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Gold articles (except coins and bullion) for the domestic market are subject to compulsory hallmarking. Market surveillance control on domestic trade in gold articles is also in place.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Business activity must be registered with the Assay Office of Latvia.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of value of €10,000 or more are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purpose of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.

Held abroad	Yes.	An investment fund (UCITS) may invest in deposits that are repayable on demand or have the right to be withdrawn, and maturing in no more than 12 months, provided the credit institution has received a license for the operation of a credit institution in a EU Member State or in a country which is an OECD member and which according to Regulation No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 is considered as a country applying supervisory and regulatory arrangements to credit institutions equivalent to those applied in the EU.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	The Law on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism and Proliferation Financing (AML/CFT) limits the engagement of Latvian financial institutions with certain types of shell entities. Customers from higher risk jurisdictions are subject to enhanced customer due diligence (EDD) (obligatory requirement). The FCMC manual on client due diligence and AML/CFT internal control system was adopted (recommendations for the credit institutions and financial institutions). The recommendations give insight into the practical aspects of conducting and managing client risks, including determining the country of residence of the client, conducting due diligence, and the specifics of enhanced due diligence. The FCMC Regulations No. 5 “Client due diligence and risk scoring system and information technology regulations” (KYC Regulations) stipulates the risk-based approach, requires the assessment of risk in line with European Banking Authority (EBA) Guidelines on risk factors, and simplifies and enhances customer due diligence. The Guidelines require to assess the nonresident risk factor and to understand the need to receive financial services abroad. The amendments to the AML/CFT Law remove the prohibition of remote identification for certain risk profile clients. Remote identification rules are stipulated in the Rules of the Cabinet of Ministers No. 392 "Procedures by which the Subject of the Law on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing Performs the Remote Identification of a Customer" from July 3, 2018 (Remote identification rules). The FCMC remote identification guidelines were adopted effective February 15, 2022.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	Yes.	Exchange subsidy rates are: (1) the “Sayrafa” platform rate for oil derivative imports (gasoline, diesel gas). This subsidy was canceled effective September 15, 2022. (2) since September 2019, (LL 1,501–1,514/US dollar) for the imports of wheat, medicines, medical supplies, infant milk up to one year of age, and medical materials that are included in the pharmaceutical industry. (3) (LL 3,900/US dollar) for basic foodstuffs, raw materials that are included in food industries, and products intended for sale to farmers. This subsidy was canceled on May 27, 2021.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks may engage in foreign exchange transactions in any currency except new Israeli shekels. Banks carry out cash exchange operations to provide commercial and personal needs of their customers through the "Sayrafa" platform. Foreign exchange bureaus carry out cash exchange operations through the “Sayrafa” platform. Insurance companies may engage in foreign exchange transactions in any currency except new Israeli shekels. Such dealings are restricted to the extent that insurers must match their assets with their liabilities with regard to currency.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate and are subject to licensing by the BDL. As of December 31, 2022, the number of authorized foreign exchange bureaus was 304 (both Categories A and B). Foreign exchange bureaus (money dealers) may conduct foreign exchange transactions with commercial banks, but not directly with the BDL. Category A money dealers must have a minimum capital of LL 10 billion, effective May 17, 2023. Only the 48 Category A money dealers may perform transfers and they are prohibited from making any transfer in excess of US$1,500 that does not result from an exchange operation or a cross-border transport operation, when the transfer consists of receiving cash amounts from customers and then transferring them to third persons whether in Lebanon or abroad through the institution’s bank accounts. Only Category A money dealers with a minimum capital of LL 50 billion, may conduct cross-border transport of cash banknotes and precious metals. Category B money dealers must have a minimum capital of LL 5 billion. Category B money dealers may deal in cash and traveler’s checks up to the equivalent of US$10,000 in uncollected traveler’s checks and gold bars not exceeding 1,000 grams.

		Category A money dealers are the only institutions entitled to perform hawala cash transfers, whether for their own account or on behalf of a third party. These institutions are also prohibited from performing transactions, such as commercial financing, lending, and the management of funds, which do not fall within the scope of exchange business. The value of an incoming or outgoing hawala transaction must not exceed US$20,000 or its equivalent in any other currency, provided the total amount of hawala transactions in a single year does not exceed, at any time, tenfold the capital of the exchange institution. Exchange institutions, when making any purchase or sale of US dollars, must immediately enter all the required information about the transaction and install it through the "Sayrafa" platform. As of April 16, 2020, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle incoming transfers in Lebanese pound at market rate. As of August 6, 2020, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle any incoming transfers in US dollars.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BDL sets its bid-ask rates at the opening hour on Reuters (page BDL O1), and the rates do not change during the day. The closing rates are determined and published at the end of each trading day. The bid-ask rates were LL 14,935/US dollar and LL 15,065/US dollar, respectively, effective February 1, 2023. The BDL deals directly with the government and other public entities.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is an active interbank foreign exchange market, and all commercial banks operating in Lebanon may trade among themselves at freely determined rates. There were 59 banks operating in Lebanon as of December 31, 2022, including 40 commercial banks, 15 investment and specialized banks, and 4 Islamic banks. Two banks not counted above are under liquidation. The BDL grants licenses and intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	The market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks are permitted to engage in forward operations on their own behalf for hedging purposes only. Forward operations and spot operations on behalf of clients are allowed with a minimum cash margin deposit equivalent to 20% of credit facilities. The total shortage in margin for all operations may not exceed 8% of a bank's capital. The BDL does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market. Insurance companies may engage in forward transactions; nevertheless, no such transactions are recorded in practice because of restrictions on the admissibility of financial derivatives.
Official cover of forward operations	Yes.	A minimum cash margin equivalent to 20% of credit facilities must be provided by the client for spot or forward foreign exchange operations for speculative purposes.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	All accounts are subject to the Law on Combating Money Laundering (which also deals with terrorism financing and corruption) and the relevant circulars issued by the BDL. Accounts are subject to the Law No. 55 related to the exchange of information for tax purposes in the case of request of foreign authorities.
Held domestically	Yes.	These are subject to the limits and regulations set by the Law on Combating Money Laundering. Balances may be transferred abroad freely. Exceptionally, because of the financial crisis, depositors are allowed to withdraw banknotes from their foreign-currency-denominated accounts in Lebanese pounds using an exchange rate of USD/LBP 2,600 as of April 21, 2020. This rate then changed to 3,000 on May 10, 2020, 3,900 on July 20, 2020, 8,000 on December 10, 2021 and 15,000 effective February 1, 2023. Banks have to sell back these purchased foreign currencies to the BDL. This measure was introduced on April 21, 2020, and was to remain in effect until December 31, 2023. However, effective July 27, 2022, banks are no longer obligated to sell back the purchased foreign currencies to the BDL. The obligation to banks to sell back the purchased foreign currency to the BDL applied just the currency that banks purchased from depositors that withdrew banknotes from their foreign-currency-denominated accounts. As of July 1, 2021, banks should take the necessary measures to pay back part of a depositor's total foreign currency accounts opened before October 31, 2019, in all banks operating in Lebanon as follows: • Maximum amount to be paid back is around US$9,600 a year and US$50,000 over 5 years. • 50% of the eligible amount (that is, US$4,800 a year) is allowed to be paid in USD banknotes or transferred abroad or used through banking cards on the basis of US$400 a month. The remaining 50% will be converted to LBP using an exchange rate USD/LBP 12,000. This rate then changed to 15,000 effective February 1, 2023.The amount allowed to be withdrawn in LBP banknotes is limited to half the converted amount. • USD-denominated withdrawals will be financed through banks' own liquidity (50% of the withdrawn amount) and through the freed mandatory placements with the BDL (the remaining 50% of the withdrawn amount). In case the minimum "net placements abroad ratio" (as per BDL Basic Circular No. 154) drops to below 3% because of only the above withdrawals, banks will have till end-2023 to re-comply with the minimum requirement mentioned above. • Depositors benefitting from the above scheme in one bank are still eligible to benefit from BDL Basic Circular No. 151 in other banks.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	These are subject to the limits and regulations set by the Law on Combating Money Laundering. Balances may be transferred to the home country freely.

		c.i.f. or c.f.r. values; customs duties are generally ad valorem. The WTO valuation principle is also applied. Ad valorem rates vary between 0% and 75%. There are preferential duty rates for goods imported for industrial, agricultural, or public use. In addition to ad valorem duties, which apply to about 93% of products, the following rates apply: (1) The bracket-based calculation applies to cars. The value of a car is divided into two brackets, and the total duty is the sum of the duty applied at each bracket's rate. (2) Duty may be calculated on the basis of units of measure, such as weight or volume (for example, for gasoline). (3) Combined duty may be calculated on an ad valorem and specific basis, and the higher amount collected (for example, for tropical fruits and chickens). Excise duty is collected on tobacco and alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages, cars, cement, and fuels. Lebanon applies the GAFTA convention and has signed bilateral FTAs with Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Turkey (the latter was signed in November 2010 but awaits parliamentary ratification), and the United Arab Emirates. Lebanon signed an interim agreement with the EU and the EFTA countries on trade and commercial issues in 2003, which formally triggered the 12-year transition to free trade. A VAT of 11% is levied on all goods and services, whether imported or produced domestically, except for some exempt goods and services. A tax of 3% on imported products subject to VAT, excluding gasoline, is in place.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Imports of some goods, including weapons of war and ammunition and wheat and tobacco products, are reserved for the government.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	All accounts are subject to the Law on Combating Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing (which also deals with terrorism financing and corruption). There are quantitative limits for nonbank financial institutions, financial intermediation institutions, and Category A money dealers. The above institutions may not transfer, internally or abroad, for their clients to a third party an amount exceeding US$1,500. Only Category A money dealers may conduct hawala transactions. The maximum amount of each hawala transaction (inward or outward) is US$20,000. Total hawala transactions may not exceed 10 times the capital of the money dealer each year. As of April 16, 2020, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle incoming transfers in Lebanese pounds at the market rate. As of August 6, 2020, nonbank financial institutions allowed to conduct electronic transfers must settle any incoming transfers in US dollars.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Law No. 161 of August 17, 2011, established the Capital Markets Authority (CMA). The CMA's regulatory and supervisory authority includes (1) shares or other securities of a participating nature in commercial companies, (2) bonds or other debt securities, (3) money market instruments, (4) collective investment vehicles, and (5) derivatives and other instruments. The CMA began to exercise its functions toward the end of 2013. Three new financial expert board members of the CMA were appointed by Decree No. 6473 of June 10, 2020.
Repatriation requirements	No.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Shares or other securities of a participating nature of a single nonfinancial issuer may not exceed 10% of the equity of a bank or financial institution. Moreover, no shares, stocks, or other kind of capital participation may generate unlimited liability or responsibility for a bank or financial institution.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Limits are imposed on the acquisition of shares in real estate companies. Acquisition of shares in nonbank financial institutions and financial intermediation institutions is subject to BDL Central Council approval for the former and the CMA board of directors for the latter (CMA Regulation (Series 2000)) if (1) it leads directly or indirectly to the acquisition by the purchaser of more than 10% of the institution's total shares; (2) the purchaser already holds 10% or more of the institution's shares; or (3) the purchaser or seller is a member or an elected member of the board of directors, irrespective of the number of shares to be sold. The 10% limit applies to spouses, minors, and any economic group. Approval of BDL Central Council is required for acquisition of shares in a bank if (1) it leads directly or indirectly to the acquisition by the purchaser more than 5% of total shares or voting rights; (2) the purchaser already holds more than 5% or more of total shares or voting rights; (3) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member or an elected member of the board of directors of the bank involved; (4) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member of the senior management or an employee of the bank involved and holds 1% or more of the total shares if such shares are listed; or (5) the purchase of shares by an employee leads directly or indirectly to his or her acquisition of more than 1% of the total shares if such shares are listed. Authorization and regulations also apply to ascendants, spouses, and descendants of sellers and purchasers. When purchasers of shares in banks and financial institutions are companies or mutual funds, their respective by-laws or Articles of Association must explicitly include that all their shares are in registered form, and are fully and continuously owned, whether directly or indirectly, by natural persons or companies whose shares are in registered form (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411). Any legal entity, resident or nonresident, that acquires directly or indirectly a share in an issuing company or public company equal to or exceeding 5% of the shares or units of a fund with a voting right in the said company must submit a report to the CMA in this respect (Law No. 161).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Financial instrument transactions must be authorized by the CMA. Principal or secondary professional activity that involves solicitation of clients for subscription, purchase, swap, or sale of securities or financial instruments also requires CMA authorization. Legal entities may not undertake a public subscription without CMA approval. Issuance, sale, or offers to sell financial instruments for public subscription are also prohibited prior to obtaining the CMA's authorization. Invitations to potential investors for such financial instruments require CMA approval (Law No. 161). No person, resident or not, may issue or invite the public to subscribe to or market or make any statement, announcement, or communication that has the effect of selling, issuing, or offering the following products without authorization from the CMA: (1) shares, debt securities, or units issued by a public or private company or entity or a collective investment fund; (2) bonds, notes, CDs, depositary receipts, and treasury bills and bonds; (3) financial rights, options, futures, and any other derivatives or structured financial products; and (4) any other financial instrument authorized by the CMA or its regulations, except an instrument specifically excluded by the law. An exempt offer of securities (as defined in CMA Regulation (Series 6000)) must be notified to the CMA within a time limit of 14 days from the closing date for subscription, as of February 15, 2021. The offer of foreign securities in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be made through an approved institution licensed by the CMA. The offer of securities issued by a foreign government or by a supranational authority recognized by the CMA is exempted from the above requirements (CMA Regulation (Series 6000)).

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	BDL approval is required for Lebanese banks and financial institutions to participate, directly or indirectly, and within the limits set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit, in any foreign financial entity (bank, financial institution, brokerage house, mutual fund, insurance company). BDL approval is not required (1) if a resident bank participates indirectly through foreign banks and financial institutions in which the resident bank has a stake greater than 20% and if the participation of these foreign banks or financial institutions in the foreign financial sector is less than 20% of their assets or (2) if the stake of a resident bank is less than 20%. Approval for Lebanese bank participation depends on specific BDL conditions regarding ethical and technical qualifications. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions require BDL approval to issue shares locally or abroad.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident financial entities must obtain BDL approval when purchasing treasury securities issued in Lebanese pounds or BDL CDs denominated in Lebanese pounds, US dollars, or euros. Funds used to purchase treasury securities or CDs in Lebanese pounds must originally have been deposited in foreign currency and converted specifically for the purchase.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Financial instrument transactions must be authorized by the CMA. Principal or secondary professional activity that involves solicitation of clients for subscription, purchase, swap, or sale of securities or financial instruments also requires CMA authorization. Legal entities may not undertake a public subscription without CMA approval. Issuance, sale, or offers to sell financial instruments for public subscription are also prohibited prior to obtaining the CMA's authorization. Invitations to potential investors for such financial instruments require CMA approval (Law No. 161). No person, resident or not, may issue or invite the public to subscribe to or market or make any statement, announcement, or communication that has the effect of selling, issuing, or offering the following products without authorization from the CMA: (1) shares, debt securities, or units issued by a public or private company or entity or a collective investment fund; (2) bonds, notes, CDs, depositary receipts, and treasury bills and bonds; (3) financial rights, options, futures, and any other derivatives or structured financial products; and (4) any other financial instrument authorized by the CMA or its regulations, except an instrument specifically excluded by the law. An exempt offer of securities (as defined in CMA Regulation (Series 6000)) must be notified to the CMA within a time limit of 14 days from the closing date for subscription, as of February 15, 2021. The offer of foreign securities in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be made through an approved institution licensed by the CMA. The offer of securities issued by a foreign government or by a supranational authority recognized by the CMA is exempted from the above requirements (CMA Regulation (Series 6000)).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The following apply to banks' and financial institutions' holdings, including by their foreign branches and subsidiaries: (1) A 25%

		equity limit applies to the nominal value of structured financial products held and purchased abroad, provided (a) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or a guarantor rated at least A and (b) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed. (2) A 10% equity limit applies to credit-linked notes (CLNs) related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies and purchased from abroad, provided (a) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed; (b) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or guarantor rated at least A; and (c) they include mandatory physical settlement in the case of a credit event—such as default on Eurobonds or BDL CDs—whereby changes in the price of credit default swaps on Lebanese treasury bills not induced by an internationally recognized credit event are not categorized under a credit event and consequently do not call for mandatory physical settlement. (3) A 50% equity limit applies to non-Group of Ten (G10) sovereign bonds rated at least BBB and corporate bonds rated at least BBB; if guaranteed, the guarantor must be rated at least BBB. The applicable rating is the lowest of Standard & Poor's (S&P's) or another internationally recognized rating agency, provided it is BBB or higher. The 50% limit includes the 25% structured financial products' equity limit and the 10% CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies equity limit and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. (4) A 10% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except G10 countries) and other bonds, structured financial products, and CLNs of a single issuer. (5) A 10% equity limit applies to placements with banks abroad with maturity of one year or longer. (6) A 50% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except G10 countries) and corporate bonds, structured financial products, CLNs, and interbank deposits. (7) Investments by Lebanese affiliates abroad in sovereign bonds issued in the currency of the host country may not exceed deposits in the same currency. With respect to Item (3), the BDL may authorize banks and financial institutions to exceed the 50% limit, if they have a high capital adequacy ratio and they abide by BCC and BDL circulars, particularly on ethical and technical qualifications of specific functions in the banking and financial sector. In the calculation of ratios, the investments of banks' and financial institutions' branches abroad are included in the portfolio of bonds, structured financial products, and CLNs and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. When placing bids, banks and financial institutions must also abide by the limits. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	BDL approval is required for banks and financial institutions to issue bonds locally or abroad.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing bonds or other debt securities apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident financial entities must obtain BDL approval when purchasing treasury securities issued in Lebanese pounds or BDL CDs denominated in Lebanese pounds, US dollars, or euros. Funds used to purchase treasury securities or CDs in Lebanese pounds must originally have been deposited in foreign currencies and converted specifically for the purchase.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CMA approval is required. However, foreign sovereign bonds and short-term instruments are exempted from the CMA approval pursuant to Article 37 of Law No. 161.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of sovereign bonds, including treasury bonds—(except from G10 countries) with an S&P rating of at least BBB or an equivalent rating from another internationally recognized rating agency—and the purchase of corporate bonds rated BBB and issued by corporations rated at least BBB are limited to 50% of banks' and financial institutions' equity. The total value of corporate bonds and structured financial products from a single issuer may not exceed 10% of Tier 1 capital.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	BDL approval is required for banks and financial institutions to issue money market instruments locally or abroad.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Any legal entity, resident or nonresident, that acquires directly or indirectly a share in an issuing company or public company equal to or exceeding 5% of the shares or units of a fund with a voting right in the said company must submit a report to the CMA in this respect.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The promotion of and trading in foreign collective investment securities are subject to CMA approval. Public offer of units in a foreign investment fund in Lebanon is not permitted unless that fund is approved by the regulator in its jurisdiction for public offer and is approved by the CMA as offering equivalent protection to Lebanese investors. The offer in Lebanon of units in a foreign fund that is not an approved fund is only permitted if it is an exempt offer (that is, offered to professional clients and the minimum subscription amount is US$50,000). The offer of units of foreign collective investment funds in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be undertaken by an approved institution licensed by the CMA.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The limit for banks' purchases of collective investment securities is set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit. According to this limit, the total of a bank's initial capital and holdings of fixed assets, real estate, equity investments, and credit to connected persons may not exceed its own funds. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411). The manager of a collective investment fund may not acquire units in another collective investment fund unless the latter is an approved fund or a publicly offered fund that is subject to similar regulation and oversight in a jurisdiction judged by the CMA to provide equivalent investor protection to applicable Lebanese laws and regulations (CMA Regulation (Series 8000)).
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Operations with financial instruments must be authorized by the CMA. Principal or secondary professional activity that involves solicitation of clients for subscription, purchase, swap, or sale of securities or financial instruments also requires CMA authorization. Legal entities may not undertake a public subscription without CMA approval. Issuance, sale, or offer to sell financial instruments for public subscription is also prohibited prior to obtaining the CMA's authorization. Invitations to potential investors concerning such financial instruments are prohibited without CMA approval (Law No. 161). No person, resident or not, may issue or invite the public to subscribe to or market or make any statement, announcement, or communication that has the effect of selling, issuing, or offering the following products without authorization from the CMA: (1) shares, debt securities, or units issued by a public or private company or entity or a collective investment fund; (2) bonds, notes, CDs, depositary receipts, and treasury bills and bonds; (3) financial rights, options, futures, and any other derivatives or structured financial products; and (4) any other financial instrument authorized by the CMA or its regulations, except an instrument specifically excluded by the law. An exempt offer of securities (as defined in CMA Regulation (Series 6000)) does not require the approval of CMA but must be notified to the CMA within a time limit of 14 days from the closing date for subscription, as of February 15, 2021. The CMA has the right to object to the proposed offer or to prohibit it if it deems that the offer is not in the public interest or may result in a breach of CMA laws and regulations. The offer of foreign securities in Lebanon (whether public or exempt) must be made through an approved institution licensed by the CMA (CMA Regulation (Series 6000)).

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Financial intermediaries (that is, banks, financial institutions, financial intermediation companies) may not perform on their own behalf, or on behalf of their clients, a transaction in financial derivatives or an off-exchange retail foreign exchange transaction with a nonresident party except with (1) a party that operates in the United States, provided it is a member of the National Futures Association and licensed by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and (2) a party that operates outside the United States or is not a resident of the United States, provided it has an investment grade rating and is licensed to trade in financial derivatives by the relevant regulatory authorities in countries with investment grade (Article 3602 of the CMA Regulation (Series 3000)). Banks, unlike other financial institutions and brokerage firms, may engage, on their own behalf, in derivatives transactions locally or abroad for hedging purposes only. Banks and financial institutions may not deal on their own behalf with nonresident sectors nor in any currency in structured financial products, except for unconditional capital-guaranteed structured financial products issued or guaranteed by an issuer or a guarantor rated at least A, provided their total nominal value does not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. The total value of corporate bonds and structured financial products of a single issuer may not exceed 10% of equity, and banks and financial institutions may not deal, on their own behalf with nonresident entities, in CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs denominated in foreign currency, except (1) notes that are capital guaranteed in the case of a credit event, such as default on Eurobonds or BDL CDs, and (2) notes issued or guaranteed by an at least A-rated issuer or guarantor, on condition of mandatory payment and delivery of the Eurobonds and BDL CDs when the credit event occurs, whereby changes in the price of credit default swaps on Lebanese treasury bills not induced by an internationally recognized credit event are not categorized under a credit event and consequently do not call for mandatory physical settlement. The nominal value of these CLNs may not exceed 10% of the capital of the bank or financial institution.

		behalf, or on behalf of their clients, a transaction in financial derivatives or an off-exchange retail foreign exchange transaction with a nonresident party except with (1) a party that operates in the United States, provided it is a member of the National Futures Association and licensed by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and (2) a party that operates outside the United States or is not a resident of the United States, provided it is rated an investment grade rating and is licensed to trade in financial derivatives by the relevant regulatory authorities in countries with investment grade rating (Article 3602 of the CMA Regulation (Series 3000)). Banks, unlike other financial institutions and brokerage firms, may engage, on their own behalf, in derivatives transactions locally or abroad for hedging purposes only.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The following limits apply to banks' credit facilities for borrowers: (1) For credit used in Lebanon and abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches and subsidiaries abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 20% of Tier 1 capital. (2) For credit used only abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 10% of Tier 1 capital. (3) Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its foreign branches for use abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital. (4) Total for large exposure credits (that each one exceeds 10% of the bank's consolidated Tier 1 capital) used in Lebanon and abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital on a consolidated basis. The limits per country are as follows: (1) Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated at least BBB may not exceed 50% of Tier 1 capital. (2) Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad for use in countries rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 100% of Tier 1 capital. Car or housing loans in domestic and foreign currencies to residents and nonresidents may not exceed 75% of the price of the car or the house (except housing loans by the housing bank and housing corporation and through the military housing plan and the Ministry of Displaced and Protocols for Judges and the Internal Security Forces and Public Security). The total monthly payment for all loans may not exceed 35% of a family's income (family consists of husband and wife). The maximum is 45% if the family benefits from a housing loan, provided the monthly payments of the housing loan do not exceed 35% of the family income. Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in Lebanese pounds to nonresident financial entities. Banks may not extend credit to clients in domestic currency for the purpose of constituting deposits in foreign currency other than for commercial purposes. Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in domestic currency for the purpose of settling a loan already originated in foreign currency by the bank itself or the financial institution itself or by another bank or another financial institution (BDL Basic Circular No. 46). As of December 9, 2020, the law that banks are required to maintain an LTD ratio in Lebanese pounds (LBP) of no more than 25% was removed (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 577). Credit counters are not allowed to grant loans for one individual borrower or group of borrowers more than 5% of their equity or the equivalent of US$0.1 million whichever is less, provided the monthly payments for all loans granted by any credit institution do not exceed 35% of the family income (BDL Basic Circular to credit counters No. 2).

To residents from nonresidents	No.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The net debtor interbank position between Lebanese banks and affiliates (subsidiaries and sister companies) abroad may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. This restriction applies to credit by banks in Lebanon to affiliated nonfinancial entities abroad. Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in Lebanese pounds to nonresident financial entities. Banks and financial institutions may not make treasury placements abroad other than for operating accounts, except with correspondents rated at least BBB or nonrated correspondents affiliated to banking groups rated BBB and above, provided these correspondents are based in countries rated BBB and above. (Placements with Lebanese bank affiliates abroad are exempt.) Total net credit exposure with each correspondent abroad may not exceed 25% of the bank's (financial institution's) Tier 1 capital. Net credit exposure includes all on-balance- and off-balance-sheet exposures. To prevent short-selling operations on Lebanese Eurobonds, CLNs, and BDL CDs, banks and nonbank financial institutions were directed to amend contracts with their correspondents and custodians abroad to prevent transactions on such instruments pledged or placed in custody. Banks and financial institutions must be fully informed of the laws and regulations governing their correspondents abroad and must ensure compliance with the laws, regulations, procedures, sanctions, and restrictions of international legal organizations and sovereign authorities in the correspondents' home country. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411). Banks are not allowed to grant loans to credit counters (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 410).
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may not extend credit in Lebanese pounds to residents. Lebanese banks and nonbank financial institutions may borrow from the nonresident financial sector against Lebanese sovereign bonds in foreign currencies (including CDs issued by the BDL) and foreign sovereign and non-sovereign bonds up to 50% of Tier 1 equity of the bank or nonbank financial institution. Borrowing against Lebanese sovereign bonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies is limited to 60% of the value of the pledged portfolio. Borrowing against foreign sovereign bonds is limited to 60% of the pledged portfolio. Borrowing against foreign corporate bonds is limited to 50% of the pledged portfolio.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The regulations governing commercial credits apply regarding banks and financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident financial entities may issue guarantees against loans made in Lebanese pounds if the loans are related to investment or commercial activities in Lebanon.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Direct investments by banks in the financial sector abroad require

		BDL approval and are subject to the limit set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit. According to this limit, the total of a bank's initial capital and holdings of fixed assets real estate, equity investments, and credit to connected persons may not exceed its own funds.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Foreign investments in the real estate sector are subject to specific ceilings. All foreigners must obtain a license from the council of ministers to acquire real estate exceeding a certain threshold. Real estate acquisition by a branch of a foreign bank must be funded in foreign currency by its headquarters and is subject to the limit set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The limit for banks locally and abroad is set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	All foreigners must obtain a license from the council of ministers to acquire real estate in Lebanon. However, subject to the conditions in Decree No. 11614 of January 4, 1969, foreigners may acquire real estate without a license if the acquisition does not exceed a certain percentage in a specific surface area. There is a maximum total surface area that may be acquired in the capital and in each Lebanese district. Real estate acquisition by a branch of a foreign bank must be funded in foreign currency by its head office and is subject to the limits in Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	No.	These transactions are permitted without limitation, provided anti-money-laundering and antiterrorism regulations are followed.

		Forces and Public Security). The total monthly payment for all loans may not exceed 35% of the income of the family (family consists of husband and wife). The maximum is 45% if the family benefits from a housing loan, provided the monthly payment of the housing loan does not exceed 35% of the family income. Banks and financial institutions operating in Lebanon should not downgrade the debts of customers negatively affected by the spread of COVID-19, in the event of delays in repaying their debts (origin and interest) and/or they exceed the ceilings of the facilities approved and granted to them, and not to consider this as an indicator of a significant increase in credit risks. Or as an indicator of a decline in the credit value of these customers or as evidence of default, from January 2, 2020, to December 31, 2021. In this case, the outstanding amounts arising solely from this situation can be rescheduled without arranging for a reclassification of the debt. As of December 9, 2020, the law that banks are required to maintain an LTD ratio in Lebanese pounds (LBP) of no more than 25% was removed (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 577).
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	BDL approval is required for resident banks and financial institutions to issue bonds locally or abroad. CDs issued by a bank are limited to six times its own funds. Lebanese banks and nonbank financial institutions may borrow from the nonresident financial sector against Lebanese sovereign bonds in foreign currencies (including CDs issued by the BDL) and foreign sovereign and non-sovereign bonds up to 50% of Tier 1 equity of the bank or nonbank financial institution. Borrowing against Lebanese sovereign bonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies is limited to 60% of the value of the pledged portfolio. Borrowing against foreign sovereign bonds is limited to 60% of the pledged portfolio. Borrowing against foreign corporate bonds is limited to 50% of the pledged portfolio.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Financial entities are prohibited from maintaining accounts abroad in Lebanese pounds. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	The following limits apply to banks' credit facilities for borrowers: (1) For credit used in Lebanon and abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches and subsidiaries abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 20% of Tier 1 capital. (2) For credit used only abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 10% of Tier 1 capital. (3) Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its foreign branches for use abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital. (4) Total for large exposure credits (that each one exceeds 10% of the bank's consolidated Tier 1 capital) used in Lebanon and abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital on a consolidated basis. The limits per country are as follows: (1) Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated at least BBB may not exceed 50% of Tier 1 capital. (2) Total credit by a bank and its foreign branches for use in a country rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad for use in countries rated below BBB or unrated may not exceed 100% of Tier 1 capital. Car or housing loans in domestic and foreign currencies to residents and nonresidents may not exceed 75% of the price of the car or the house (except housing loans by the housing bank and housing corporation and through the military housing plan and the Ministry of Displaced and Protocols for Judges and the Internal Security Forces and Public Security). The total monthly payment for all loans may not exceed 35% of the income of the family (family consists of husband and wife). The maximum is 45% if the family benefits from a housing loan, provided the monthly payments of the housing loan do not exceed 35% of the family income. As of December 9, 2020, the law that banks are required to maintain an LTD ratio in Lebanese pounds (LBP) of no more than 25% was removed (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 577). Banks and financial institutions may not make treasury placements abroad other than for operating accounts, except with correspondents rated at least BBB or nonrated correspondents affiliated to banking groups rated BBB and above, provided these correspondents are based in countries rated BBB and above. (Placements with Lebanese bank affiliates abroad are exempt.) The total net credit exposure with each correspondent abroad may not exceed 25% of the bank's (financial institution's) Tier 1 capital. Net credit exposure includes all on-balance- and off-balance-sheet exposures. To prevent short-selling operations on Lebanese Eurobonds, CLNs, and BDL CDs, banks and nonbank financial institutions were directed to amend contracts with their correspondents and custodians abroad to prevent transactions on such instruments pledged or placed in custody. Banks and financial institutions must be fully informed of the laws and regulations governing their correspondents abroad and must ensure compliance with the laws, regulations, procedures, sanctions, and restrictions of international legal organizations and sovereign authorities in the correspondents' home country. The net debtor interbank position between a Lebanese bank and its subsidiaries and sister companies abroad may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. This limit also applies to credit from banks in Lebanon to affiliated nonfinancial entities abroad. Banks and financial institutions may not extend credit in Lebanese pounds to nonresident financial entities. Banks, nonbank financial institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and leasing companies are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	The following limits apply to banks' credit facilities for borrowers: (1) For credit used in Lebanon and abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches and subsidiaries abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 20% of Tier 1 capital. (2) For credit used only abroad, credit by a bank in Lebanon and its branches abroad to a single borrower (or group of related borrowers) may not exceed 10% of Tier 1 capital. (3) Total credit by a bank in Lebanon and its foreign branches for use abroad may not exceed four times Tier 1 capital. 		of Tier 1 capital. Car or housing loans in domestic and foreign currencies to residents and nonresidents may not exceed 75% of the price of the car or the house (except housing loans by the housing bank and housing corporation and through the military housing plan and the Ministry of Displaced and Protocols for Judges and the Internal Security Forces and Public Security). The total monthly payment for all loans may not exceed 35% of the income of the family (family consists of husband and wife). The maximum is 45% if the family benefits from a housing loan, provided the monthly payments of the housing loan do not exceed 35% of the family income. The net debtor interbank position between a Lebanese bank and its subsidiaries and sister companies abroad may not exceed 25% of Tier 1 capital. This limit also applies to credit from banks in Lebanon to affiliated nonfinancial entities abroad. Commercial banks may not lend to specialized or Islamic banks of the same group. Credit counters are not allowed to grant loans for one individual borrower or group of borrowers more than 5% of their equity or the equivalent of US$0.1 million whichever is less, provided the monthly payments for all loans granted by any credit institution do not exceed 35% of the family income (BDL Basic Circular to credit counters No. 2). Banks are not allowed to grant loans to credit counters (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 410).
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks are allowed to purchase shares and securities of a participating nature irrespective of currency, within the limits set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit. They may purchase up to 20% of Tier 1 capital in corporate bonds issued locally. Banks may repurchase their own securities and global depositary receipts issued against their shares within the limit of 5% of their total shares and with BDL approval. The total amount purchased by Banks of global depositary receipts issued against their shares and of its shares traded in the financial markets is limited to 10% of its total shares. Purchase of bank CDs or bonds issued by banks or nonbank financial institutions is limited to 100% of the issuer's own funds. Shares or other securities of a participating nature in any nonfinancial company may not exceed 10% of a bank's or financial institution's equity. Shares, stocks, and other capital participation may not lead to a bank's or financial institution's unlimited liability or responsibility.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement on Lebanese pound deposits is 25% for demand and 15% for term deposits. As of June 4, 2021, banks are subject to a mandatory placement (remunerated) at the BDL of 14% (previously 15%) of their foreign currency deposits, bonds, and CDs issued by banks in foreign currency, in addition to loans from financial sector entities with a maturity of one year or less. As of April 9, 2020, no differential reserve requirement applies to foreign currency deposits except mandatory placement. However, fresh funds representing cash transactions in foreign currencies and incoming transfers from abroad are not subject to the foreign currency mandatory placement requirement provided the following: (1) The depositor has the freedom to use these funds and to benefit from all banking services, including transfers abroad, cash withdrawals, and bank card services in Lebanon and abroad. (2) The use of these funds is fully tracked by banks (through the opening of a new special account or a dedicated sub-account, etc.). As of February 25, 2021, banks must deposit what is equivalent to 100% of the value of the fresh funds, in cash with it or with its correspondents abroad in a free account. Banks do not have to deposit 100% of the value with the BDL if it does not keep it with its correspondents abroad. Reserve requirements on Lebanese pounds are lower than statutory requirements because the BDL introduced subsidy plans that allow banks to deduct qualifying loans from required reserves on customer deposits, up to 90% of the reserve requirement. Deduction is no longer applicable against loans granted after October 20, 2017 (Intermediate Circular No. 475).

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Net liquid assets must not be less than 10% of all foreign-exchange-denominated deposits, CDs, bonds, and loans from the financial sector with a remaining maturity of one year or less. In addition to the above requirement, banks should abide by the Basel III LCR per significant currency which requires banks to hold liquid assets covering more than 100% of net cash outflows. Banks are required to have a minimum of "net free liquidity abroad" (that is, net placements with foreign correspondents maturing within one year after deducting other foreign liabilities and off-balance-sheet commitments) no less than 3% of the non-financial sector deposit base in foreign currencies as of end-July 2020.The measure was introduced as of August 27, 2020.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	There is no differential treatment for nonresident deposits. The reserve requirement on Lebanese pound deposits is 25% for demand and 15% for term deposits. Banks are subject to a mandatory placement (remunerated) at the BDL of 14% (since June 4, 2021; previously 15%) of their foreign currency deposits, bonds, and CDs issued by banks in foreign currency, in addition to loans from financial sector entities with a maturity of one year or less. No differential reserve requirement applies to foreign currency deposits except mandatory placement as mentioned above in XII.A.6.a. However, effective reserve requirements on Lebanese pounds are lower than statutory requirements because the BDL introduced subsidy plans that allow banks to deduct qualifying loans from required reserves on customer deposits, up to 90% of the reserve requirement. Deduction is no longer applicable against loans granted after October 20, 2017 (Intermediate Circular No. 475).

Investment regulations	Yes.	BDL approval is required for investments by banks and financial institutions in mutual funds in Lebanon.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	BDL approval is required for banks to acquire shares in financial entities abroad within the limits set by Article 153 of the Code of Money and Credit. The following limits and terms apply to banks' and financial institutions' holdings of financial instruments, including by their foreign branches and subsidiaries abroad: (1) A 25% equity limit applies to the nominal value of structured financial products held and purchased abroad, provided (a) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or a guarantor rated at least A and (b) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed. (2) A 10% equity limit applies to CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs denominated in foreign currencies and purchased from abroad, provided (a) their capital is unconditionally and totally guaranteed, (b) they are issued or guaranteed by an issuer or guarantor rated at least A, and (c) they provide for mandatory physical settlement in the case of a credit event, such as default on Eurobonds or BDL CDs, whereby changes in prices of credit default swaps on Lebanese treasury bills not induced by an internationally recognized credit event are not categorized as a credit event and do not call for mandatory physical settlement. (3) A 50% equity limit on non-G10 sovereign bonds rated at least BBB and bonds issued by an issuer rated at least BBB; if guaranteed, the guarantor must be rated at least BBB by S&P or an equivalent rating agency. The 50% limit includes the 25% structured financial products' equity limit and the 10% CLNs related to Lebanese Eurobonds and BDL CDs in foreign currencies equity limit and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. (4) A 10% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except from G10 countries) and other bonds, structured financial products, and CLN operations with one issuer. (5) A 10% limit applies to deposits abroad with maturity of one year or longer. (6) A 50% equity limit applies to the total value of sovereign (except from G10 countries) and corporate bonds, structured financial products, CLNs, and interbank deposits. (7) Investments by Lebanese affiliates abroad in sovereign bonds in the currency of the host country may not exceed deposits in the same currency at the affiliate. With respect to Item (3), the BDL may authorize banks and financial institutions to exceed the 50% limit, if they have a high capital adequacy ratio and if they abide by BCC and BDL circulars, particularly related to the fulfillment of ethical and technical qualifications required to practice specific functions in the banking and financial sector. In the calculation of all ratios mentioned, the investments of banks' and financial institutions' branches and subsidiaries abroad are included in the portfolio of bonds, structured financial products, CLNs, and deposits abroad with a maturity of one year or more. When placing bids, banks and financial institutions must also abide by the statutory limits. Banks are not allowed, directly or indirectly, to conduct any transactions with bearer shares companies and mutual funds or companies and mutual funds owned by other companies and mutual funds with bearer shares (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for acquisition of shares in a bank if (1) it leads directly or indirectly to the acquisition by the purchaser more than 5% of total shares or voting rights; (2) the purchaser already holds more than 5% or more of total shares or voting rights; (3) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member or an elected member of the board of directors of the bank involved; (4) the purchaser or seller of the shares is a member of the senior management or an employee of the bank involved and holds 1% or more of the total shares if such shares are listed; or (5) the purchase of shares by an employee leads directly or indirectly to his or her acquisition of more than 1% of the total shares if such shares are listed. Authorization and regulations also apply to ascendants, spouses, and descendants of sellers and purchasers. Foreign banks may establish wholly owned branches, subject to BDL approval. Banks and financial institutions require BDL approval to issue shares locally or abroad. When purchasers of shares in banks are companies or mutual funds, their respective by-laws or Articles of Association must explicitly include that all their shares are in registered form, and are fully and continuously owned, whether directly or indirectly, by natural persons or companies whose shares are in registered form (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 411).

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	For banks, the net trading foreign exchange position is limited to 1% of net Tier 1 capital, and the global position is limited to 40% of net Tier 1 capital. Banks may hold a fixed position in foreign currencies up to 60% of their Tier 1 equity after deduction of assets subject to Article 153 of the Law of Money and Credit and Equity instruments in foreign currencies. Other structural positions are subject to BDL approval (BDL Intermediate Circular No. 474 of October 5, 2017). Nonbank financial institutions may hold (1) a long net trading position up to 100% of their free equity in Lebanese pounds, which includes positions held for hedging their capital in Lebanese pounds, and (2) a short net trading position up to 5% of Tier 1 equity.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Decree No. 2441 of June 29, 2009, imposes a number of limitations on the invested assets of insurance companies for the sake of measuring admissible assets in comparison with insurance liabilities. Companies need to observe strict currency matching in respect of the written liabilities.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no absolute limits for investing in nonresident securities for insurance companies. However, a maximum of 50% of assets backing life insurance liabilities relating to polices denominated in foreign currencies (whether for life or composite insurance companies) may be invested in securities issued by nonresidents. No securities issued by nonresidents are considered in the computation of admitted assets for non-life companies (or for the non-life operations in composite insurance companies). These investments to be admitted must be quoted and approved by Insurance Control Commission.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There are no absolute limits for investing in these securities for insurance companies. However, a maximum of 50% of assets backing life insurance liabilities relating to polices denominated in foreign currencies (whether for life or composite insurance companies) may be invested in portfolios held abroad. No portfolios held abroad are considered in the computation of admitted assets for non-life companies (or for the non-life operations in composite insurance companies). These investments to be admitted must be quoted and approved by Insurance Control Commission.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	For life insurance companies (or for the life operations of composite insurance companies), a minimum limit for cash investments and investments in treasury bills and bonds held locally is set at 10% of the company's life insurance obligations, of which no less than 5% should be in cash deposits only. For non-life-insurance companies (or for the non-life operations in composite insurance companies), these minimums are, respectively, 20% and 10%.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	For life insurance companies, the 50% limit on admissible foreign investments is applied to the insurance liabilities relating to policies issued in foreign currencies.
Pension funds	No.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	The CMA is the authority responsible for regulating the establishment, sale, and distribution of local and foreign collective investment schemes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	In general, no limits are imposed, but CMA approval is required for promotion and sale of foreign collective investment securities.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Collective investment fund managers may not own more than 15% of the securities of a single issuer. Provisions regarding portfolio investment abroad by investment firms and collective investment funds include: A feeder fund may invest up to 100% of the NAV of the fund into a designated master fund or sub-fund which holds a diversified portfolio of investments. A feeder fund investing in a master fund or sub-fund is exempted from the below-mentioned 15% limit on investment in one issuer. Not more than 100% of the NAV of a fund may be hedged. The manager must not borrow on behalf of an open-ended scheme or interval scheme by any method except for borrowing of a maximum of 10% of the total asset value of the fund for a maximum of 8 days by way of overdraft. Such borrowing must not be rolled over, must only be used to meet redemptions, and must not be used for investment or to finance payment of investment returns to unit holders. The manager must not borrow on behalf of a closed-ended fund more than 20% of the total asset value of the fund. In the case of a closed-ended fund investing in real estate, the manager must ensure that no more than 60% of the value of any one piece of real estate is secured by mortgage. Not more than 15% of the NAV of a collective investment fund is permitted to be invested in a specific class of securities of any one issuer or to be deposited with one bank except that: (1) up to 35% of its NAV may be invested in one issue of Lebanese government securities or government securities issued by G10 countries; (2) a fund may only invest up to 15% of its NAV in one other scheme, provided fund is not a sub-fund within the same umbrella fund as the investing fund; (3) a fund is permitted to have an aggregate exposure of not more than 20% of its NAV to the securities issued by any one issuer and its associates and deposits of the same body corporate and its associates; and (4) a fund is permitted to invest up to 100% of its NAV in government securities, provided it does not invest more than 35% of its NAV in any one issue of such securities. A collective investment fund is permitted to invest up to 100% of its NAV in foreign government securities subject to the following: (1) the sovereign foreign government securities are rated investment grade BBB or equivalent and (2) at no time such fund invests more than 35% of its NAV in any one issue of such securities. Not more than 15% of the NAV of a collective investment fund must be invested in any one real estate investment. The collective investment fund manager of an open-ended fund or an interval fund may invest not more than 10% of the NAV of that fund in shares that are not listed or traded on a securities exchange.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio	Yes.	Collective investment funds that acquire shares in a Lebanese bank held locally		must include in their by-laws the following provisions: (1) Their shares must be owned by individuals, banks, or financial institutions and may not be sold, except to individuals, banks, or financial institutions. (2) If their participation and beneficiary rights equal or exceed 5% of the common shares of the Lebanese bank, they must send the BDL and BCC all the requested information related to their balance sheet and shareholders. (3) BDL approval is required to modify the above provisions and in the case of the following: (a) acquisition of more than 5% of common shares, directly or indirectly, by the beneficiary, purchaser, assignee or assignee's spouse or children, or any related economic group; (b) acquisition of more than 5% of the bank's common shares by the purchaser, assignee or assignee's spouse or children, or any related economic group; or (c) the assignor or the assignee or any beneficiary is a current or elected board member or partner of the collective investment fund, regardless of the number of transferred shares. BDL approval is not required if shares are transferred when shareholders exercise their preemptive right in the event of a capital increase. Provisions related to locally held investment portfolio of investment firms and collective investment funds include that a collective investment fund manager must insure that at least 50% of the real estate constituting fund property is occupied and income-producing. A collective investment fund manager must invest a substantial proportion of its assets in a representative sampling of securities constituting a specified index or must replicate a specified index. The manager of a money market fund must not invest its capital in any instrument with a maturity or remaining maturity at acquisition of more than one year and not less than 50% of the value of the fund must be invested in instruments with a maturity or remaining maturity at acquisition of 90 days or less. The manager of a fund of funds must invest at least 90% of the NAV of the fund in other collective investment funds that are eligible for investment and up to 10% of the value of the fund in cash, deposits, and money market instruments.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. The Central Bank of Liberia (CBL) allows the exchange rate to be determined in the foreign exchange market and may intervene to smooth volatility. When it intervenes, it does so through the foreign exchange auction, and its results (volume, price, etc.) are published on the CBL website with hard copy given to the Commercial Banks. From January 2022, the CBL did not intervene in the foreign exchange market. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from other managed, effective January 1, 2022.

Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	There is no official or reference exchange rate. The prevailing market rate published by the CBL is used for customs and valuation. The CBL bases the buying and selling exchange rates of the Liberian dollar vis-à-vis the US dollar on a daily survey of the major commercial centers and selected cities in the 15 counties. These rates are published in the local newspapers and the CBL website. They are also submitted based on request.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	The monetary policy framework of Liberia is monetary targeting since November 2019. Under this framework, the Bank manages monetary aggregates (mainly reserve money) as operating and/or intermediate target to influence the ultimate objective of price stability. The reserve money is the operating target by which the CBL influences monetary conditions in the economy to stabilize exchange rate, inflation and guide inflation expectations. The revised Act (An Amendment and Restatement of the CBL Act of 2020) calls for the establishment of a MPC. The main responsibility of the MPC will be to formulate monetary policy and exchange rate policies to achieve and maintain domestic price stability. Pursuant to its powers in Part IV, Section 9 of the CBL Act of 1999, the Board of Governors established the Monetary Policy Advisory Committee (MPAC) as a statutory committee in the CBL pending the full establishment of an MPC of the Bank. The principal mandate of the MPAC will be to define and advise on the monetary policy rate (MPR) and other monetary policy instruments of the CBL aimed at maintaining price stability. The MPAC will also prescribe the rules and internal guidelines for the decision-making process. The full establishment of the MPAC is still pending.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	There is no general system of import controls, but the importation of many items, including safety matches, electrode welding rods, and liquefied petroleum gas, is subject to quantitative restrictions. Licenses to import inexpensive, widely consumed varieties of rice are issued to private distributors by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. The importation of more expensive rice is not subject to official controls. By law, import declaration is required only for items on the negative

Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In January 2017, Liberia migrated to the 2017 version of the Harmonized System, and Customs commenced a phase (migration plan) implementation of the ECOWAS CET. The CET has five tariff bands including Basic Social Goods, Basic Goods, Intermediate Goods, Finished Products, and Selected Finished Products. In addition to the import duty, a Goods and Services Tax is also paid on all imported goods. The Goods and Services Tax rate over the last three years including the current year is 10%. Excise tax is also paid on a limited number of products, such as alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages, tobacco products, and jewelries. Because of the phase approach to implementing the ECOWAS CET, Liberia's current duty rates vary from that of the ECOWAS CET. The average import duty rate for all 5899 tariff lines of the ECOWAS CET is 11.7%, whereas the average duty rate for Liberia over the last three years is 4.5%. In September 2019, the import duty rates for beverages and tobacco were adjusted from the ECOWAS ad valorem rates to specific rates based on liters for beverages and number of sticks for cigarettes. This makes Liberia's current import duty rate on beverages and tobacco about 200% higher than the ECOWAS CET. The combination of excessive duty and excise rates on imported beverages and tobacco has resulted in a reduction in importation through formal channels and has increased smuggling of alcoholic beverages and tobacco products by seacoast and unofficial land border crossing points, thereby reducing revenue. This is expected to remain the case until the rates on alcoholic and tobacco products are harmonized with those in neighboring countries. The import tariff on rice in packing of more than 5 kg or in bulk was suspended as of May 3, 2021, under the Revenue Code of Liberia Act of 2000.

Held abroad	Yes.	There are no regulations regarding foreign exchange accounts held abroad.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents are not allowed to maintain domestic currency accounts abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Transfers from resident dinar accounts to a foreign exchange account require submission of a pro forma invoice for business and for medical treatment and education purposes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresident accounts are permitted based on the account holder's length of residence in accordance with the IMF's Balance of Payments Manual. Nonresidents working in Libya may open these accounts for deposit of legitimate earnings. Other credits to nonresident accounts require the CBL approval. Funds brought in by nonresidents working under contracts in their own name must be kept with an authorized bank. Payments received under contracts may also be credited to these accounts, but, in general, remittances may not exceed the net-of-tax amount in the contract. Funds brought in by nonresidents may be reexported if not used, with documentation. Accounts of foreign contractors licensed under Law No. 5 (1997) for the promotion of foreign capital investment are exempt from restrictions. Remittances from nonresident accounts are not restricted and do not require the CBL approval.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	These accounts may be converted, but approval from the CBL is

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Lithuania maintains certain exchange restrictions in accordance with the relevant EU regulations. These include restrictive measures in respect of the Russian invasion and situation in Ukraine; the freezing of funds and economic resources of persons who are responsible for violations of international electoral standards in the presidential elections in Belarus and the crackdown on civil society and democratic opposition and natural or legal persons, entities, and bodies associated with those who are responsible; certain persons indicted by the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY) in Bosnia and Herzegovina; restrictive measures in view of the situation in the Central African Republic (as amended); the Democratic Republic of the Congo; certain persons who constitute a threat to the peace and national reconciliation process in Côte d'Ivoire; certain persons indicted by the ICTY in Croatia; the Islamic Republic of Iran; certain persons and entities in Iraq; the Democratic People's Republic of Korea; certain persons suspected of involvement in the assassination of former Lebanese prime minister Rafik Hariri in Lebanon; certain persons and entities associated with former President Charles Taylor in Liberia (as amended); Myanmar; former President Slobodan Milosevic and natural persons associated with him and certain persons indicted by the ICTY in Serbia and Montenegro; Sudan, Syria (as amended); Tunisia and Zimbabwe (as amended); persons and entities associated with Osama bin Laden, Al-Qaida, and the Taliban; certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Burundi, Libya, and Yemen; and certain other persons, groups, and entities, with a view to combating terrorism.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	In accordance with UN resolutions, sanctions have been imposed against individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism for security reasons. The Law on the Implementation of Economic and Other International Sanctions provides for the procedure for implementing the nonmilitary international sanctions imposed by the UN and other international organizations, as well as by the EU. These include restrictive measures in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol; Corrigendum to Council Regulation (EU) No. 1351/2014 of December 18, 2014, amending Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 (32014R1351R(01)).

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Lithuania participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at around, effective April 3, 2023, 14:10 Central European Time (CET) (previously 14:15 CET), and are published at around 16:00 CET. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The Bank of Lithuania (BOL) republishes daily the euro foreign exchange rates published by the ECB and publishes monthly non-ECB euro foreign exchange reference rates published by the BOL.

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders subject to Council Regulation (EEC) No. 2913/92 (Community Customs Code). The Act of Accession to the EU included Lithuania in the Community Customs Area (12003TN02/19/A1). Transactions exceeding the equivalent of €15,000 or more must be reported to the Financial Crime Investigation Service.

Reserve requirements	No.	ECB minimum reserve regime is in effect with the introduction of the euro. According to the Regulation (EU) No. 2021/378 of the ECB, on the application of minimum reserves (recast) (ECB/2021/1), the institutions subject to the minimum reserve requirements should comply with the reserve requirements and are to hold required reserves on the accounts of the BOL. The minimum reserve requirement is the same for deposits in euro and in foreign currencies. The reserve base consists of deposits and issued debt securities. If an institution has liabilities in relation to a branch of the same entity, or in relation to the head office or registered office of the same entity, which are located outside participating Member States, it must include such liabilities in the reserve base. Liabilities which are owed to the ECB, to the participating national CB, or to credit institutions which are subject to reserve requirements, are excluded from the reserve base. The amount of required reserves for a particular maintenance period should be calculated by applying the reserve ratios defined by the ECB. A reserve ratio of 0% is applied to the deposits with agreed maturity over two years, deposits redeemable at notice over two years, repos, and debt securities issued with an original maturity over two years. A reserve ratio of 1% applies to all other liabilities included in the reserve base.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Luxembourg participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information on its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at, effective April 3, 2023, 14:10 Central European Time (previously 14:15 Central European Time). The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	In accordance with Council Regulation (EU) No. 1024/2013, no entity may engage in the business of a credit institution without having been granted authorization by the ECB. As of December 31, 2022, there were 121 licensed credit institutions in Luxembourg. Foreign exchange bureaus are authorized by Article 28-2 of the Law of April 5, 1993, and must be licensed by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier (CSSF). They may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. However, Article 28-2 of the Law of April 5, 1993, states that "persons carrying out foreign exchange cash operations are professionals who carry out operations involving the purchase or sale of foreign currencies in cash. Such persons must be required to display the rates applied to the various currencies dealt in and to issue to clients, with respect to each operation, a statement indicating the name of the foreign exchange office, the amounts in the currencies dealt in, the rates applied, and the date of the operation. Authorization to perform cash-exchange transactions is conditional on the production of evidence showing the existence of a capital base of not less than €50,000." As of December 31, 2022, there are no foreign exchange bureaus in operation in Luxembourg.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	In principle, Luxembourg may not impose any kind of restriction on capital movement and payment within the EU and with third countries. Luxembourg is, however, allowed to implement relevant tax provisions creating a distinction between taxpayers in different tax situations based on their residence or the location of their investment. Measures may also be adopted with a view to avoid breaches of national tax law and prudential supervision over financial institutions, organize declaration on movement of capital for the sake of administrative or statistical information, or take measures intended to protect public security. Under exceptional circumstances, movements of capital coming from or going to third countries may also be restricted if they may cause or threaten to cause serious difficulties for the functioning of the economic and monetary union.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Investment firms, to the extent that they are subject to K-CON K-Factor requirement as per Part Four on concentration risk of Regulation (EU) No 2019/2033 (that is, the "IFR"), must limit their exposures with regard to an individual client or group of connected clients to 25% of their own funds. Investment firms applying the CRR (that is, the "EI CRR") are subject to the Part Four on large exposure framework of Regulation (EU) No 575/2013 (that is, the "CRR"), where an investment firm may not incur an exposure to a client or group of connected clients that exceeds a percentage of its Tier 1 capital (Article 395 CRR). For UCITS investment funds, purchases of securities issued by nonresidents are subject to the same limits as securities issued by residents, namely (1) diversification ratios (5/10/40—that is, no more than 10% of the fund's assets may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of the same issuer, and none of the fund's holdings in single issuers that exceed 5% of the fund's assets may cumulatively exceed 40%) and (2) borrowing ratio (maximum of 10% of the fund's assets).

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Investment firms, to the extent that they are subject to RtM K-Factor requirement pursuant to Article 21 of Regulation (EU) No. 2019/2033, (that is, the "IFR"), must calculate either the K-NPR (Article 22 IFR) or the K-CMG (Article 23 IFR) K factors. If an investment firm applies the K-NPR, the investment firm has the choice to apply either: (1) the standardized approach set out in Chapters 2, 3, and 4 of Title IV of Part Three of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 (CRR), or (2) the alternative standardized approach set out in Chapter 1a of Title IV of Part Three of the CRR, or (3) the alternative internal model approach set out in Chapter 1b of Title IV of Part Three of the CRR. However, until June 26, 2026 (transitional provisions set out in Article 57 of IFR), investment firms must apply the requirements set out in Title IV of Part Three of the CRR for the purpose of calculating K-NPR (that is, the standardized approach). In the standardized approach, investment firms must calculate own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk pursuant to Chapter 3 of CRR and must calculate an overall net foreign exchange position pursuant to Article 352 of CRR. The institution's overall net foreign exchange position serves as a basis for the calculation of own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk as specified in Article 351 of CRR (sum of its overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8%). Institutions' own funds requirements against positions in relevant closely correlated currencies may be lower. Two currencies are deemed

Currency board	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The pataca has been tied to the Hong Kong dollar (HKD) at a rate of MOP1.03 to HKD1. Banknotes are issued by two note-issuing banks, which deliver an equivalent amount of HKDs to the Monetary Authority of Macao (AMCM) in return for noninterest-bearing certificates of indebtedness, which serve as the backing for the banknote issue. The HKDs are part of the official foreign exchange reserves held by the AMCM. Under the currency board arrangement, the pataca is 100% backed by reserve assets. The legal documents that establish the currency board include the Basic Law (Chapter V, Articles 107 and 108). In accordance with the provisions of Decree-Law No. 14/96/M which governs its Charter, the AMCM is vested with the authority and responsibility to monitor internal stability and external solvency of Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Credit institutions including banks should comply with the limits and restrictions stipulated in the Financial System Act ("FSA", Law No. 13/2023 of August 14) and other relevant guidelines issued by the AMCM for prudential purposes.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Credit institutions can extend loans and other credit facilities to nonresidents subject to the limits stipulated in the FSA. According to Article 73 of the FSA, effective November 1, 2023, credit institutions may not incur an exposure to a customer or a group of connected customers, which exceeds 25% (previously 30%) of their Tier 1 capital. In addition, they may not incur large exposures (that is, exposures that are not less than 10% (previously 15%) of their Tier 1 capital) which exceed 800% of their Tier 1 capital. Articles 74 and 75 of the FSA also stipulate the specific limits on exposures to qualifying shareholders and other related parties of credit institutions, etc. The provisions are general exposure limits which are not designed as special restrictions for lending to nonresidents.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Credit institutions can extend loans and other credit facilities to customers, irrespective of the currency, subject to the limits stipulated in the FSA. According to Article 73 of the FSA, effective November 1, 2023, credit institutions may not incur an exposure to a customer or a group of connected customers, which exceeds 25% (previously 30%) of their Tier 1 capital. In addition, they may not incur large exposures (that is, exposures that are not less than 10% (previously 15%) of their Tier 1 capital) which exceed 800% of their Tier 1 capital. Articles 74 and 75 of the FSA also stipulate the specific limits on exposures to qualifying shareholders and other related parties of credit institutions, etc. The provisions are general exposure limits which are not designed as special restrictions for lending locally in foreign exchange.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Credit institutions can purchase locally issued securities irrespective of the currency, subject to the limits stipulated in the FSA. According to Article 73 of the FSA, effective November 1, 2023, credit institutions may not incur an exposure to a customer or a group of connected customers, which exceeds 25% (previously 30%) of their Tier 1 capital. In addition, they may not incur large exposures (that is, exposures that are not less than 10% (previously 15%) of their Tier 1 capital) which exceed 800% of their Tier 1 capital. Articles 74 and 75 of the FSA also stipulate the specific limits on exposures to qualifying shareholders and other related parties of credit institutions, etc. The above limits also govern financial holdings and securities issued by the customer or group of customers held by credit institutions. These are general exposure limits which are not designed as special restrictions on purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.

Investment regulations	Yes.	Credit institutions may have a shareholding in another company, in the form of either financial holdings or investment in shares, subject to the limits stipulated in the FSA.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Credit institutions may have a shareholding in local or overseas companies, subject to the limits stipulated in the FSA. According to Article 77 of the FSA, under normal circumstances, credit institutions should not have shareholding in another company which exceeds, either directly or indirectly, 15% of their own funds. The aggregate amount of such holdings should not exceed 60% of their own funds. These provisions do not apply to holdings in financial institutions subject to supervision deemed adequate by the AMCM. According to Article 78 of the FSA, credit institutions should not, directly or indirectly, have a holding of more than 25% of voting rights attributed to the share capital of the relevant company. The provision does not apply to the holdings in financial institutions subject to supervision deemed adequate by the AMCM, insurance companies, pension fund management companies, and companies whose activities are complementary to the activities of the credit institution when prior authorization from the AMCM has been granted. According to Article 75 of the FSA, investments in shares which are not for financial holdings must observe the following rules: (1) shares issued by companies incorporated overseas should be listed in a stock exchange and (2) the holding of shares issued by the same company should not exceed 5% of the credit institution's own funds nor represent more than 5% of the capital of the issuing company.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	According to Article 49 of the FSA, no individual or corporate may acquire, either directly or indirectly, a qualifying holding of a credit institution incorporated in Macao or increase the same by over 5% of the share capital or voting rights, in one or more stages, without prior approval from the AMCM. A qualifying holding is that, either directly or indirectly, represents 10% or more of the share capital or voting rights, or in any other form which confers the possibility to exercise a significant influence over the management of the institution. According to Article 50 of the FSA, if the AMCM is not satisfied that the shareholders can ensure the sound and prudent management of the institution, it may oppose the acquisition of or increase in the qualifying shareholding. These are general requirements which are not designed as special restrictions on investments in banks by nonresidents.
Open foreign exchange position limits	No.	No regulatory foreign exchange position limits have been set by the AMCM. However, according to paragraph 26 of "Guideline on Management of Liquidity Risk" issued by the AMCM, banks are required to set internal limits on individual foreign currencies and conduct reviews on such limits, for the measurement of liquidity position.
On resident assets and liabilities	No.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	No.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate is determined in the official interbank market. Banky Foiben'i Madagasikara (the Central Bank of Madagascar – CBM) intervenes in the interbank market to smooth excessive exchange rate fluctuations and meet foreign exchange reserve targets.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The CBM publishes a daily and weekly list of its interventions concerning the volume of interventions in the interbank foreign exchange market for participating banks, the reference exchange rate, and the lowest and highest rates. This information is submitted by courier to the MOF and Budget as well as to the Office of the President. In 2022, the interbank foreign exchange market felt the consequences of the global turmoil through soaring prices. The exchange rate fell 4.29% relative to the euro and 1.09% relative to the dollar between end-December 2022 and end-June 2023.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate is the reference rate published at 2:45 p.m., which is computed daily in the interbank market and is used for government transactions. This rate is also used for customs valuation but not on an instantaneous basis. (In practice, customs duties paid by importers are set using an average of the previous week's interbank exchange rates.)

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	As part of the transitional flexible monetary aggregate targeting framework currently being implemented by the CBM, the quantitative monetary objectives are the performance criteria to be met under the Extended Credit Facility (ECF) program with the IMF. These criteria are the ceiling on net domestic assets and the floor on net foreign assets of the CBM. They aim, respectively, to limit the effects of domestic money creation on demand and to maintain the stock of official foreign exchange reserves to secure foreign payments. Furthermore, the new operational interest rate-based monetary policy framework, to take effect in 2024, will focus on controlling the volatility of short-term rates on the market. The operational target corresponds to the middle of the interest rate corridor in effect – it will be the weighted average rate of overnight interbank exchanges. A publication of a press release, together with a note on the economic situation explaining the recent developments and the outlook for the indicators taken into account in the decision-making, is published after each monetary policy decision. Added to this is the publication of quarterly bulletins and annual reports, quarterly meeting with banks, etc.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The euro and the US dollar are the only currencies quoted on this market. The exchange rates of other currencies are determined on the basis of the rates of these currencies against the US dollar in the international market. Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate and commissions for transactions with their clients. The foreign exchange market handles spot and forward operations on a continuous basis.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries—namely primary banks and post offices—may conduct all authorized foreign exchange transactions (Article 1 of the Foreign Exchange Code). Territorial banks hold a banking license that allows them to conduct all bank transactions, including foreign currency transactions, and deal in foreign exchange with the public. Exchange bureaus are authorized to carry out OTC exchange transactions, provided they obtain licenses issued by the Banking and Financial Supervision Commission (CSBF). Such institutions may buy and sell foreign currency cash and traveler's checks, accept foreign currency checks drawn on bank accounts and bank checks, and buy and sell foreign currency held in foreign exchange accounts in Malagasy banks. Because they do not have the status of authorized intermediaries, exchange bureaus may not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB, maintain accounts abroad, or make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. As of December 31, 2021, 11 banks were licensed to deal in foreign exchange with the public, and there were 22 exchange bureaus.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries and the CBM participate in an electronic platform that allows them to continuously quote ariary for US dollars and euros. As at February 19, 2021, 11 of the 12 banks (previously 10 out of 11) are authorized by the CBM to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CBM intervenes directly with market participants. Each participant proposes its quotes. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread or commission to market operators (no change). The interbank market is developing gradually. Eleven authorized territorial banks can participate in the interbank foreign exchange market, with five to nine banks participating regularly, including the CBM.
Over the counter	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates over the counter. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The CBM may participate in the forward foreign exchange market. Importers may buy foreign currency from their banks 120 days before settlement. There is a 120-day maximum for documentary credits for spot exchange cover (Article 28) and a 30-day maximum for documentary collections (remises documentaires), as well as a 360-day maximum for documentary credits for hedging delayed purchases or "couverture de change au comptant différée" (Article 33) with foreign exchange. Foreign exchange swap transactions are used as a CBM monetary policy instrument pursuant to Instruction No. 0002-DOM/17. Banks may not use foreign exchange swaps with another bank or their clients.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international current or capital transactions.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international current transactions.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions.
Credit operations	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The use of foreign exchange among residents, including transfers between accounts and foreign exchange transactions conducted outside of authorized intermediaries (change illicite), is prohibited by the foreign exchange regulations, which require that prices be posted, leases and invoices prepared, and payments made in ariary, except in the following cases: (1) prices posted for cross-border air and sea services; (2) residential and commercial leases prepared for industrial free zone and free trade zone enterprises; (3) invoices issued for exporters of goods and services intended for foreign countries or free trade zone enterprises; and (4) prices of goods and services posted and paid for in accordance with laws and regulations.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.	There are currently no operative bilateral payments.
Inoperative	Yes.	There was an arrangement with Mauritius that has been inoperative for some time.
Regional arrangements	Yes.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	Regulations prohibit barter trade.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange control is administered by the External Finance Unit of the General Directorate of the Treasury, which also supervises borrowing and lending abroad by residents; foreign exchange lending and borrowing to and for the profit of nonresidents; and the issuance, sale, and introduction of foreign securities in Madagascar. Approval for current transactions has been delegated to authorized intermediaries, except for capital operations, which require approval from the Ministry of Economy and Finance. All exchange transactions must be effected through such intermediaries.

		behalf may purchase gold within the country from holders of valid gold-mining titles, authorized holders of Gold Board gold-washing rights, and agencies for approved collectors.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold require authorization from the Ministry of Mines. Exempt from this requirement are (1) imports and exports by or on behalf of the CBM, and (2) imports and exports of manufactured articles containing only a small quantity of gold (such as gold-filled or gold-plated articles). Residents may take abroad 250 grams of hallmarked gold jewelry a person without declaration; declaration is mandatory for quantities above 250 grams. Tourists may take abroad 1 kilogram of hallmarked gold jewelry on submission of an exchange declaration corresponding to the jewelry's value. Imports of gold, whether licensed or exempt from the licensing requirement, are subject to customs declaration. Holders of a valid gold-mining title or a gold-washing permit or rights thereto may sell gold to any approved collector. However, Malagasy authorities and their agents have first rights to purchase gold produced in the country. The Gold Board and agencies authorized by the Ministry of Mines may export gold in all its forms. Jewelers, goldsmiths, and private sector professionals who use gold may export it only in worked form, with the approval of the minister of mining.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may take abroad up to MGA 400,000. There are no exceptions to this rule.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The previous provisions on customs declarations for amounts exceeding €7,500 are no longer in force. Residents and nonresidents may take abroad up to €10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies. Each traveler is free to bring up to €1,000 or its equivalent in other currencies, without the need to show proof of allowance. However, if the amount carried exceeds €1,000, the traveler must submit a certificate of exchange issued by an exchange bureau or an authorized intermediary to customs at the border. The obligation to provide the certificate of exchange to Customs therefore applies to amounts between €1,000 and €10,000 or their equivalent in other currencies. A risk-based approach to prevent, detect, and suppress money laundering is in place pursuant to Law No. 2018-043.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may bring in up to MGA 400,000. There are no exceptions to this rule.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may bring in any amount of foreign currency. Nonresident travelers planning to reexport unused currency must file a declaration with Customs on arrival. The declaration must be retained and presented to Customs on exit. The amount to be reexported must not exceed the threshold of €10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies. A risk-based approach to prevent, detect, and suppress money laundering is in place pursuant to Law No. 2018-043. The foreign exchange code requires all conversions of foreign banknotes to take place at accredited institutions (either a bank or an exchange bureau).

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Held domestically	Yes.	Exporters of goods and services, financial institutions, and exchange bureaus are authorized to freely open foreign exchange accounts with local commercial banks. Foreign exchange accounts opened by non-professionals must be justified. Only transfers from abroad, foreign banknotes, traveler's checks, and bank checks may be deposited in these accounts without documentation. These accounts may be debited for conversion to domestic currency on the interbank market. Balances may not be transferred abroad freely. Foreign currency accounts may not be credited in ariary. Conversion to foreign banknotes is allowed only within the limits stipulated in the foreign exchange control regulations and requires approval from the MOF. According to Article 20, foreign currency may not be purchased on the interbank foreign exchange market for deposit to such accounts, nor may they be credited in ariary; all account holders are authorized to conduct foreign exchange operations, settlements, transfers or arbitrage or withdrawals in the form of traveler's checks or bank checks for current transactions in the context of delegations to authorized intermediaries (Articles 19 (new) and 20 (new) of Decree No. 2022-1183 of August 10, 2022). Transfers from one resident's foreign exchange account to another's are not permitted, except (1) transfers between free trade areas, (2) payments by free trade zone enterprises within the national customs territory, (3) payments by international institutions or embassies to foreign consultants with resident status, and (4) transfers governed by special conventions signed by the government (Article 22 (new) of Decree No. 2022-1183 of August 10, 2022). Cash deposits must comply with prevailing laws and regulations and may be withdrawn for travel expenses under the applicable rules. Transfers between accounts of residents and nonresidents are permitted for current transactions.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Approval from the Ministry of Economy and Finance is required to open a foreign exchange account in a foreign bank for enterprises governed by ordinary law. Balances may be repatriated. Free trade zones may open bank accounts abroad under Law No. 2007-037. Residents may hold payment instruments abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents may not open accounts in domestic currency abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	These accounts are governed by Circular No. 23-133 of August 6, 1973, with respect to nonresident ariary accounts and foreign securities portfolios. Residents may not convert the balances of their domestic currency accounts to foreign currency and transfer the proceeds abroad.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresidents are treated as residents for the purpose of these accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Transactions between residents and nonresident enterprises in the free trade zone take place either through the enterprises' special accounts in domestic currency or through their foreign exchange accounts. Transactions between free trade zone enterprises and residents through special domestic currency accounts are limited to settlement of domestic costs and charges, servicing of domestic loans, and payments to the government and to resident shareholders.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		According to Article 2 of Order No. 1215/91 of February 28, 1991, export processing zone and free trade zone enterprises may ask their banks to transfer abroad up to the amount of foreign currency in their accounts. Pursuant to Decree No. 2015-1096 of July 7, 2015, on the application of Law No. 2007-037 of January 14, 2008, on free trade zones and enterprises in Madagascar (Article 28), any free trade zone or businesses wishing to purchase foreign exchange in the interbank foreign exchange market must apply for authorization from the External Finance Unit and must domicile its import operations. Payments of the latter may be made only on presentation of the Single Administrative Document (DAU) to the domiciling bank in cases of nondocumentary collections.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.	Balances of domestic currency accounts held by nonresidents who are not export processing zone or free trade zone enterprises may be converted to foreign currency and transferred abroad only at accredited banking institutions.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The RBM uses an interest rate-based monetary policy framework. Under this framework, a change in the policy stance is communicated by changing the policy rate. The MPC of the RBM meets quarterly to review global and domestic financial and economic developments and set the policy stance. The MPC decisions are published on the RBM website. However, monetary aggregates are still discussed and agreed in the context of the Extended Credit Facility (ECF) program.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	There are 8 authorized banking institutions as of December 31, 2022, licensed by the RBM to deal in foreign exchange with the public. As of December 31, 2023, there were 26 foreign exchange bureaus. ADs are allowed to determine freely their commissions with their clients. Maximum spreads between buying and selling exchange rates are set at 2% for Telegraphic Transfer (TT) and 3% for cash. The limit on spread applies to only banks, and bureaus have never been subjected to price restrictions.
Spot exchange market	Yes.
Operated by the central bank	No.	The RBM does not operate or organize any foreign exchange spot market.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are 8 banks authorized to trade in the foreign exchange interbank market as of December 31, 2022. The foreign exchange interbank market is very thin with very small volume of trades conducted within the confines of AD's bid and offer rates. The CB intervenes at its own discretion. Foreign exchange trading among ADs or between ADs and RBM is conducted via Reuters. Where not possible, it is conducted on a recordable phone or any ordinary phone with evidence provided via e-mail. The minimum traded amount by RBM to AD banks is US$500,000. To grow the interbank market, all commercial banks must for each purchase of foreign exchange amounting to US$170,000 (or equivalent), cumulative per trading, offload 30% of the same to the interbank market. The minimum traded amount is US$50,000 (as stimulated in Guidelines for foreign exchange trading as of September 2019). This supersedes the previous explanation.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The foreign exchange interbank market operates under a market-making arrangement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Authorized banks may quote bid-ask prices on demand. Forward exchange rates are not set by the RBM. Banks are free to set their own rates based on the forward variables as they see fit. There are only sporadic forward and swap transactions. The RBM does not do forwards per se but swaps. Under swap arrangement, there is always a forward leg. The forward market is still in its infancy with negligible trade volumes.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents may be made in any convertible currency traded in Malawi or in kwacha through nonresident accounts.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Restrictions apply on amounts one can carry when traveling out of Malawi.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Current transactions between residents and nonresidents must be settled in foreign exchange, except transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts. Tourists may settle their local bills in any convertible foreign currency or in kwacha after converting their foreign currency in the market.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Credit operations	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Residents are not allowed to transact in foreign currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Malawi is a member of the RIFF.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Malawi is a member of the COMESA Regional Payment and Settlement System since 2013 and SADC Integrated Regional Settlement System since 2014.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	Direct exchange of exports for imports (barter or countertrade) is subject to approval from the Ministry of Trade.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign flows monitoring is administered by the RBM under the authority of and on behalf of the MOF.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins for numismatic purposes. Only the monetary authorities may acquire or hold gold at home or abroad in any form other than numismatic coins and jewelry.
On external trade	Yes.	Only the monetary authorities may conduct external trade in gold. Imports of gold in any form other than jewelry require licenses issued by the Ministry of Industry in consultation with the MOF; such licenses are not usually granted, except for imports by or on behalf of the monetary authorities and industrial users.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to the equivalent of US$5,000 may be exported. Larger amounts may be exported with justified causes and RBM approval.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may export foreign currency up to the equivalent of US $10,000, subject to applicable indicative limits on travel allowances. Nonresidents may export foreign currency up to the amount they imported.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Importation of Malawi Kwacha is allowed without any limit provided the importation complies with AML/CFT requirements. However, purchase of newly issued Malawi Kwacha notes can only be done by monetary authorities (RBM).
Foreign currency	No.	There are no restrictions on the amount imported only that they are required to declare amount greater than US$5,000 or equivalent for customs purposes. Furthermore, because the legal tender in Malawi is Malawi kwacha, they are not allowed to make any transactions in foreign currency within Malawi but to convert it to Malawi kwacha at an Authorized Foreign Exchange Dealer.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may have foreign-currency-denominated accounts (FCDAs) under the terms and conditions of the bank involved, subject to the same rules that apply when one is buying and exporting foreign currency notes.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents are in general not allowed to maintain accounts abroad. However, offshore accounts may be approved for investment projects in Malawi that are financed from offshore, as a requirement by project lenders.
Approval required	Yes.	Residents in general are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad. The only exception is when offshore accounts are required for financing investment projects from offshore. These offshore accounts for purposes of satisfying project lenders requirements are subject to RBM approval.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents and nonresidents may not hold offshore accounts denominated in kwacha.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	Resident kwacha accounts are not convertible to foreign currency. Only nonresident kwacha accounts are convertible as the funds held in such accounts are freely remittable.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresident FCDAs are permitted and not subject to Exchange Controls.
Approval required	No.	AD banks have delegated authority to open and operate such accounts subject to know-your-customer (KYC) and AML requirements.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresident kwacha accounts may only be credited with funds that are remittable. This applies where nonresidents have received payment in kwacha for goods and services they have provided in Malawi.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances in these accounts can be remitted subject to guidelines.
Approval required	No.	AD banks have delegated authority for such transactions.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Credits to and debits from these accounts require authorization, which is usually given, to be invested in an approved manner. Interest earned on balances may be transferred to the account holder's country of residence.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	Importers may choose any method of payment, and imports may be paid for in kwacha to an appropriate local nonresident account or in any convertible currency. When imports arrive in Malawi and payment is due, importers must submit to an AD bank relevant importation and customs clearing documents for payment.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There is no limit.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments for imports of goods and services require AD bank approval, which is granted subject to documentation requirements. Specifically, AD banks approve advance payment for imports of goods and services provided the importer submits the importation documentation when services are rendered and/or goods are received and cleared by Malawi Revenue Authority. AD banks cannot allow a customer who has previously failed to submit import documents within 90 days to make future advance payments for imports.
Advance import deposits	No.	Advance import deposits are not required by law; however, AD banks may require them as a banking practice, depending on the mode of payment (for example, LCs).
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	AD banks process payments based on invoices and other import documents including customs clearing documents.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	This is optional and conditional on buyer/seller terms of trade. It is not a government requirement.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange	No.	Import licenses are not used to restrict the availability of foreign licenses		exchange, but rather in keeping with the provisions of the Control of Goods Act. The Minister of Trade may designate certain goods requiring importation license for several reasons including national security and food security.

Other	Yes.	Importers may choose any method of payment, and imports may be paid for in kwacha to an appropriate local nonresident account or in any convertible currency. When payment for imports is due, importers must submit to an AD bank relevant importation and customs clearing documents in the case of an open account.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The importation of all meats (with a few exceptions) is prohibited without prior permission in writing from the Minister of Industry and Trade.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Most imports are subject to OGLs, including imports from Commonwealth and WTO member countries.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Imports of clothing and uniforms designed for military or police use; radioactive substances; mist nets for the capture of wild birds, wild animals, and live fish; compound products suitable only for use as animal fodder; eggs of domestic or wild birds; live poultry (including day-old chicks); meat; dieldrin and aldrin; and table salt require specific licenses from the Ministry of Industry and Trade. Specific import licenses are usually issued within one week of application and are generally valid for six months.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Customs tariffs are ad valorem and range up to 30% of c.i.f. value, with a weighted average of about 15%. Customs tariffs on all items with MFN status range from 0% to 25%. There are no tariffs on items from the COMESA region. Selected government imports are exempt from customs tariffs. Imports are also subject to a surtax of up to 17.5%.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Malaysia maintains targeted financial sanction restrictions with respect to the following: (1) Terrorism financing: Freezing of funds, financial assets, and economic resources related to the ISIL (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida (UNSCRs 1267, 1989, and 2253); Taliban (UNSCR 1988); and designated entities/individuals listed in domestic list (UNSCR 1373). (2) Proliferation financing: Freezing of funds, financial assets, and economic resources and prevention of the provision of financial services related to the designated entities/individuals (UNSCRs 1718 and 2231). (3) Other financial sanctions: Implementation of the measures decided by the UNSC pursuant to Article 41 of the Charter of the United Nations to give effect to the freezing of funds, financial assets, and economic resources on designated person relating to the Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Eritrea, Iraq, Libya, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, and Yemen. The above restrictions apply to all authorized persons under the Financial Services Act (FSA) 2013 and the Islamic Financial Services Act (IFSA) 2013, licensed money service business (MSB) under the MSB Act 2011, and prescribed development financial institutions under the Development Financial Institutions Act 2002.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. On September 26, 2016, Bank Negara Malaysia (BNM – Central Bank of Malaysia) affirmed that market forces determine the direction and level of the exchange rate. BNM does not publish foreign exchange intervention data. In 2022, the movement of the ringgit exchange rate reflected mostly the strength of the US dollar following the aggressive policy rate hikes by the US Federal Reserve. The weakening of the Chinese renminbi also exerted some pressure on the ringgit. Notwithstanding these factors, pressures on the ringgit from broad US dollar strength and weaker Chinese renminbi were partly mitigated by positive impetus from higher commodity prices. For the year as a whole, the ringgit depreciated by 5.4% to end the year at RM4.4130 against the US dollar. Overall, the domestic bond market experienced nonresident outflows amounting to RM9.8 billion amid the narrowing interest rate differentials between Malaysia and AEs. In contrast, the domestic equity market experienced nonresident portfolio inflows amounting to RM4.4 billion during the year. Net exports amounted to RM256.2 billion in 2022. For 2023, the ringgit's movement continued to be primarily influenced by developments in the global financial markets including uncertainties surrounding the US debt ceiling, combined with strong US economic and labor market data, and evolving market expectations of higher terminal interest rates by the Fed. Despite being a highly diversified economy with diversified trade partners, weaker-than-expected growth in China also led to a renewed weakness in the ringgit against the US dollar, consistent with movements of other regional currencies. The ringgit has depreciated by 7.3% against the US dollar as of October 13, 2023. In terms of flows, the domestic bond market experienced nonresident inflows amounting to RM22.5 billion, while the equity market experienced nonresident outflows amounting to RM3.1 billion during the same period. Net exports amounted to RM152.9 billion as of August 2023.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Under a privatization agreement, Padiberas Nasional Berhad (BERNAS) had been granted the sole right to import rice into Malaysia for 15 years beginning in 1996; the agreement was extended for an additional 10 years in 2011.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export proceeds must be repatriated to Malaysia in full value by resident exporters into their ringgit account or Trade FCA according to the sales contract within 6 months from the date of shipment, or within 24 months from the date of shipment where extenuating circumstances apply (see Appendix C of FEP Notice 7 on Export on Goods). While the 6-month rule has been in place previously, the new arrangement eliminates the need for exporters to seek BNM's approval in repatriating their export proceeds beyond the 6-month period for reasons beyond the exporters' control. For other purposes, approval from BNM is still required. The refinement in FEP adopts the shift from approval-based to notification-based for low-risk transactions in line with better capability to monitor such transactions. Resident exporters are allowed to offset or write-off export proceeds against permitted transactions or purposes. (See Appendix B of FEP Notice 7).
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.	There is no requirement to convert export proceeds.
Financing requirements	No.	There are no specific export financing requirements. Resident exporters may obtain any amount of foreign currency trade financing facilities from licensed onshore banks and related nonresidents. Borrowing from other nonresidents is subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2.

Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Exports of live fish are subject to preshipment inspection. If requested, a certificate of health, sanitation, or origin may be issued by the Department of Fisheries. Veterinary examination, laboratory testing, and animal quarantine procedures – as well as accreditation of establishments and premises for exports of animals and animal products – are carried out by the DVSM in accordance with import requirements of importing countries. Plants and plant products, including rice, and raw commodities may be subject to preshipment inspection, depending on the requirements of the importing country.
Other	Yes.	Exports of rubber from Peninsular Malaysia require a certificate issued by the Malaysian Rubber Exchange and Licensing Board.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Certain exportable products are monitored to avoid shortages in the domestic market. Export licenses for fish and fishery products are issued by the Fisheries Development Authority of Malaysia. The shipment of live fish (including among Peninsular Malaysia, Sabah, and Sarawak) also requires a permit issued by the Department of Fisheries. In accordance with CITES, a permit from the Department of Wildlife and National Parks is required for exports of endangered species. The Certificate of Conformity issued by the Federal Agricultural Marketing Authority acts on behalf of the Royal Malaysian Customs Department to endorse exports and reexports of all types of vegetables, especially to Brunei Darussalam, Indonesia, Singapore, and Thailand. Exports of plants, seeds, and shoots for propagation require export permits issued by the Department of Agriculture. Exports of endangered species of plants require a CITES permit from the Department of Agriculture. Export permits and veterinary health certification from the DVSM are required for exports of animals and animal products. Export licenses (issued by the Malaysian Pineapple Industry Board) are required for fresh pineapple and canned pineapple products. Exportation of strategic items requires a permit under the STA 2010. Application for export of strategic items must be made through the e-Permit STA system. Export licenses or permits from the MITI are required for exports of scrap and waste metals; cement, clinker, under Ministry of Domestic Trade and Consumer Affairs, toxic chemicals and their precursors under the Chemical Weapons Convention and for strategic items under the STA 2010. Applications for export and import permits under the MITI may be made through an Internet-based system, the ePermit system and for strategic item through the ePermit STA system. Importers and exporters that meet the requirements may get online approval through these systems. Applications for live fish import and export permits must be made through an Internet-based system, e-permit. Importers and exporters may get online approval through e-permit, provided the requirements are met.

This limit applies only to those funding investment abroad through conversion of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets. Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing are no longer subject to the prudential limit of up to the ringgit amount sourced from proceeds of an IPO on the Main Market of Bursa Malaysia. Resident individuals with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to (1) RM 1 million equivalent per calendar year using funds sourced from ringgit conversion, Trade FCA, and swapping of financial assets or (2) up to any amount for funds sourced from abroad, approved borrowing or for purchase of real estate outside Malaysia for the purpose of education, employment, or migration.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident entities may issue foreign currency money market instruments abroad, subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2. Prior approval from BNM is required for issuance or sale of ringgit money market instruments by residents outside Malaysia.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	Foreign collective investment schemes (CISs) may be offered and marketed in Malaysia to resident and nonresident investors (which include retail investors and investors defined in Schedule 6 and Schedule 7 of the CMSA 2007); these plans do not have to be managed and administered by a company licensed by the SC. However, foreign CISs must comply with Chapter 3.0 of the SC's Guidelines on Offering, Marketing, and Distribution of Foreign Funds (OMD – of March 3, 2008, as revised August 29, 2023). Since June 15, 2015, (1) a foreign fund is no longer required to be primarily regulated by a securities regulator that has satisfactorily implemented the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO) principles and objectives of securities regulation; (2) an operator of foreign fund is no longer required to be primarily regulated by a securities regulator that has satisfactorily implemented the IOSCO principles and objectives of securities regulation; (3) offering of a foreign fund to sophisticated investors is required to lodge relevant offering document in accordance with the requirements under the Guidelines on Unlisted Capital Market Products under the Lodge and Launch framework; (4) offering of a foreign fund to sophisticated investors is required to be in accordance with the requirements in relation to the Lodge and Launch framework; (5) clarifications regarding the reporting requirements in relation to foreign funds were provided. The CIS must meet the requirements of the OMD. Specific requirements for ASEAN CISs are given in the Handbook for ASEAN CIS and Their Operators. The ASEAN CIS Framework is a streamlined process for cross-border offering of CISs in signatory countries. From May 4, 2017, (1) a foreign fund offered by a permitted entity that complies with the requirements under paragraph 4.03 and Appendix 3 of the OMD is permitted to be offered in Malaysia and (2) a foreign fund that invests or proposes to invest primarily in income-generating real estate – provided the units are listed on an exchange as specified by the SC and are located in a jurisdiction where the securities regulator for such fund is a full signatory of the IOSCO Multilateral MoU as listed in its Appendix A; the offering of units is made by a holder of a Capital Markets Services License (CMSL) who carries on the business of dealing in securities; and the offering of units is limited to a one-off offering only to sophisticated investors and is not offered to the sophisticated investors on a continuous basis. Effective August 29, 2023, (1) fund management companies in Malaysia or their related corporations are permitted to offer their foreign funds to certain accredited investors and high-net worth entities, and (2) foreign exchange-traded fund (ETF) operators are permitted to list up to 5 non-plain vanilla ETFs (that is, leveraged ETF, inverse ETF, and synthetic ETF) on Bursa's Main Market.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may offer their CISs to investors in Malaysia if they have: (1) For unlisted CIS to retail investors, obtained SC's recognition under s. 212(5) of the CMSA 2007; (2) For listed CIS, obtained SC's approval under s. 212(2) of the CMSA 2007; or (3) Unlisted CIS to non-retail investors, lodged with SC under the Lodge and Launch Framework. Only CIS that complies with the requirements under the SC OMD Guidelines would be considered for SC's recognition/approval, or be permitted to be lodged with the SC. The CISs may be offered in any foreign currency. Ringgit CISs under the ASEAN CIS Framework may be offered only in Malaysia. Proceeds from ringgit CISs must be settled and managed with licensed onshore banks. This includes currency conversion. The proceeds of ringgit CISs may be fully invested abroad if at least two-thirds of the foreign offering of the CIS are raised outside Malaysia in two other countries.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing and for individuals without domestic ringgit borrowing. Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may purchase derivatives or other instruments offered on the Bursa Malaysia or by licensed onshore banks, subject to compliance with relevant FEP Notices. Purchase of exchange rate derivatives is subject to compliance with FEP Notice 1 on Dealings in Currency, Gold, and Other Precious Metals by nonresidents, including underlying requirements. Pursuant to FEP Notice 5 on Securities and Financial Instruments, there are no approval requirements for nonresident banking institutions (BIs) to enter into ringgit-denominated interest rate derivatives with no underlying commitment with licensed onshore banks or via appointed overseas offices of licensed onshore banks.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Sale or issue of derivatives locally by a nonresident requires SC approval under Section 212 of the CMSA 2007. Certain categories of transactions, as set out in Schedule 5 of the CMSA 2007, are exempted from SC's approval. Prior approval from BNM is required for nonresidents to issue derivatives or other instruments in Malaysia.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may purchase derivatives and other instruments (other than exchange rate derivatives) from specified overseas exchanges via a resident futures broker for (1) hedging purposes and (2) investment purposes, subject to compliance with FEP Notice 3. Prior approval from BNM is required for purchase of exchange rate derivatives and other derivatives referenced to ringgit. Resident individuals may purchase foreign-currency derivatives (other than exchange rate derivatives) directly from nonresident counterparties, subject to FEP Notice 3 if undertaken without firm commitment. The liberalization of purchase of foreign-currency derivatives (other than exchange rate derivatives) directly from nonresident counterparties is accessible to all residents (that is, both individuals and entities).
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Licensed onshore banks (other than licensed IIB) are allowed to issue or offer financial instruments denominated in ringgit or foreign currency, in Malaysia to any person. The issuances of financial instruments involving or with reference to exchange rate are subject to compliance with FEP Notice 1. Ringgit-denominated interest rate derivatives can be offered directly by licensed onshore banks or via appointed overseas offices of licensed onshore banks to nonresidents. The issuances of such derivatives embedded with features referenced to exchange rate are subject to compliance with FEP Notice 1. Ringgit-denominated interest rate derivatives may be transacted with nonresidents BI with or without firm commitment basis. Licensed IIB is allowed to issue or offer financial instrument or Islamic financial instruments denominated in foreign currency to any person. The issuances of financial instruments involving or with reference to exchange rate are subject to compliance with FEP Notice 1.

These transactions are not restricted for residents to obtain foreign currency supplier credit from nonresident suppliers and foreign currency borrowing from their related nonresidents, other than nonresident financial institutions. Borrowing from other nonresidents is subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing. Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. (These limits applied only to those funding investment abroad through conversion of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets). Lending in ringgit by residents to nonresidents other than nonresident financial institutions is allowed to finance real sector activities in Malaysia.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Resident entities may obtain any amount of foreign currency borrowing from their related nonresidents, other than nonresident financial institutions, and nonresident. Borrowing from other nonresidents is subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are free to issue financial guarantee to nonresidents with some exceptions. Exceptions to the free issuance of financial guarantees include: (1) financial guarantee that is issued to secure foreign currency borrowing obtained by a nonresident special purpose vehicle (SPV) from any person who is not related to the resident guarantor will be subject to the residents' external borrowing limits detailed in FEP Notice 2; or (2) financial guarantee that is issued to secure foreign currency borrowing obtained by a nonresident where the borrowing will be repaid by a resident (other than when the financial guarantee is called on in the event of default) will be subject to the residents' investment in foreign currency asset limit detailed in FEP Notice 3.

		of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets.) No limit is imposed for resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing using proceeds from foreign currency borrowing obtained from licensed onshore banks for direct investment abroad. Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing are no longer subject to the prudential limit of up to the ringgit amount sourced from proceeds of an IPO on the Main Market of Bursa Malaysia.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Controls are imposed on equity shares in accordance with national economic policy; however, no foreign exchange restrictions apply. The following inward investments require approval under the Ministry of Economy (MOE) guidelines: acquisition of property (such as undeveloped or developed land) by foreigners, valued at RM20 million and above, resulting in the dilution in the ownership of property (exclude residential) held by Bumiputera interest and/or government agency. Applications requiring SC approval under the securities and futures laws are centralized at the SC. Certain exemptions or relaxation of the foreign equity limits (for example, exemption from the 12.5% Bumiputera equity requirement) are granted to companies with Multimedia Super Corridor and BioNexus status; companies with major foreign-based operations seeking listing on the Bursa Malaysia; and intermediaries licensed by the SC, including investment banks, local and foreign fund managers, investment advisers, and exempt dealers. In relation to a "company" being taken over includes a corporation listed on a stock exchange, listed real estate investment trusts in Malaysia, listed business trusts in Malaysia, and unlisted public companies with more than 50 shareholders and net assets of RM 15 million or more, any acquisition of more than 33% of voting shares or of more than 2% in any six-month period for a holder of more than 33% but less than 50% requires compliance with Part VI, Division 2, of the CMSA 2007, the Malaysian Code on Takeovers and Mergers 2016, and the Rules on Takeovers, Mergers, and Compulsory Acquisitions. Nonresidents may participate in the equity of Malaysian BIs if they meet the shareholder suitability requirements in Schedule 6 of FSA 2013 and IFSA 2013. These requirements take into account, among other things, prudential considerations and potential contributions of investors in the best interest of Malaysia. The minimum value for acquisition of residential property by foreigners is RM 1 million, as stipulated under the Guideline on The Acquisition of Properties by the MOE. While the acquisition does not require an approval from the MOE, the acquisition is subject to the State Authority's jurisdiction. The state governments have full control in considering and approving foreign ownership of properties including threshold values in their respective states. Therefore, the threshold prices would vary from one state to another.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Licensed onshore banks may lend in foreign currency to nonresidents. Lending in ringgit by licensed onshore banks, except licensed IIBs, to nonresidents must be used to finance real sector activities in Malaysia (including refinancing of existing ringgit borrowing that was used for real sector activities in Malaysia and on lending to resident entities within the same group of entities or immediate family members that will be ultimately used for real sector activities in Malaysia). All licensed BIs are subject to the following prudential limits, which are applied to credit exposures to both residents and nonresidents: (1) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). For exposures to BI's related banking entities (whether operating in- or outside Malaysia), a limit as may be approved by the BNM which may not exceed 50% of the BI's total capital and subject to clear criteria. This is applicable in aggregate to ringgit and foreign-currency-denominated exposures, including all claims, commitments, and contingent liabilities arising from on- and off-balance-sheet transactions (in both banking and trading books). From March 24, 2020, until December 31, 2021, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. Effective January 1, 2022, BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022. (2) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposures, whichever is lower.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Licensed onshore banks may lend in foreign currency any amount to resident entities and nonresidents. Lending to resident individuals is subject to RM 10 million in aggregate. All licensed BIs are subject to the following prudential limits, which are applied to credit exposure to both residents and nonresidents: (1) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). 		(2) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposures, whichever is lower. Residents may enter into a transaction with (a) a licensed onshore bank to convert an existing ringgit debt obligation to a foreign currency debt obligation, provided there is no actual delivery of foreign currency at the inception of the transaction and (b) a licensed onshore bank, an IIB, or a nonresident to convert an existing foreign currency debt obligation to another foreign currency debt obligation.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	All licensed BIs are subject to the following prudential limits, which are applied to credit exposures to both residents and nonresidents: (1) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The BNM statutory reserve requirement (SRR) rate of 2% is applied on BIs' eligible liabilities, which consist of ringgit-denominated deposits and non-deposit liabilities, net of interbank assets, and placements with the CB. Foreign-currency-deposit liabilities are not subject to reserve requirements. On May 16, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily allowed all BIs to recognize holdings of Malaysian Government Securities (MGS) and Malaysian Government Investment Issues (MGII) as part of their SRR compliance (that is, Statutory Reserve Accounts balances). Such securities used in this manner may be deducted from BIs' eligible liability base calculations and must continue to be recognized as High-Quality Liquid Assets. This temporary flexibility was made available initially until May 31, 2021. As of March 16, 2021, this temporary flexibility was extended until December 31, 2022, and expired effective January 1, 2023.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	FSA and IFSA: BIs may not establish or acquire a subsidiary in- or outside Malaysia, or acquire or hold any material interest in any corporation without the prior approval of BNM. Material interest is defined as 20% or more of the voting shares or voting power in a corporation. In addition, BNM's approval is also required for any direct or indirect acquisition or holding of 33% or more of the voting shares or voting power in a corporation. The BI must also notify BNM of any subsequent direct or indirect acquisition where it results in an increase in shareholding at any multiple of 5% above the material interest threshold, at least one month before the proposed acquisition. Nevertheless, BNM may require a BI to obtain its prior written approval if any subsequent increase impacts the BI's safety and soundness. Investments by BIs, both locally and abroad, are subject to the following prudential limits: (1) Aggregate direct and indirect acquisition or holding of interest in non-financial corporations by BIs, including those held below the material interest threshold (that is, 20% or more of the voting shares/power), must not exceed 10% of a BI's Tier 1 capital. (2) BIs may not acquire, hold, or rent immovable properties, except to: (a) conduct their business; (b) provide housing or other amenities for their staff; or (c) satisfy debts (that is, foreclosed properties). Approval from the BNM is required if a BI intends to acquire, hold, or rent immovable properties for purposes other than (a), (b), and (c). BIs total holdings of immovable properties acquired in satisfaction of debts may not exceed 1% of its Total Capital. In the case of Islamic finance, Islamic BIs are allowed to undertake property development and property investment activities subject to conditions such as allowable structures, governance, risk management, limits, and disclosure requirements. These investments are subject to prudential safeguards, including limiting each exposure to 25% of the Islamic BI's capital base. Islamic BIs and their subsidiaries are prohibited from direct property development activities but may participate in such activities through a joint venture or equity participation with reputable property development companies that are not subsidiaries of Islamic BIs. (3) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). For exposures to BI's related banking entities (whether operating in- or outside Malaysia), a limit as may be approved by the BNM may not exceed 50% of the BI's total capital and subject to clear criteria. This is applicable in aggregate to ringgit and foreign-currency-denominated exposures, including all claims, commitments, and contingent liabilities arising from on- and off-balance-sheet transactions (in both banking and trading books). From March 24, 2020, until December 31, 2021, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. Effective January 1, 2022, BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022. (4) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposure whichever is lower.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may participate in the equity of Malaysian BIs. However, nonresidents may not hold 5% or more interest-in-shares, unless they have obtained the approval of the BNM or the Minister of Finance pursuant to Section 87 of the FSA 2013 and Section 99 of the IFSA 2013. These requirements take into account prudential considerations and potential contributions of investors in the best interest of Malaysia.

Article VIII
Article XIV	Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2022 Article IV Consultation with Maldives, states that, as of November 23, 2022, Maldives has previously been found to maintain a multiple currency practice (MCP) resulting from the deviation by more than 2 percent between the prevailing market exchange rates and the parallel market exchange rates, and an exchange restriction relating to the additional cost for market participants to obtain foreign exchange from the parallel market. Under the Fund's revised MCP policy adopted on July 1, 2022, MCPs resulting from the exchange rate spreads arising in illegal parallel markets are considered eliminated as of the approval date of the policy since these markets are legally prohibited and thus not the result of official action. Information received by staff recently confirmed that the parallel market in the Maldives is illegal under the national law, and therefore, the MCP arising from a spread between the parallel market and prevailing market exchange rates in the Maldives has been eliminated effective July 1, 2022. Further, the exchange restriction in connection with the additional cost for obtaining foreign exchange in the parallel market due to this spread has also been eliminated effective July 1, 2022. At the same time, the Maldives continues to maintain an exchange restriction arising from the Maldives Monetary Authority's rationing of its supply of foreign exchange to commercial banks, which also resulted in a channeling of foreign exchange for current international transactions to the illegal parallel market. In that regard, the authorities should continue undertaking reasonable efforts to eliminate the spread with the parallel market. In addition, the Maldives continues to maintain an MCP resulting from the lack of a mechanism to prevent the spread between the official exchange rate used by the MMA for government transactions and the prevailing market exchange rate from deviating by more than 2 percent. Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	Since 2011, the de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. This regime allows the rufiyaa to float within a 20% band around a central parity of Rf 12.85 a US dollar. However, the rufiyaa remained stabilized in a narrow band against the US dollar near the ceiling of the band (Rf 15.42 a US dollar). Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. Under the MMA Act, the President shall determine the exchange rate regime in accordance with the advice of the Authority; and the Authority shall determine and implement the exchange rate and exchange rate related policies to implement the exchange rate regime.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The MMA quotes buying, selling, and midrates each day. The midrate (reference exchange rate) is calculated each day as the midpoint of the weighted average of the buying and selling rates of commercial banks' transactions with their clients conducted two days before. This rate is used when the MMA sells foreign exchange to the government. It buys foreign exchange from the government at the buying exchange rate. The MMA sells foreign exchange to the banks at its selling rate and to state-owned enterprises at the upper limit of the band.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The buying and selling rates of the US dollar in the official market are limited by the MMA within the bounds of the 20% exchange rate band around the central parity rate of Rf 12.85 a US dollar. Both commercial banks and money changers should also make transactions within the bounds of the 20% exchange rate band. Commercial banks may freely exchange other currencies with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are 8 commercial banks (of which 3 are locally incorporated, 4 are branches of foreign banks, and 1 is fully owned subsidiary of a foreign bank) and 248 licensed money changers as of December 31, 2022. Money changers are licensed by the MMA and may buy and sell foreign exchange. There are no restrictions on money changers opening and maintaining accounts abroad.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The MMA exchanges rufiyaa for US dollars at the official buying and selling rates. However, a dollar shortage led to supplying limited amount of foreign exchange to market participants. The MMA intervenes in the foreign exchange market by allocating foreign exchange to banks and selling US dollars to state-owned enterprises. Commercial banks may deal with the MMA, the central government, state-owned enterprises, and the private sector at the official exchange rate (within the bounds of the 20% exchange rate band).
Allocation	Yes.	The MMA sells foreign exchange to the commercial banks on a weekly basis. The allocation includes a fixed and a variable component. The fixed amount sold to the banks takes into consideration the bank's net open positions and its share of total banking sector assets. An additional allocation (variable component) is sold to the banks to meet the travel, educational, and medical requirements of the general public and to the growing demand of small and medium enterprises (SMEs), specifically for their LC payments and telegraphic transfers. This allocation is sold based on the seasonal requirements and utilization of the funds.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	A regional framework to fight money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (AFT) exists at the regional level through two WAEMU Directives from 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT) as amended. This comprehensive framework facilitates the implementation of UNSC resolutions based on a list of persons and entities prepared by the committee. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

No separate legal tender
Currency board
Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Mali participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, to replace the agreement dated December 4, 1973. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the anchor currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 an euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are cross-rates derived from the rate for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France. Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The harmonized CPI is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

		transfers outside the WAEMU that are authorized by their clientele is 0.6%. This commission is paid back in full to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized non-electronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 an euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. Exchange houses may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the BCEAO. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. As of December 31, 2022, there were 195 authorized OTC exchange dealers and 14 authorized intermediary banks. The entities authorized to conduct non-electronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct non-electronic transactions by decision of the Minister of Finance with the consent of the BCEAO. In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 an euro. The non-electronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5%, for purchases or sales, is charged on all transactions. However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU member states on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.

Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2022, 14 banks conducted business. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU. Banks are not authorized to carry out interbank foreign exchange transactions in exchange for local currency. The CB is the only counterparty to which banks are authorized to sell foreign currencies for CFAF.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may contract forward exchange cover using exchange derivatives backed by the related commercial or financial operations for (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), and (3) FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivative instruments traded with their customers. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and as capital with non-WAEMU countries.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the Minister of Finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of transactions in capital and money market instruments with non-WAEMU countries. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, the Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO includes the following basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Mali for the purpose of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Mali are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Only Malians and licensed nationals of countries with which Mali has a reciprocal agreement and who hold professional identity cards may engage in domestic trade in gold, precious materials, and fossils. There are no controls on holding gold for non-commercial purposes.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 5,00,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency. BCEAO redemption of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance has been suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Foreign currency	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import means of payment denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Mali, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 5,00,000.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through a registered intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a WAEMU member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. A nonresident entity that solicits the public of the WAEMU must obtain authorization from the BCEAO as the entity in charge of regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes prior to the transaction.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Regulation No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors must make a prior declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization of the MOF based on supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes prior to the transaction.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone's imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

		The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not more than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial	Yes.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and submission of supporting documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company whose shares are quoted on a stock exchange. Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An investment is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MOF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation, unless they are licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration for statistical purposes to the MOF when granted and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant AML and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 5,00,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these individuals may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. It was incorporated into Mali's domestic legal framework with the enactment of Law No. 2014/032, on July 17, 2014.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (i) demand deposits; (ii) short-term loans; (iii) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; (iv) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	No.	The maximum for all lending rates is set at 15%.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company do not require prior authorization. They require declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement,

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

(Position as of June 30, 2023)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 11, 1968.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: November 30, 1994.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Malta implements all UN and EU sanctions which are directly applicable under Maltese law as per the National Interest (Enabling Powers) Act, cap 365 of the Laws of Malta. Malta therefore maintains restrictive measures on the following countries or specified related persons and entities: Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, China, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Moldova, Montenegro, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, Serbia, Somalia, Sudan, South Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, and Zimbabwe. Malta also implements the horizontal sanctions regimes consisting of the following: Terrorism (2001), Chemical Weapons (2018), Cyber Attacks (2019), and Human Rights (2021). The Blocking Statute (1996) as amended in 2018. This measure provides for the extra-territorial application of certain legislation adopted by the US. On November 22, 1996, the EU Council decided to respond to the extra-territorial measures taken by the US which purport to affect EU Member States on natural or legal persons, their activities and interests. Through this measure, Member States are to take necessary measures to protect the interest of the natural or legal persons affected by the extra-territorial application of a third country's laws.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Malta's framework legislation, the National Interest (Enabling Powers) Act provides for the possibility to enact national restrictive measures. Although no persons have yet been designated, Malta enacted a subsidiary legislation entitled "Measures in support of actions addressing smuggling activities in the Central Mediterranean Regulations" to provide a prior authorization procedure for boats going to Libya and which are not covered by EU restrictive measures.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Malta is the euro. The Central Bank of Malta (CBM) issued the following €2 commemorative coins: (1) Hal Saflieni Hypogeum, the seventh and last coin of a series of seven coins depicting Maltese prehistoric sites, (2) United Nations Security

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Malta participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. Effective April 3, 2023, the ECB changed its time for the calculation of the reference rate from 14:15 CET to 14:10 CET. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." From July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation

		Malta but not listed on the Malta Stock Exchange, the Commissioner for Tax and Customs requires the submission of the below-mentioned Schedules that need to be accompanied by a report prepared by a certified auditor and payment of provisional tax on capital gains and/or duty (where applicable): Income Tax on Capital Gains - Schedule C for transfers of a controlling interest; - Schedule D for transfers of a non-controlling interest; - Schedule E for transfers exempt under the provisions of the Income Tax Act. The provisions in the Capital Gains Rules requiring the submission of Schedules C, D, and E were introduced with effect from February 24, 2006. Duty on Documents and Transfers - Sixth Schedule Approval from the Commissioner for Tax and Customs is required in the case of transfers which are exempt from duty under the provisions of the Duty on Documents and Transfers Act. The provisions in the Duty on Documents and Transfers Rules requiring the submission of the sixth Schedule were introduced as of May 25, 2010. In reference to the requirements from an Income Tax and Duty on Documents perspective, the relevant schedules are required with respect to all transactions in securities of companies registered in Malta (but not listed on the Malta Stock Exchange) and this has been the case since the introduction of the relevant provisions in the Capital Gains Rules and Duty on Documents and Transfers Rules.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Primarily, the Payment Accounts Directive (PAD) seeks to ensure access to basic payment accounts with credit institutions to enable all consumers legally resident in the EU to have access to basic banking service, independently of their financial situation or place of residence. In particular, the PAD applies to consumers who intend to open and use a payment account on a cross-border basis. The PAD facilitates the opening of accounts on a cross-border level by allowing the consumer to ask the new payment service provider to set up on the new payment account all or part of standing orders for credit transfers, accept direct debits from the date specified by the consumer, and provide the consumer with information on the new payment account. The PAD also aims to enhance transparency and comparability of fee information about payment accounts to make customers more aware of the fees and charges by payment services providers. Additionally, the PAD provides for more efficient switching of cross-border payment accounts by establishing minimum standards. The provisions of the PAD have been transposed into Maltese legislation by means of the Credit Institutions and Financial Institutions (Payment Accounts) Regulations.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The CRR requires credit institutions to allocate capital against foreign exchange risk. Pursuant to Article 351 of the Regulation, “If the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position, calculated in accordance with the procedure set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risks. The own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk must be the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8%." Therefore, a credit institution's total net open foreign exchange position is subject to a prudential capital requirement of 8% of its own funds. Financial institutions licensed under local legislation may also be required to comply with this requirement. Foreign exchange risk requirements apply to the net foreign exchange position for all business activities of an institution (that is, trading and banking books). Thus, calculation of the net spot position in a particular currency includes all assets minus all liabilities, including accrued interest, in the currency in question. These requirements are not based on the principle of the residence of assets and liabilities but on the foreign exchange risk of currencies against the base currency of the assets and liabilities. The provisions of the CRR have been transposed into the national regulatory framework by means of amendments to the Banking Act, subsidiary legislation, and several Banking Rules.

In addition, insurance companies must ensure that assets held to cover technical provisions are invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities, and in the best interest of all policyholders and insureds taking into account any disclosed policy objectives. The provisions of the Solvency II Directive have been transposed into national legislation through amendments to the Insurance Business Act as well as new and amended subsidiary legislation.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.	On June 26, 2021, a new prudential regime was introduced for investment firms – the Investment Firm Regulation and Directive. Investment firms are subject to newly introduced K-Factors, which will be used to determine own funds requirements. The K-Factors are quantitative indicators to accurately reflect the risks which investment firms face. There are three groups of K-Factors: risk to customers, risk to market access, and risk to the firm itself. Class 2 Firms will be required to calculate their K-Factors when assessing their own funds requirements. Class 1 Firms are to calculate their own funds requirements as per the CRR, whereas Class 3 Firms are to apply either the Fixed Overheads Requirement or the Permanent Minimum Capital Requirement. Moreover, certain collective investment funds are subject to investment and borrowing restrictions. Retail collective investment funds are subject to restrictions on investments in securities, such as exposure limits to credit institutions, other collective investment funds, and financial derivative instruments. Retail collective investment funds may borrow up to 10% of their assets for investment purposes and are allowed to have a global exposure of up to 100% of NAV (calculated according to the Value-at-Risk or Commitment Method). Experienced professional investor funds may borrow up to 100% of the NAV of their funds. AIFs are subject to leverage requirements as stipulated in the AIFMD 2011/61/EU (calculated according to the Gross and Commitment Methods and using the conversion methodologies stipulated in the Directive). In terms of the loan fund rules, a number of investment restrictions are also present for such funds investing through loans including the restriction relating to short selling, reuse collateral, and the use of leverage of not more than 200% of the NAV. From a local perspective, the MFSA enacted changes to the “Part BI: Rules Applicable to Investment Services License Holders which Qualify as Market in Financial Instruments Directive Firms” (the MFSA Rulebook). This, to reflect the relevant provisions introduced by the Investment Firm Regulation and Directive package. The MFSA Rulebook distinguishes between the three classes of investment firms namely Class 1 and Class 1 Minus, Class 2 and Class 3 under Part 2 and Part 3 of the Rulebook, respectively. These three classes of firms are differentiated based on their size, such that Class 1 and Class 1 Minus firms are investment firms of considerable size. On the other hand, Class 2 and Class 3 are both firms which are not considered systematic nor of significant size. More specifically, Class 2 firms are small but interconnected firms, whereas Class 3 are generally small and non-interconnected firms. Moreover, K-factors under the Rulebook are divided into three risk groups as follows: Risk-to-client: Assets under management; Client Money Held; Assets safeguarded and administered; Client orders handled; Risk-to-market: Net position risk; Clearing margin given; and Risk-to-firm group: Trading Counterparty Default; Daily Trading Flow. Concentration.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets unless this is self-imposed in the Prospectus.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	The regulatory requirements in the Rules for Investment Services Providers and related Guidance Notes do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets relating to currency matching. Although the Rules for Investment Services Providers and related Guidance do not make specific reference to currency matching, the license holders are required to employ a risk management process which enables them to monitor and measure at any time the risk of the positions and their contribution to the overall risk profile, including currency/exchange risk. In addition, UCITS and Alternative Investment Fund Managers are required to establish and maintain a permanent risk management function.

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The Central Bank of Mauritania (BCM) intervenes to regulate the exchange market according to its exchange rate policy objectives (smoothing the exchange rate and the projected level of official reserves). Total bids and asks as well as the amounts settled with the fixing rate are published daily on the BCM website. A summary statement of market turnover data is updated daily on the BCM website. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Effective November 6, 2023, the reference exchange rate for the US dollar against the ouguiya on the interbank foreign exchange market is the average of the average rates observed on that market. It is calculated based on the quotes (bid and ask rates) in US dollars of banks with market maker status collected within a 20-minute time slot in the middle of the day (Circular No. 10/GR/2023). Previously, the reference exchange rate for the US dollar was determined as the arithmetic average of the weighted average rates of purchases on the exchange market and that of sales on the same market (Instruction No. 02/GR/2020).

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary framework pursues multiple targets. The first is to ensure price stability. In addition, without prejudice to the objective of price stability, the BCM pursues the stability of the financial system and contributes to the implementation of the general economic policies defined by the Government.
Exchange tax	Yes.	Effective November 6, 2023, a commission of 0.2% is applied to all foreign exchange operations carried out in the banking system.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	ADs may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and commissions on foreign exchange transactions with their clients, effective November 3, 2023, within the band defined by the new exchange arrangement (Instruction No. 15/GR/2023, Circular No. 10/GR/2023). As of November 30, 2023, 17 commercial banks and 23 exchange bureaus were licensed by the BCM to deal in foreign exchange with their clients. The BCM is the only institution authorized to grant licenses to banks and exchange bureaus. Banks must offset their clients' purchase and sale orders in US dollars and euro and present a single purchase or sale order by currency to the organized foreign exchange market, depending on whether the net balance after offset is positive or negative. Exchange bureaus may not engage in exchange operations directly with the BCM. They engage in currency exchange by buying and selling banknotes and receive and transfer funds in foreign exchange on behalf of their clients in accordance with the exchange regulations. However, they are not authorized to open customer accounts. Nonetheless, they may have accounts abroad and make payments and transfers in foreign exchange on behalf of their clients.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.

Auction	Yes.	Effective October 17, 2023, the BCM may intervene in the foreign exchange market through auctions. The US dollar is the only currency that may be subject to a tender procedure. The auctions are conducted according to the multiple exchange rate or single exchange rate method at BCM's initiative. Only market makers may participate.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks may trade foreign currencies among themselves. The operational implementation of the interbank foreign exchange market is planned for December 14, 2023.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may trade among themselves (Instruction No. 001/GR/2007). However, this market segment is at the inception stage.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold, except manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, require BCM authorization.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers are not allowed to take out domestic banknotes and coins.
Foreign currency	Yes.	BCM permission is required for residents to export foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of MRU 300,000. In such cases, documentary evidence of the source of the funds must be presented. Any additional requests (for amounts exceeding that ceiling) to buy foreign exchange for travel, submitted to the BCM through an AD, are fulfilled based on the supporting documentation. Banks and exchange bureaus may automatically sell foreign currency up to the equivalent of MRU 6,000 to nonresidents who prove their legal entry into Mauritania (appropriately stamped passport). In excess of this amount, purchases of foreign exchange (surrender) are authorized after deducting MRU 2,000 for each day of stay in Mauritania and on presentation of the required documents. Resident and nonresident holders of accounts in foreign currency maintained with a licensed banking intermediary may export any amount of foreign banknotes withdrawn from foreign exchange accounts in accordance with the existing exchange regulations.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers are not allowed to import domestic banknotes and coins.
Foreign currency	No.	Imports of foreign banknotes exceeding the equivalent of US$3,000 must be declared.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Licensed intermediary banks may freely open accounts in foreign currency on behalf of residents. These accounts may be credited with: (1) foreign currency transfers from abroad; (2) transfers by debit to another account in the same currency belonging to the same account holder; (3) dividends and real net proceeds from capital transactions and the sale or liquidation of investments by imports of foreign currency; (4) the amounts of checks denominated in foreign currency drawn on foreign banks to the order of the holder; (5) interest on the accounts concerned; and (6) payments of foreign banknotes. (Amounts in excess of MRU 100,000 must be declared to the BCM.) These accounts may be debited for: (1) withdrawals of foreign currency notes by the account holder, exclusively for the account holder's travel needs and in accordance with the existing exchange regulations; (2) foreign transfers ordered by the account holder, in compliance with the existing exchange regulations; (3) checks and transfers issued by the account holder, for foreign exchange payments authorized under the existing exchange regulations; (4) foreign exchange sold; and (5) bank commissions charged on these accounts. Accounts opened by exchange bureaus with primary banks may be credited by deposits of foreign currency banknotes in the context of their business activities. Foreign currency cash withdrawals by the account holder are limited to MRU 300,000 for the account holder's travel needs. The limit of MRU 300,000 is applicable to each trip. The balances of these accounts may be transferred abroad in keeping with the prevailing regulations. Transfers abroad to finance trade transactions are authorized in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Approval required	No.
Held abroad	No.	Licensed banks and foreign exchange bureaus may freely open accounts with banks abroad to accommodate foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange investment operations abroad of natural or legal persons residing in Mauritania must be carried out through Mauritanian banks, in accordance with the terms established by foreign exchange regulations. Pursuant to Article 10 of Law No. 2004-042 of July 25, 2004, any natural or legal person of Mauritanian nationality who has a residence in Mauritania is required to declare their assets and liabilities abroad to the BCM.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	New accounts in domestic currency convertible to foreign exchange may not be opened. Those opened before 2000 are permitted in accordance with the provisions of Circular No. GR/005/2000 of which certain provisions were amended by Instruction No. 004/GR/05.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Licensed intermediary banks may freely open foreign exchange accounts on behalf of nonresidents. These accounts may be credited with: (1) foreign currency transfers from abroad; (2) transfers by debit to another account in the same currency belonging to the same account holder; (3) dividends and real net proceeds from capital transactions and the sale or liquidation of investments made by imports of foreign currency; (4) the proceeds of cashed checks in foreign currency drawn on foreign banks to the order of the holder; (5) interest on the accounts; and (6) payments of foreign banknotes. (Amounts in excess of MRU 100,000 must be declared to the BCM.) These accounts may be debited for: (1) withdrawals of foreign currency notes by the account holder, exclusively for the account holder's travel needs and in accordance with the existing exchange regulations; (2) foreign transfers ordered by the account holder, in compliance with the existing exchange regulations; (3) checks and transfers issued by the account holder, for foreign exchange payments authorized under the existing exchange regulations; (4) foreign exchange sold; and (5) bank commissions charged on these accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may open domestic currency accounts. Balances on these accounts are freely transferable in accordance with the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations. Existing convertible ouguiya accounts may be credited in the same manner as foreign exchange accounts.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.	Existing nonresident accounts in convertible ouguiyas may be converted, but new convertible accounts may not be opened.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	Yes.	All documentary credits require a minimum deposit of 10% of the overall value of the credit for essential goods (foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and clinker), 20% for hydrocarbons, and 40% for other products. Other types of foreign commitments (document remittances and free transfers) are subject to 100% coverage through an effective contribution before the transfer is carried out.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Any import resulting in the transfer of currency must be domiciled with an authorized Mauritanian intermediary (Intermédiaires agréés en Mauritanie—IAM).
Preshipment inspection	Yes.
Letters of credit	Yes.	All documentary credits require a minimum deposit of 10% of the overall value of the credit for essential goods (foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and clinker), 20% for hydrocarbons, and 40% for other products. Other types of foreign commitments (document remittances and free transfers) are subject to 100% coverage through an effective contribution before the transfer is carried out. However, in response to COVID-19, the requirements for deposits were suspended for essential goods and for hydrocarbons.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	No legal document has replaced the advance import declaration, and there are no import licenses used as exchange licenses.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of a few goods, including arms, alcoholic beverages, and toxic waste, are prohibited for reasons of health or public policy, as are imports of species protected under the Washington Convention.
Open general licenses	Yes.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Pursuant to Law No. 2021-001, establishing the 2021 Budget Law, goods imported by some public enterprises or financed abroad are exempt from import duties and nonexempt imports are subject to duties and taxes of between 1.5% and 39.5%. However, Law No. 2020-006, establishing the 2020 Supplementary Budget Law, extended the list of exempt goods to many products, including essential goods.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange receipts derived from the export of goods and services are subject to the repatriation requirement, except in the cases of enterprises operating under a special regime (Article 12 of Law No. 2004-042 of July 25, 2004). The repatriation of export earnings of fishery products produced by the Mauritanian Fish Marketing Company (Société Mauritanienne de Commercialisation de Poissons—SMCP) must be performed exclusively through the BCM as described in Instruction No. 003/GR/2012 of January 17, 2012.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.	LCs are not compulsory for export purposes.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Any export of a good resulting in the repatriation of revenues must be domiciled with an IAM.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Some export products, in particular fishery products, are subject to preshipment inspection.
Other	Yes.	Export certificates specifying the quantity, value, and destination of all goods are approved by the customs office; the BCM receives a copy for information purposes.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exports of goods require only a certificate approved by the customs office.
Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	The 2007 Budget Law extended the statistical tax to all exports (except oil and mining exports) and reduced the rate to 1%. In response to COVID-19, some products were exempted from the 1% tax.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Borrowing abroad by banks is subject to BCM authorization.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	These transactions are subject to BCM authorization.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign currency transactions between residents are subject to BCM authorization.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks must hold required reserves in their current accounts at the CB for domestic and foreign currency deposits of residents and nonresidents pursuant to Instruction Nos. 3/GR/2006, 18/GR/2008, and 7/GR/2017. The required reserve base in ouguiya is the average of customer deposits. It is calculated over a period of four consecutive weeks based on total ouguiya deposits at the end of each week. The amount of the required reserve is calculated by applying the required reserve ratio in effect to the reserve base. The reserve holding period is four weeks beginning one week after the calculation period. During this period, the average daily balance of banks' ordinary current accounts in ouguiya at the CB must be greater than or equal to the reserve requirement. The required reserve ratio is 6%. Any deficiency of required reserves in ouguiya results in a penalty assessed on the deficiency during the holding period. The rate applied corresponds to the BCM policy rate plus 8 percentage points. The base for required reserves in foreign currency is the daily average of foreign currency demand deposits, term deposits, and other amounts due foreign currency, less the special accounts of projects financed from external resources. The daily average of the end-of-day balances of the current accounts in foreign currencies of each bank over the maintenance period must be at least equal to 7% of the daily average of the base. The holding period is 2 weeks. Any deficiency gives rise to a penalty a working day, applied on the amount of the insufficiency converted in ouguiya at the sale price of the BCM. The rate applied corresponds to the BCM policy rate plus 8 percentage points.

Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements apply for both domestic and foreign currencies. The liquid asset requirement is set at a minimum of 100%, which is the ratio between the high-quality liquid asset and the net cash outflows over a one-month horizon. The calculation of the new ratio complies with Basel III rules.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	Current accounts in foreign currency opened by primary banks with the CB do not earn interest.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Banks must hold required reserves on resident and nonresident foreign currency deposits in their current accounts with the BCM. Resident and nonresident accounts are subject to the same treatment with regard to the reserve requirement (currency of denomination, remuneration, and penalty).
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements apply for both domestic and foreign currencies. The liquid asset requirement is set at a minimum of 100%, which is the ratio between the high-quality liquid asset and the net cash outflows over a one-month horizon. The calculation of the new ratio complies with Basel III rules.
Interest rate controls	No.	Only savings accounts (resident and nonresident) earn interest.
Credit controls	No.	The loan agreement must be linked to the borrower's repayment capacity, which is a ratio between the monthly payment and the stable income. Debt capacity takes account not only of the monthly payment of the loan repayments but also of all other commitments. The duration of the loan allocated may not exceed the duration of the statutory depreciation of the property or equipment concerned: 3 years for a personal loan, 1 year renewable for revolving credit, and 15 years for mortgage. The credit institution must ensure that the client's income is not domiciled with another institution (Instruction No. 2/GR/2014).
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	These transactions are subject to BCM authorization.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	These transactions are not restricted.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The commercial banks' net open positions in foreign exchange are ±10% of net capital for each currency and ±20% of net capital for all currencies. This requirement is applicable to all resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The commercial banks' net open positions in foreign exchange are

Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	11/06/2023	The reference exchange rate for the US dollar against the ouguiya on the interbank foreign exchange market is the average of the average rates observed on that market. It is calculated based on the quotes (bid and ask rates) in US dollars of banks with market maker status collected within a 20-minute time slot in the middle of the day (Circular No. 10/GR/2023). Previously, the reference exchange rate for the US dollar was determined as the arithmetic average of the weighted average rates of purchases on the exchange market and that of sales on the same market (Instruction No. 02/GR/2020).
Exchange tax	11/06/2023	A commission of 0.2% is applied to all foreign exchange operations

Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market	11/03/2023	ADs may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and commissions on foreign exchange transactions with their clients within the band defined by the new exchange arrangement.
Operated by the central bank
Auction	10/17/2023	The Central Bank of Mauritania (BCM) may intervene in the foreign exchange market through auctions. The US dollar is the only currency that may be subject to a tender procedure. The auctions are conducted according to the multiple exchange rate or single exchange rate method at BCM's initiative. Only market makers may participate.

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Since May 29, 2019, financial institutions are prohibited from dealing with persons and entities mentioned in the UNSC Consolidated list as well as any party who may have been designated under the United Nations (Financial Prohibitions, Arms Embargo and Travel Ban) Sanctions Act 2019 and who are subject to targeted financial sanctions under the said Act. The Guidelines on the Implementation of Targeted Financial Sanctions under the United Nations (Financial Prohibitions, Arms Embargo and Travel Ban) Sanctions Act 2019 assist reporting persons with the implementation of restrictive measures, in particular the financial prohibitions prescribed under the United Nations (Financial Prohibitions, Arms Embargo and Travel Ban) Sanctions Act 2019.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the rupee follows movements on the international foreign exchange market as well as domestic demand and supply conditions. Interventions by the Bank of Mauritius (BOM) in the foreign exchange market are limited to situations of excessive exchange rate volatility, shortages of foreign exchange on the market, and accumulation of foreign exchange reserves. The BOM publishes the amount bought or sold and the rate of intervention by close of business on the day the intervention takes place. Information on foreign exchange intervention is also disseminated in the Monthly Statistical Bulletin and Annual Report of the Bank. Since March 2022, the exchange rate regime showed more flexibility. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from crawl-like effective March 29, 2022.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate (referred to as the central rate of the BOM) is used for the valuation and recording of BOM assets and liabilities. Effective November 22, 2022, the methodology for the computation of the central rate has been reviewed. This is in line with the recommendations of the IMF Technical Assistance mission on Foreign Exchange Intervention Strategy and Market Development, as of September 2022. The central rate on a particular day is now the closing mid-dealt rate of the previous day where the dealt rate refers to the weighted average rate of market deals of US$20,000 and above as reported by banks and foreign exchange dealers. The central rate is adjusted by a margin for conducting government transactions. The margin varies according to the currency being transacted against the Mauritian rupee and represents costs incurred by the BOM for conducting the transaction, that is, SWIFT, negative interest, etc. Using the SWIFT network involves fees which the BOM passes through to the government in the margin. The official rate is not published.

Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	Effective January 16, 2023, the BOM rolled out a new monetary policy framework to promote greater transparency while adopting a forward-looking approach. The framework featured much strengthened monetary policy operations, supporting more effective monetary policy transmission mechanism. The BOM's strategy was designed to focus on a number of key operational and strategic elements, namely a well-defined and flexible inflation target; prominent role for inflation forecasts as intermediate target within a redefined policy interest rate; greater clarity on the nature, scale, and magnitude of foreign exchange interventions; and appropriate institutional design for different aspects of the monetary policy decision-making process. It also embedded stronger communication. The BOM adopted explicitly an inflation target, providing a benchmark against which members of the public can gauge inflationary pressures and assess the Bank's success in keeping inflation under control.

Target setting body	Yes.

Central Bank	Yes.	Section 5(2) of the BOM Act 2004 stipulates that the Bank will determine, with the concurrence of the Minister of Finance, the accepted range of the rate of inflation during a given period consistent with the pursuit of price stability. However, the provisions of this section are yet to be implemented.
Monetary Policy Committee	Yes.	The MPC was established on April 23, 2007, pursuant to Sections 54 and 55 of the BOM Act 2004 to formulate and determine the monetary policy to be conducted by the Bank and to maintain price stability, taking into account the orderly and balanced economic development of Mauritius. The MPC of the BOM normally meets on a quarterly basis to formulate and determine the monetary policy to be conducted by the BOM to maintain price stability, taking into account Mauritius' orderly and balanced economic development. The MPC determines the policy rate, after reviewing international and domestic economic and financial developments while also assessing the balance of risks to the growth and inflation outlook.

Policy rate	Yes.	The key rate is the policy rate determined by the MPC.
Target corridor band	Yes.	Effective January 16, 2023, the BOM maintains a symmetric interest rate corridor of 200 basis points around the "key rate" through standing facilities (overnight deposit facility and overnight lending facility). Effective July 7, 2023, the BOM reviewed the issuance of 7-day BOM Bill from full allotment to a tender basis. The width of the interest rate corridor was also increased from 200 bps to 300 bps. Bids over and above the tender amount are absorbed in the deposit standing facility. Overnight lending facility made available to banks at their discretion at the key rate plus 150 basis points; and Overnight deposit facility offered to banks at their discretion at the key rate minus 150 basis points.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers are free to set their exchange rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of end-December 2022, 19 banks, 6 foreign exchange dealers, and 6 money-changers (bureaux de change) were licensed by the BOM. Foreign exchange dealers buy and sell foreign currency and engage in both spot and forward foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange dealers may carry out money and value transfer services, maintain accounts abroad, and make payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients. Money-changers carry same-day transactions and deal only in banknotes. As of November 18, 2021, the daily foreign exchange exposure limit of foreign exchange dealers was revised upward to 75% of their specific net owned funds for six months and effective May 18, 2022, this limit was extended for another six months. This limit remained until May 17, 2023. Effective May 18, 2023, the Bank lowered the daily foreign

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.	Effective June 30, 2022, the BOM discontinued bilateral sales to the State Trading Corporation. Previously, since March 2020, the BOM had serviced the foreign exchange requirements of the State Trading Corporation, which is the sole importer of petroleum products and a major importer of basic commodities.
Auction	Yes.	The BOM conducts a single price foreign exchange auction at its initiative. The foreign exchange auction is conducted with banks. The bids received normally reflect participants' demand, and the allotment is made on a pro-rata basis depending on the amount the BOM would buy or sell. Counteroffers are made to all bidders (including outliers) at the price determined by the BOM. The auction/counteroffer price is determined by the BOM based on banks' bid prices, the prevailing USDMUR market rate, and international movements in EURUSD. The rate of intervention is set within the minimum and maximum rates bid by participants. There is no set frequency of foreign exchange auctions.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks and foreign exchange dealers trade among themselves at freely determined exchange rates. The BOM is the sole institution that grants licenses to banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers. As of end-December 2022, 19 banks and 6 foreign exchange dealers were permitted to carry out transactions in the interbank foreign exchange market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers transact in foreign exchange with clients over the counter.
Brokerage	No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	As per the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risks (2019) issued by BOM, the same limits apply to credit exposures to both single customers or group of connected counterparties, irrespective of whether a credit facility is extended in Mauritius or provided to a counterparty based outside Mauritius. The Bank issued a 2020 Guideline on Cross-Border Exposure which supplements the existing Guidelines issued by BOM and provides a set of additional minimum standards that would need to be adhered to by banks in respect of their cross-border exposures, that is, exposures to a counterparty or group of connected counterparties based outside Mauritius or whose majority of operational cash flows is derived from operations in a jurisdiction other than Mauritius. The guideline requires banks to have a board-approved policy on cross-border exposure and inter alia sets out, in respect of cross-border exposure: (1) clearly defined roles and responsibilities of the board of directors, control functions, and external auditors in respect of cross-border exposures; (2) specific due diligence to be conducted on counterparties, jurisdictions, and third parties involved in such exposures; (3) guidance on the risk appetite framework, risk identification and assessment and risk monitoring; (4) requirements for specialized lending and silent guarantees; (5) requirements for credit risk management and risk monitoring in addition to those prescribed in the Guideline on Credit Risk Management and Guideline on Country Risk Management.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Subject to compliance with additional criteria set out in the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risk (2019), subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks may apply different thresholds for exposures denominated in currencies other than Mauritian rupee, applicable to both credit extended in Mauritius or provided to counterparties based outside Mauritius. For banks other than subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks, the credit exposure, denominated in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, must be within the following limits: (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 25% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 40% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 800% of the bank's Tier 1 capital. The aggregate credit exposure, in currencies other than the Mauritian

This limit is exclusive of the limit of 800% imposed in Mauritian rupee denominated credit. For credit exposure of a branch of a foreign bank in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, there is no limit vis-à-vis the Tier 1 capital of the branch.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	The acquisition of these securities falls under the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risk, in which "credit exposure/facility" means a commitment by a financial institution to provide funds or substitute of funds, including investment in fixed dated securities/debentures and off-balance-sheet funds to a customer or group of connected counterparties on a secured or unsecured basis. For banks other than subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks, the credit exposure, denominated in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, must be within the following limits: (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 25% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 40% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 800% of the bank's Tier 1 capital. The aggregate credit exposure, in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, of a subsidiary of a foreign bank must be within the following limits: (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 50% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 75% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 1200% of the bank's Tier 1 capital. This limit is exclusive of the limit of 800%imposed in Mauritian rupee denominated credit. For credit exposure of a branch of a foreign bank in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, there is no limit vis-à-vis the Tier 1 capital of the branch.

		the asset at the settlement date of the derivative instrument which matches its obligations under that instrument and from which it can discharge those obligations. An insurer may not, without the approval of the FSC, given generally or in a particular case, and on such conditions as the FSC may determine – (1) mortgage, charge, or otherwise encumber its assets; (2) directly or indirectly borrow any asset; (3) by means of any surety, give any security in relation to obligations between other persons except where the security is provided under a guarantee policy which the insurer is authorized to issue under its license. As per the Insurance (Long-Term Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 and Insurance (General Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007, insurers' investment concentration limits must be as follows: (1) The aggregate value of investments as reported on the balance sheet by an insurer in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are listed on a licensed exchange in Mauritius or listed on such exchanges as are specified in the Second Schedule, may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer. (2) The aggregate value of investments as reported on the balance sheet by an insurer in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are other than shares described in paragraph (2) above, may not exceed 5% of the assets of the insurer. (3) An insurer may invest up to 10% of its assets in any property. (4) When an insurer and its related company, other than a long-term insurance company, make an investment in any corporation or commodity, the aggregate value of that investment in that corporation or commodity may not exceed: In the case of listed shares described in paragraph (2), 10% of the assets of the insurer; and in the case of shares described in paragraph (3), 5% of the assets of the insurer. (5) The aggregate value of investments of an insurer in one or more of its related companies may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer. (6) When an insurer is a branch of a foreign company: the aggregate value of investments reported in its balance sheet in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are listed on a licensed exchange in Mauritius or listed on such exchanges as are specified in the Second Schedule, may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer; the aggregate value of investments reported in its balance sheet in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are other than shares described in sub-paragraph (1), may not exceed 5% of the assets of the insurer. (7) The branch of a foreign company may not invest more than 10% of its assets in any property. Property includes direct investment in Investment Properties, mortgages, and Land and Building for insurer's own use. It is worth noting that insurers may invest beyond the above prescribed investments limit provided they are solvent as per the Insurance (Long-Term Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 and Insurance (General Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 (as appropriate).

Exchange Arrangement

Classification
Floating	03/29/2022	The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from crawl-like.
Official exchange rate	11/22/2022	The methodology for the computation of the central rate has been reviewed. This is in line with the recommendations of the IMF Technical Assistance mission on Foreign Exchange Intervention Strategy and Market Development as of September 2022. The central rate on a particular day is now the closing mid-dealt rate of the previous day where the dealt rate refers to the weighted average rate of market deals of US$20,000 and above as reported by banks and foreign exchange dealers.
Monetary policy framework
Inflation-targeting framework	01/16/2023	The Bank of Mauritius (BOM) rolled out a new monetary policy framework to promote greater transparency while adopting a forward-looking approach. The framework featured much strengthened monetary policy operations, supporting more effective monetary policy transmission mechanism. The BOM's strategy was designed to focus on a number of key operational and strategic elements, namely a well-defined and flexible inflation target; prominent role for inflation forecasts as intermediate target within a redefined policy interest rate; greater clarity on the nature, scale and magnitude of foreign exchange interventions; and appropriate institutional design for different aspects of the monetary policy decision-making process. It also embedded stronger communication. The BOM adopted explicitly an inflation target, providing a benchmark against which members of the public can gauge inflationary pressures and assess the Bank's success in keeping inflation under control.

Operating target (policy rate)
Target corridor band	01/16/2023	The Bank of Mauritius maintains a symmetric interest rate corridor of 200 basis points around the "key rate" through standing facilities (overnight deposit facility and overnight lending facility).
	07/07/2023	The Bank of Mauritius (BOM) reviewed the issuance of 7-day BOM Bill from full allotment to a tender basis. The width of the interest rate corridor was also increased from 200 bps to 300 bps. Bids over and above the tender amount are absorbed in the deposit standing facility. Overnight lending facility made available to banks at their discretion at the key rate plus 150 basis points; and Overnight deposit facility offered to banks at their discretion at the key rate minus 150 basis points.
Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market	05/18/2022	The daily foreign exchange exposure limit of foreign exchange dealers equal to 75% of their specific net owned funds was maintained for another six months.
	05/18/2023	The Bank of Mauritius lowered the daily foreign exchange exposure limit of foreign exchange dealers to 60% from 75% for a period of six months.
Operated by the central bank
Allocation	06/30/2022	The Bank of Mauritius (BOM) discontinued bilateral sales to the State Trading Corporation (STC). Previously, since March 2020, the BOM had serviced the foreign exchange requirements of the STC, which is the sole importer of petroleum products and a major importer of basic commodities.

The FEC does not target or defend any exchange rate level. In February 2017, the FEC announced an intervention mechanism through a foreign exchange hedging program. The foreign exchange hedging is auctioned through NDFs. When applicable, detailed data on the received bids and results of the US dollar loan auctions are published on the BM website. In particular, the BM discloses received and allocated bids, including the forward points, as well as the total amount demanded. No US dollar loan auctions were carried out in 2022 or 2023.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The exchange rate (FIX) is calculated by the BM as an average of quotes in the wholesale foreign exchange market for operations payable in two banking days following the quote date of any of the exchange transaction platforms or of some other similar electronic means that BM considers indicative of prevailing conditions in the wholesale foreign exchange market. The BM releases the FIX at noon each banking day after receiving all quotes and performing the corresponding calculations. The FIX is published in the Official Journal of the Federation ("Diario Oficial de la Federación"—DOF) one banking day after its calculation and is used to settle liabilities in US dollars payable in Mexico on the day following its publication. The FIX serves only as a reference; therefore, its use in foreign exchange transactions by market participants is not mandatory.

As established in the BM Law, the BM must send quarterly reports (within the next 45 working days after each quarter) to the Congress and the President of the Republic of Mexico, regarding several topics, including the registered inflation over the said period. Likewise, in January of each year, the BM must submit a statement to the latter parties on the monetary policy to be adopted by the BM in the respective fiscal year, among others. Any of the Chambers of the Congress of the Union may summon the Governor of the BM to report on the policies and activities of the Institution.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	The BM can disclose its monetary policy through the following mechanisms: (1) Monetary Policy Announcements: public communications through which the Governing Board announces the decision regarding the objective for the overnight interbank interest rate; (2) Minutes of the meetings of the Board of Governors, which describe decisions taken by the majority the members of the Board of Governors and, if applicable, the dissenting vote where the corresponding member of the Board of Governors is identified; and (3) Quarterly reports: These reports are presented at a public session presided over by the Governor and in the presence of the other members of the Board of Governors.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	Ten business days after each announcement regarding monetary policy decisions, the minutes of the session in which the Board of Governors deliberated and decided about it are published, thereby allowing access to the data on which the monetary policy was based as well as the arguments that led to such decision. On May 17, 2018, BM modified some elements of its monetary policy communication strategy: (1) The minutes on the monetary policy decision include the voter's identity. If there are dissenting opinions in the voting, the reasons for such dissents are included as well;

		(2) The transcripts of the Board of Governors' meetings involving monetary policy decisions are available to the public three years after the corresponding meeting took place; (3) The monetary policy decision press release (Monetary Policy Statement) and the corresponding minutes are published simultaneously in both Spanish and English; (4) The speeches and public presentations of the members of the Board of Governors are also published. These materials are available to the public on BM's official webpage no later than two days after the event. On February 10, 2020, BM modified some elements of its monetary policy communication strategy: (1) General communication criteria for the Board was updated according to international standards; (2) Monetary policy statements and the corresponding minutes of the Board of Governors will be more concise and clearer; (3) The monetary policy decision statement will include how many members of the Board attended the meeting. On August 5, 2021, BM modified some elements of its monetary policy communication strategy: (1) In each Monetary Policy Statement, the BM will publish its update on its inflation and core inflation expectations for the next eight quarters; and (2) The decision will include each voter's identity and how they voted.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	In every quarterly report, BM updates the forecasts and projections about inflation, the GDP, and other relevant factors that led to monetary policy decisions. Since August 12, 2021, inflation forecasts are also published in each Monetary Policy Statement. Prior to this change, they were only published in quarterly reports.

Auction	Yes.	The FEC operates an intervention mechanism through a foreign exchange hedging program. The foreign exchange hedging is auctioned through NDFs. On August 31, 2023, citing favorable market conditions, as well as a markedly reduction in intraday volatility levels, the FEC announced a gradual unwinding of the program. From September 2023 onward, the maturities of the hedges will be renewed only once, and for only 50% of their current amount. For operations with an original term of six months, a reduction of the term to one-month will be announced on their renewal date, and the rule of offering only 50% of the current amount will apply. Finally, transactions with an original term of nine- and twelve-months will be allowed to expire in full on their respective maturity dates. It's expected that the amount outstanding will reach zero during the first quarter of 2024. The data on interventions are published on the Bank's website immediately after the auctions. In particular, BM discloses received and allocated bids, including the forward points, as well as the total amount demanded. The FEC has the possibility of selling NDFs settled by differences in Import licenses from the Ministry of Economy (MOE) are required for 1,107 out of the 7,895 tariff items subject to general import duties, including 25 tariff lines related to special operations (Eighth Rule). Under this Rule, registered manufacturing industries may import (zero duty but under the corresponding license) machinery and equipment, materials, supplies, parts and components to allow them to fulfill their contracts and comply with manufacturing programs in which they are registered. With the implementation of the Seventh amendment of the Harmonized System, the number increases of lines for which licenses are required, going from 19 to 34, certain imports under the trade agreement that require a license to receive tariff preference, and industrial raw diamonds imported under the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. The Agreement by which the MOE issued rules and general criteria on foreign trade subject certain goods to automatic import permit: footwear products, steel, slot machines, and textile and clothing products. Once the requirements have been met, the corresponding permit is issued. Import licenses are generally valid for one year, but for certain sensitive products and used clothing, they are valid only for three months. The license may be renewed, depending on the importer's performance. Import licenses are not required for used vehicles imported by the diplomatic or consular missions, or by personnel of the Mexican Foreign Service, motor home-type housing vehicles, family-type vehicles or "station wagons" prepared for specialized transportation of corpses, called "hearse" or "hearses; c) Amphibious submission of an automatic import notification. On May 9, 2022, the new Agreement by which the MOE issues general rules and criteria on foreign trade matters was published in the Official Gazette of the Federation, which aims to standardize the criteria, offices, notes, and instruments of foreign trade. Chapter 2.4 deals with the Mexican Official Standards that are enforceable at the point of entry, as well as the alternatives for compliance, previously located in Annex 2.4.1. The new agreement adds to NOM-222-SCFI/SAGARPA-2018 for compliance at point of entry. On November 25, 2022, the ”Agreement by which the MOE issues general rules and criteria on foreign trade and its amendments” was updated to homologate the tariff items with the Seventh amendment of the Harmonized System. On January 13, 2023, Annex 2.4.1, Numeral 3, Paragraph I of the ”Agreement by which the MOE issues general rules and criteria on foreign trade and its amendments” was updated. The reason for the update is because NOM-004-SCFI-2006 was replaced by NOM-004-SE-2021.

		On September 1, 2022, the "Agreement establishing the goods whose import is subject to regulation by the Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Development, as well as the issuance of the certificate of origin for the export of coffee" was published in the DOF to update the tariff fractions with the 7th amendment of the Harmonized System. On November 1, 2022, the "Agreement establishing the goods whose import or export is subject to regulation by the Ministry of National Defense" was published in the DOF to bring the tariff items in line with the 7th amendment of the Harmonized System. On September 1, 2022, the update of tariff items subject to export permit compliance of the "Agreement that amends the one that establishes the goods whose import and export is subject to regulation by the Ministry of Health" was published. On December 6, 2022, the update of tariff items subject to compliance with export permits of the "Agreement that amends the Agreement that establishes the goods whose import and export is subject to regulation by the Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources" was published. On November 22, 2022, the update of tariff fractions subject to compliance with export permits of the "Agreement that amends the one that establishes the goods whose import and export is subject to regulation by the Ministry of Energy" was published.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	On July 1, 2020, the new General Import and Export Taxes Law was published, implementing the sixth amendment to the World Customs Organization's Harmonized System. Mexico has 7,859 tariff items in the General Import and Export Taxes Law: 97% have ad valorem taxes of between 0% and 20%, and 58% are exempt from import duties. The largest import tax is 75% and applies to a few products, such as poultry meat and edible offal and fructose. A 50% tariff applies to imports of used cars from countries without a trade agreement. Imports from USMCA (Agreement between the United States of America, the United Mexican States, and Canada), ALADI (LAIA), and EFTA member countries, Australia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, the EU, Guatemala, Honduras, Israel, Japan, Nicaragua, New Zealand, Peru, Singapore, Uruguay, and Vietnam receive preferential treatment. There is a preferential tariff of 0% to 10% for imports within the framework of the Sectorial Promotion Programs only for the inputs used in the elaboration of specific products. At 2021, the number of tariff items included in the Sectorial Promotion Programs amounted to 895, with the automotive, electrical, and electronic products being the most benefited sectors. No tariffs are applied to goods imported temporarily for repair or transformation purposes and which will then be returned abroad. Mexico applies antidumping and anti-subsidy duties to the following products: bond paper and rebar from Brazil; atomizers, chemical products, steel products, mushrooms, bicycles, coaxial cable "guidewire," pencils, ceramic tiles, cookware, polyester, ceramic dinnerware and ceramic parts, metallic balloons, cooking pots, and aluminum foil, hydraulic cylinder jacks, wind towers, metal zippers, zamak and steel pull handles and aluminum disks from China; steel pipe from the UK; epoxidized soybean oil, rubber, chemical products, steel products, and chicken leg and thigh from the USA; rubber and steel products from Japan; rubber, polyester, and steel products from Korea; steel products from Italy, France, Germany, Kazakhstan, Portugal, Romania, Russia, Spain, Taiwan Province of China, and Ukraine; metoprolol, steel products, and antibiotics from India; and epoxidized soybean oil from Argentina.

New electric motor vehicles for the transport of ten or more people, new light electric motor vehicles, new electric motor vehicles for the transport of goods, and new trolleybuses are temporarily exempted from the import duty, the modification was published on September 3, 2020. These measures will be in force until October 1, 2024.

Since February 23, 2021, the import duty was temporarily waived for vaccines against the SARS-CoV-2 virus and aluminum tanks for oxygen for medicinal use. The measure will be in force until the contingency situation derived from the disease epidemic generated by the SARS-CoV-2 virus (COVID-19) has ended in Mexico. Derived from the publication effective May 9, 2023, by the Ministry of Health where the extraordinary action in matters of general health that had the purpose of preventing, controlling and mitigating the disease caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus (COVID-19) was declared terminated, the decree where the import tariff of the tariff item related to the vaccine against the SARS-CoV-2 virus is exempted is repealed.

The imposition of import duties of 15% was extended for 180 days for 186 tariff items in the steel sector, dating from June 5, 2019.

In the same sense, a six-year reduction plan was established for the steel sector. This means the creation of 82 tariff items, the modification of 25, and the elimination of 21. Thus, for 228 tariff items, an import tariff of 15% is established until 2021, later it will go to levels of 10% until 2023 and, finally at 3% levels and Exempt until 2024.

A 180-day import tariff was established for three tariff items related to the steel sector.

A temporary import tariff was established for 180 days on various tariff items in the textile-clothing and footwear sector.

A tariff reduction program was established for the clothing and footwear sector, which means temporarily establishing the import tariff of 317 tariff items at levels of 25% and 30% until 2024, the year in which they will return to their MFN level.

Effective June 7, 2022, the General Import and Export Taxes Law was published, implementing the seventh amendment to the World Customs Organization’s Harmonized System. Mexico has 8,177 tariff items in the General Import and Export Taxes Law: 46% have ad valorem taxes of between 0% and 20%, and 46% are exempt from import duties. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries.

Temporary exemption of import duties was granted to products classified under 67 tariff headings that are part of the basic basket and inputs, as well as 6 tariff headings that belong to live animals, effective May 16, 2022. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. The tariff reduction schedule previously established was adjusted to maintain the temporary 15% tariff for various steel products until May 31, 2023, and subsequently, to continue with the tariff reduction scheme as established in the Agreement published on November 22, 2021. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. Effective January 6, 2023, the temporary exemption of import tariffs was granted to various products classified under 135 tariff subheadings that are part of the basic and essential consumption basket for Mexican families, abolish the previous publications of the Package Against Inflation and Scarcity. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. Effective January 16, 2023, ad valorem taxes of temporary 50% apply to the import of white corn (flour corn). The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. The tariff subheading classifying Tilapia, which is part of Package Against Inflation and Scarcity, is added, and the exemption for wheat and spelt, as well as wheat or spelt flour, is removed, effective May 18, 2023. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. The import tariff for white maize (for flour), which is part of the "Agreement exempting the payment of import tariffs and granting administrative facilities to various goods in the basic consumption basket for families," has been temporarily modified. This decree is in effect until December 31, 2023. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries. In August 2023, the General Import and Export Taxes Law were temporarily modified for 392 tariff lines, ranging from 5% to 25%, for goods related to steel, aluminum, bamboo, rubber, chemicals, oils, soap, paper, cardboard, ceramic products, glass, electrical materials, musical instruments, and furniture, among others. The purpose of this modification is to provide certainty and fair market conditions to all sectors facing vulnerability, promote the recovery of the domestic industry, foster its development, and support the domestic market. The duties are applicable to all MFN countries.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Regulation 4/2012, which contains the Rules for Derivative Transactions, does not establish restrictions or controls regarding the purchase of derivative instruments abroad. With respect to derivatives transactions, Regulation 4/2012 states that entities (credit institutions, securities firms, and the National Agricultural, Rural, Forestry, and Fisheries Financial Institution, jointly or separately, hereinafter "Entities"), investment funds, general deposit warehouses, and multiple-purpose financial companies (Sofomes) may only carry out derivative transactions regulated by Regulation 4/2012. However, securities firms may only carry out credit derivatives transactions on behalf of third parties in terms of the provisions of Paragraph 8 of Regulation 4/2012. Investment funds, general warehouses, and Sofomes may only carry out derivative operations with underlying companies included in Paragraph 2.1 of Circular 4/2012 that, in accordance with their corporate purpose and, where appropriate, investment regime, are authorized to operate. Entities must obtain authorization from the BM to enter into derivative transactions on their own account. Investment funds may only carry out derivative operations, subject to the general provisions issued by the NBSC and without requiring authorization from the BM. These operations can be carried out in any market. Additionally, to enter into derivative transactions, investment funds must have the respective Legal Entity Identifier Codes issued in their name, which must be in force at the time of entering into the respective derivative transactions. The Sofomes and general deposit warehouses must have the respective LEI Codes issued in their name, which must be in force at the time of the execution of the respective derivative transactions. Sofomes and general deposit warehouses may carry out derivative transactions without the need for the BM's authorization. Furthermore, in accordance with international standards, entities must include the respective Unique Product Identifier (UPI) on their information reports regarding OTC derivative transactions, as well as include the respective Unique Transaction Identifier in the confirmation of OTC derivative transactions. Both identifiers must be included in information reports regarding OTC derivative transactions. Unique Transaction Identifier requirements are effective December 1, 2023, while UPI requirements will be effective a year after a UPI service provider is recognized by the BM, as established in Regulation 19/2022.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Regardless of the issuer's residence, controls apply to the purchase of national or foreign securities by investment funds in variable-income and in debt instruments, whether on their own or on behalf of their clients. Investment funds of variable-income and the debt instruments may invest in assets that must be registered in the National Securities Registry or in the International Quotation System, foreign assets that have been registered, authorized, or regulated, for their public sell in general, by the Securities Commissions or equivalent organism of the States; assets issued by BM or by a recognized international organism; in demand deposit in national or foreign financial entities, in national or foreign currency; or in derivative financial instruments. If the foreign securities are registered, authorized, or regulated, for their public sell in general, in Member States of the Pacific Alliance, the transactions must be made with agreements that enable the access to the negotiation systems. Investment funds in variable-income and the debt instruments may invest in structured products, stock fiduciary certificates, and asset-backed securities, as long as the securities are considered under their investment regime. The structured products must contain the obligation of paying down the principal and a determined minimum rate. Investment funds in variable-income and debt instruments must comply with their investment regime prospect. Investment funds may not obtain or dispose assets that are property

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Regardless of the issuer's residence, controls apply to the purchase of national or foreign securities by investment funds in variable-income and in debt instruments, whether on their own or on behalf of their clients. The investment in securities and derivative financial instruments related to the same financial institution may not exceed 40% of the NAV of the investment fund. The amount of investments in financial institutions that individually constitute more than 15% of the NAV of the investment fund may not exceed, jointly, the 60% of the NAV. Both percentages are subject to the exceptions outlined in the respective articles. Investment funds must maintain at all times a minimum percentage of easily collectible securities and values with term up to three months, according to the objective, investment prospect, and stock trading policies outlined in their information disclosure to the investment markets. The percentage must be noted in the information disclosure. For the purposes of this disposition, easily collectible securities are those that represent up to 50% of the volume of daily operation in the market under consideration, by issuer, type of security, or series, corresponding to the average of the last 60 labor days of operation. This requirement is equally applicable to the investments in derivative financial instruments quoted at the stock market.

Digital Currencies and Crypto Assets

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.	As of today, the BM has not launched or issued any retail or wholesale domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC), nor does it have the legal framework to do so. Current legislation grants exclusive powers to BM regarding banknote issuance and ordering coin minting. These currency formats are the only ones considered legal tender and thus, that have a discharging effect. So, any other instrument, such as a CBDC, would be subject to a different legal treatment than the banknotes issued or coins ordered to be minted by BM under Banco de México ´s Law and Mexico's Monetary Law. Nevertheless, from a contractual perspective, parties may agree an operation with a CBDC issued by another jurisdiction, as a means of payment, as they can with any foreign currency in Mexico, under the Civil Code. The latter should not be interpreted as a possibility for financial institutions to carry out operations in foreign CBDC, considering that the current legal framework expressly establishes the characteristics of the transactions that each financial institution can carry out, according to its unique legal nature. Currently the legal framework does not envisage foreign CBDC transactions by a financial institution.

Under no circumstance shall the national legal tender currency, other currencies, or any other asset given in legal tender currency, be considered virtual assets. The law makes no explicit distinction between backed or unbacked tokens, however if the crypto-assets are denominated in foreign currency, they may not be considered virtual assets. Under the Mexican regulation of crypto-assets, businesses that provide certain crypto-assets services are subject to AML legal provisions, mainly the customary and professional offering to exchange crypto-assets by non-financial businesses through electronic platforms which facilitate or carry out sales and purchases of or supply any means to store, hold, or transfer such assets, provided they are not specifically designated by the central bank with which only certain financial institutions are allowed to carry out transactions. The said business must be registered with the Tax authority (SAT) to operate. As of today, the Central Bank has only determined that certain financial institutions may carry out internal transactions with them, that is, transactions for their internal operation, as long as they are not involved in transactions offered to the public. However, it has not specifically designated any crypto-asset in that regard. The framework of crypto-assets in Mexico is divided between regulated entities (financial entities referred to in the Law to Regulate Financial Technology Institutions) and non-regulated entities. Non-regulated entities (parties different from financial entities), may carry activities with virtual assets such as issuing; placing, distributing, and marketing; wallet provisioning; providing custody, facilitating transactions on a decentralized trading platform; provisioning of decentralized lending and operating investment vehicles in a free manner. However, they must comply with AML/CFT provisions, issued under the Federal Law to Prevent and Identify Operations with Resources of Illicit Provenance regarding Vulnerable Activities. The current approach is based on prudential regulation. Rules issued by the Central Bank allow regulated entities (that is, e-money issuers (electronic payment funds institutions) and banks) to carry out only internal transactions with crypto-currencies specifically designated by the central bank. Such prudential perspective is aimed to limit entry points to the financial system and propagation of risks.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) intervenes in the domestic foreign exchange interbank market to smooth out sharp exchange rate fluctuations of MDL against the US dollar. Sharp fluctuations are not specifically defined. However, the NBM intervenes based on market conditions and future expectations of market participants. These interventions do not aim to change the trend of the exchange rate determined by the market. The NBM intervenes directly at the market-quoted rates and publishes aggregated monthly data on its website regarding its interventions and interbank market turnover. The data show interventions by currency and type of operation (spot or derivative). At the beginning of 2022, the local foreign currency market faced major imbalances because of the energy crisis and Russia's war against Ukraine. The combination of these exogenous shocks resulted in high demand for foreign exchange currency from both individuals and businesses. The NBM utilized foreign exchange reserves, with net sales of US$412 million during the first half of 2022, and steered its monetary policy instruments. In these circumstances, the MDL depreciated, in nominal terms, by 7.8% against the USD in the first half of 2022. The local foreign exchange market recovered in the second part of the year. Monetary policy tightening and support from external development partners both played key roles in the buildup of foreign exchange reserves. The international reserves have increased by 14.7%, up to US$4.5 billion by the end of 2022. The Moldovan Leu appreciated by 5.2% against the USD in the first three quarters of 2023, reaching values observed before the overlapping crises. A rebound in the foreign exchange supply from individuals, sizeable inflows of external financial assistance, and low demand for foreign exchange from businesses led to excess liquidity on the foreign exchange market. To limit the volatility of the exchange rate, the CB intervened throughout January–September with net purchases of US$330 million, with the majority of purchases conducted in the first quarter of the year. Data on CB's net foreign exchange interventions can be found in the press release on the evolution of official reserve assets, which is published by the 7th following the month for which the data are reported. The press release is available in Romanian and Russian. More detailed data are published by the 22nd following the month for which the data are reported.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate of the leu against the US dollar is determined daily as the arithmetic mean of the average values of the exchange rates weighted to the volume of spot purchase/sale noncash transactions performed in the interbank and intrabank foreign exchange market. The official exchange rate of the leu against other foreign currencies is based on the official exchange rate of the leu against the US dollar and the cross-rate of the respective foreign currency against the US dollar on international markets. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and statistical purposes.

Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The inflation target is set at 5.0% annually with a possible deviation of ±1.5 percentage points calculated using the CPI.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The inflation target measure is the monthly year-on-year CPI inflation published by the National Bureau of Statistics. Definition of CPI: The CPI is an estimative indicator, which characterizes the general trends of the prices for purchased goods and the tariffs for services used by the population, to satisfy their needs over a certain period of time (current period) in comparison with a fixed period (base period). The calculation of indices is based on the structure of household's expenditures and the prices recorded for 1200 goods and services, representative in all forms of trade and services provided, in 900 centers of 8 cities of the country.

Target horizon	No.	The inflation target is set for an indefinite period and should be met continuously. According to the medium-term monetary policy strategy of the NBM, there is no term in years for inflation target, which means that the inflation target is set for an indefinite period and should be met continuously.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.	De jure, there is no operating target. De facto, the base rate, which is the key policy rate, is set, thus fully controlled, by the NBM and is the main indicator for the monetary market in the short run.
Policy rate	Yes.	De jure, there is no operating target or interest rate target. The monetary market conditions are guided by the NBM through the base rate (key policy rate), which is set (thus fully controlled) by Executive Board and is the main indicator for the monetary market in the short run. The base rate is the reference rate for the main short-term monetary policy operations. The base rate is applied to the monetary market main operations of the NBM to send the monetary policy signals. As of June 30, 2023, the base rate is at 6.0%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	De jure, there is no interest rate target corridor. The standing facilities determine the corridor of the interest rates on the monetary market in the short run. The interest rates on standing facilities (overnight deposits and credits) define the corridor of NBM rates. As of June30, 2023, deposit and lending facility interest rates are at 4.0%.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.	The NBM is responsible to the parliament.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	National Bank must submit to the parliament in a plenary session, by June 1 of each year a report that includes information on: - activity and its operations for the concluded financial year; - economic situation of the State.
Other	Yes.	National Bank must submit quarterly, within 45 days from the end of the quarter, to the parliament and government a report (inflation report), which contains the analysis of the macroeconomic situation and a medium-term forecast on inflation and main macroeconomic indicators, which is published in accordance with the schedule approved by the Executive Board of the NBM. If there is a deviation of the inflation rate exceeding the deviation interval, the NBM will publish a plan of corrective actions to bring the inflation within the established band.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	The NBM publishes the votes of members of the Executive Board at monetary policy meetings in the Inflation Report. In this respect, the vote count is published six months after the decision was made. The Inflation Reports contains the summaries of the minutes of the NBM's Executive Board meetings on monetary policy, which include the number of votes in favor and against the decision.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	The NBM publishes the summaries of minutes of the NBM's Executive Board meetings on monetary policy in the Inflation Report. In this respect, the summaries of the minutes are published six months after the decision was made.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	A report, which contains a forecast on inflation, is published. The NBM publishes the Inflation Report quarterly to evaluate the efficiency of the monetary policy, which will include an analysis of the macroeconomic situation, a forecast for medium-term (two years) inflation, as well as the analysis of the risks regarding the future achievement of the quantitative target.

		The inflation forecast is published on the home page of the NBM official website.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	Yes.	Foreign exchange purchased by individuals against cash at licensed banks or at foreign exchange offices is subject to a tax of 0.1%. Receipts from this tax are used for domestic social services.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, licensed banks and foreign exchange entities may freely determine their bid-ask spreads on foreign exchange purchases and sales as well as their commissions for operations with clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensed banks and foreign exchange entities are the authorized participants in the domestic foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange entities include foreign exchange offices, hotels, and licensed banks. As of December 31, 2022, there were 11 licensed banks, 401 licensed foreign exchange offices (including their 109 branches), 6 licensed hotels, and 739 licensed bank foreign exchange bureaus. As of December 31, 2022, 91 currency exchange machines were installed by foreign exchange entities (including 90 by licensed banks and 1 by a foreign exchange office). Licensed banks may buy from and sell to residents and nonresidents any currency (intrabank market). Foreign exchange entities may buy from and sell to individuals (residents and nonresidents) any currency. Licensed banks and foreign exchange entities may set their foreign exchange buying and selling rates. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, a foreign exchange office is a resident legal entity that performs only one type of activity in Moldova – that is, cash purchases and sales with individuals in lei and foreign currency and traveler's check in foreign currency. Such entities may not make payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients. Foreign exchange offices may have accounts abroad under the same conditions as other resident legal entities. Hotels' foreign exchange bureaus may only purchase individuals' foreign currency cash or traveler's checks against lei. Currency exchange operations may be performed by individuals via currency exchange machines installed by the foreign exchange entities. Foreign exchange offices cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The NBM conducts interbank foreign exchange auctions (in the form of multiple price auctions) for purchases and sales of foreign currency against lei between the NBM and licensed banks through a common trading platform (based on Bloomberg). The NBM notifies the licensed banks about the auction by sending an announcement message through the common trading platform at the latest 30 minutes before the start of the auction. The announcement message contains among other information the amount of foreign currency proposed by the NBM to be sold or bought. The frequency of the auction is not regulated. Licensed commercial banks are eligible to participate. Each participating bank is only allowed to submit one bid, with a minimum of 100,000 units of the traded foreign currency. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions with the foreign exchange obtained at the auction. The results are disclosed to the participating banks within one hour of the end of the auction. In case of default of the auction participants, the NBM may apply the penalties for the late payment to the respective bank according to the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, 11 licensed banks participate in the domestic foreign exchange interbank market, under the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova. The Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation allows licensed banks to set bid and ask rates for their foreign exchange transactions. Under the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova, (1) spreads (difference between the bid and ask rates) may be determined by the quoting party and (2) banks may not charge fees on foreign exchange transactions in the domestic interbank market. The Law on Payment Services and Electronic Money allows resident nonbank payment service providers and electronic money institutions to perform foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services. Under the Law on Capital Markets, resident investment firms may perform foreign exchange buying and selling transactions related to the provision of investment services. The NBM intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	This market is small and operations are insignificant. There is a small swap market in which the NBM is one of the counterparties.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

		Northern Ireland. The Republic of Moldova also benefits from unilateral trade preferences offered under the GSP signed with Canada, Japan, Norway, Switzerland, and the United States.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The NBM is responsible for (1) formulating and implementing the government monetary and foreign exchange policy, (2) establishing the exchange rate regime of the leu, (3) holding and managing the country's foreign exchange reserves, (4) licensing foreign exchange offices and hotels for cash currency exchange activity with individuals, (5) approving foreign exchange operations that are subject to authorization under the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, and (6) exercising control over agents of foreign exchange control. According to the Law on Regulation of Repatriation of Funds, Goods, and Services Obtained from External Economic Transactions, control over the repatriation of funds, goods, and services is exercised by fiscal authorities, who verify repatriation through on-site inspections of legal entities' economic activities. The Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation specifies the authorities and agents of foreign exchange control and the scope of their authority. The authorities of foreign exchange control are the following: NBM, customs authorities, the specialized administrative authority responsible for financial inspection (as of July 20, 2023, adjusting the provisions of Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation to the legal framework. Amendments made by Law No. 363 of December 29, 2022, on Amending of the certain normative acts) subordinated to the MOF and the State Tax Service, National Commission for Financial Markets (NCFM), Office for Prevention and Fight against Money Laundering, and Court of Accounts. The agents of foreign exchange control are the following: - licensed banks; - foreign exchange offices; - hotels holding the license of the NBM for performing the currency exchange operations in cash with individuals; - resident legal entities that have the right to render services related to the exchange of postal money orders; - resident nonbank payment services providers; and - resident electronic money issuers in connection with the issuance of electronic money and providing payment services related to the issuance of electronic money. The foreign exchange control authorities exercise control within the limits of their authority. Foreign exchange control agents exercise control over payments and transfers in foreign exchange operations carried out by residents and nonresidents through such agents.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Regulated by the Law No. 282 of July 22, 2004, on Precious Metals and Precious Stones.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Entrepreneurial activity in the field of precious metals and stones is carried out based on licenses issued by the Public Services Agency. Since the July 2010 dissolution of the State Depository of Valuables, the valuables in the State Fund of Precious Metals and Precious Stones have been transmitted to various authorities (for example,

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		NBM, Ministry of Education, Culture and Research). Secondhand stores and pawnshops may not purchase or accept for storage or as collateral precious metal bullion or precious metal coins. Pawnshops do not have the right to receive the following: -foreign currency; -valuable papers; -objects that do not belong to private individuals; -real estate; -antique objects or other old objects; -coins of precious metals; -metals and precious stones, which are raw material, waste, or objects for technical and production purposes; -means of transport (excluding bicycles and mopeds); -waste and scrap containing precious metals extracted from the machine when scrapped. Under the Law on the Precious Metals and Stones Regime, legal entities and individuals are entitled to hold objects of precious metals. In addition, individuals have the right to present for testing and marking (to the Public Institution State Chamber for Marking Supervision) articles made of precious metals and precious stones in the amount of up to five units annually, regardless of their value. Effective March 17, 2023 (Law No. 60 amended Article 16 of Law 282) electronic commerce was excluded from the conditions pertaining to the location where such transactions are permitted.
On external trade	Yes.	A license from the Public Services Agency is required, which allows imports and exports of precious metals and stones.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Imports and exports of foreign exchange values (cash in foreign and domestic currency, materialized securities, and payment instruments in foreign and domestic currencies) are regulated by the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation. Imports and exports of coins containing precious metals are governed by the legislation regulating precious metals and articles thereof. If both cash (domestic and foreign currencies) and traveler's checks in foreign currency are imported or exported, the limits of €10,000 and €50,000 (including for declaration) specified below apply to the total amount imported or exported. If securities and payment instruments in both domestic and foreign currencies (other than traveler's checks) are imported or exported, the declaration limit of €10,000 indicated below applies to the total amount imported or exported.
On exports	Yes.	Fees for customs procedures are not charged on exports of domestic currency and foreign currency in cash from Moldova by commercial banks and the NBM.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Nonresident banks and licensed banks may export domestic currency cash with NBM approval. Exportation by nonresident banks and licensed banks of domestic currency cash in an amount not exceeding MDL 100,000 does not require the NBM approval. Exports by licensed banks and other resident legal entities of domestic currency banknotes and coins to be used to test currency-processing machines also do not require NBM approval. Once the test is completed, but no later than six months from the date of exportation, the cash must be returned. Exports of banknotes and coins by licensed banks and nonresident banks must be declared in writing to customs. Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Residents may perform foreign exchange operations in cash, in cashless form or with payment instruments, including through foreign and domestic currency accounts and by using traveler's checks as specified in legislation.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident legal entities and individuals may freely open accounts in any foreign currency with licensed banks. Residents' foreign exchange accounts may be credited with foreign exchange purchased locally or received from abroad or from other legal sources. Residents may freely sell to licensed banks foreign currency from their accounts. Resident account holders may use foreign exchange in their accounts to make payments and transfers according to the legislation, including – with NBM approval – for transactions that are subject to such approval under the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation. There are no restrictions on the use of funds for current international transactions. Domestic transactions must be settled in domestic currency, except as specified by law. Foreign currency earnings of resident legal entities must be deposited at licensed banks. Payments and transfers by resident legal entities must take place through noncash transfers, unless explicitly stipulated by law. Cash deposits to and withdrawals from resident individuals' foreign exchange accounts are not restricted. Resident legal entities and individuals may open payment accounts in foreign currency with resident nonbank payment service providers. (Effective August 5, 2023, the issuance of electronic money is permitted in foreign currency. Amendments made by Law No. 209 of July 15, 2022.) These accounts in foreign currency are for payments only and are subject to the foreign exchange legislation. Resident nonbank payment service providers may carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services.
Approval required	No.	Residents are allowed to open domestic foreign exchange accounts without NBM approval. It is forbidden for budgetary authorities/institutions to open bank accounts for making operations through banks.
Held abroad	Yes.	Law No. 94 of May 13, 2016, on amending and supplementing of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation introduced express provisions related to the nonbank payment service providers and accounts opened with them. If accounts to be opened with nonresident banks abroad by residents are subject to NBM approval, these accounts may be opened with such approval. NBM approval specifies allowable operations for these accounts and may specify balance limits, fund maintenance periods, and other conditions. If resident accounts opened with nonresident banks abroad do not require NBM approval, payments and transfers through these accounts must comply with foreign exchange legislation, including NBM approval for certain operations under the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation. Residents may open payment accounts with nonresident payment service providers. Funds from resident accounts abroad may be freely transferred to Moldova.

Approval required	Yes.	NBM approval is required for all residents to hold accounts opened with nonresident banks abroad, with the following additional exceptions: (1) resident individuals during a temporary stay abroad; (2) residents making direct investments and real estate investments abroad, if the opening of such accounts by investors (in their own name) is compulsory under the laws of the country where the investments are made; (3) resident public institutions; (4) licensed banks, in their own name, if required for their activities under the license issued by the NBM; (5) residents opening accounts related to guarantee deposit if the guarantee amount does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent); (6) residents opening accounts aimed at performing operations related to loans/credits/guarantees from nonresidents, if the amount of a loan/credit/guarantee does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent). In July 20, 2023, the provisions related to representative offices were excluded as a result of the adjustment of Law No. 62/2008 with the provisions of the Civil Code. Amendments made by Law No. 363 of December 29, 2022. Now representative offices are considered nonresidents. Consequently, considering that the authorization regime applies to residents only, the opening of accounts abroad by the representative offices located abroad of resident legal entities is not subject to NBM authorization.
